School Teacher Placed Trunk In Storage — Denies Knowledge Of Skeletons

TRUNK STORED TWO YEARS AGO

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The mis-fature skeletons of three babies were found today in a trunk covered with cobwebs in a Brooklyn warehouse. It had been stored there for two years.

Police arrested Ruby Clark, 36-year-old blonde school teacher, of Nyack, N. Y. She admitted the trunk was hers but denied knowledge of its gruesome contents.

Bodies Decomposed

The bodies were so decomposed that police said identification would be difficult.

The records of the warehouse showed the trunk, with some pieces of furniture, were stored on July 15, 1932, by Ruby Clark, of 1000 President street, Brooklyn. A monthly storage fee of four dollars was paid.

At the President street address it was said that Miss Clark had moved but that her parents lived in Nyack, N. Y., on Rocky road.

Report Hauptmann's Alibi Is Shattered

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Reports that police have definitely shattered Bruno Richard Hauptmann's alibi for the night of the Lindbergh kidnaping were current today as the suspect desperately offered his "autobiography" for sale to defray the cost of his defense.

The prisoner's urgent need for money to finance his battle to escape the electric chair was revealed after the federal government made an abrupt comeback in the case by placing an assessment of $9,678.30 against Hauptmann and his wife.

This assessment is based on the alleged income of the Hauptmanns in 1932 and 1933. The $50,000 ransom paid by Col. Lindbergh was passed in April of 1932.

Meanwhile, two of the internal revenue bureau's ace investigators, Frank Wilson and Arthur P. Madden, stepped back into the case to help New Jersey authorities on the ransom money phase. Wilson is the man who obtained the evidence by which Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion.

The report that Hauptmann's kidnap alibi had been shattered was said to have emanated from a high New York police official. According to this authority, not only was Hauptmann away from his Bronx home on the night of March 1, 1932, but on the three following nights.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 21—President Roosevelt is drafting a winter relief program which he will definitely submit to the individual states for approval.

The plan is far from completion yet, but will call on the states to bear a material portion of the relief burden this winter.

At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt is working out the details of his proposal for enactment of federal legislation to provide for unemployment insurance on a national scale.

The executive so advised a delegation of southeastern governors who called on him at the "Little White House" here which he fondly calls his "other home" in the south.

HUSBAND ALSO SUFFERS BURNS

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—Three children were burned to death today and their mother suffered a fractured leg and burns when she jumped from a second story window in rescuing a fourth child from fire of undetermined origin in the home of Charles Smith.

The dead:

Chandler Smith, five; Eugene, four, and Leonard, 10 weeks old.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their son, Charles, were removed to Cambridge Municipal hospital, where Mrs. Smith was found to be suffering from second and third degree burns. Her husband also was treated for burns, while baby Charles had his hair singed and face lacerations.

Robert Frye Begins Second Day Of Fight To Escape Death In Electric Chair

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 21.—Basing their defense argument that their client was "never normally mental," counsel for Robert Frye today began their second fight to save him from the electric chair in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Mae Clemens, his landlady, more than a year ago.

Although asserting Frye "came into the world with a mental handicap," Attorney Patrick McKague told the jury the defendant was harmless until teased or goaded.

"Mae Clemens brought this thing on herself,' he said. "The way she conducted herself affected Fry's mind."

District Attorney Richard D. Laird, who won the first degree verdict against Frye at the first trial, closed the commonwealth's case with the admission of an alleged confession by Frye shortly after court opened.

The defense offered no objections to the statement. Frye on the stand recalled cutting himself but was unable to remember stabbing either Mrs. Clemens or her sister, Olive Davis.

Weiss Mystery Continues To Baffle Police

Arrests Of Underworld Characters Are Predicted Within 48 Hours

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—As the suspicion grew that William "Billy" Weiss, prosperous racket and night life figure, may have been murdered by his abductors after they had collected part of the $100,000 ransom demanded, Philadelphia police today joined federal agents in a search for clews to the baffling mystery.

A swift and sweeping roundup of local underworld characters loomed as R. George Harvey, chief of department of justice agents here, conferred until the early morning hours with Police Superintendent Joseph A. Le Strange.

Arrests Loom.

Following the conference Harvey reported that "considerable progress" had been made and that arrests may be anticipated within the next 48 hours. Le Strange pledged the cooperation of the Philadelphia police in solving this first major gang kidnaping in the east.

Meantime, fears that Weiss, a "big shot" gambler, may have been slain by mobsmen who seized him in front of his palatial Overbrook Hills mansion last October 26 were strengthened by the revelation that the kidnaped man's relatives have not been in direct contact with the supposed abductors since November 6.

On that occasion his wife, Lena, received a fragmentary telephone call. The anonymous caller demanded: "Did you get that letter?"

Three Killed; Seven Hurt; In Auto Collision

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

BAY VILLAGE, O., Nov. 21.—Three persons were killed and seven injured, one critically, in a head-on automobile collision here today.

Two of the victims were burned to death when their automobile burst into flames. They were tentatively identified as Ralph Myles of Cleveland and a companion bound for a hunting trip. The other victim was a Frank Sylvestro, 13, son of a Detroit cement contractor, Joseph Sylvestro.

Sylvestro, with his wife, five children, and Mrs. Bettina Christiano, were enroute to Cleveland to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sylvestro's mother. Beside the boy who was killed the most seriously injured was Nancy, 14, a daughter, who suffered a possible fractured skull. The other occupants of the Sylvestro car suffered minor injuries. All were taken to Lakewood Hospital.

The two youths were burned beyond recognition, but tentative identification was made from the automobile's license plates.

Senator La Follette Discusses Economic Issues Before Nation

Confining himself to the economic rather than the political side of the present crisis in America, Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, son of the late "Fighting Bob", spoke to a crowd of about 700 Tuesday night in the Cathedral, under the auspices of the W. & J. Alumni association.

If Young Bob is less dramatic in his appeal than was his famous father, he compensates this by a sounder view of remedies the future holds. He employes no oratorical tricks, confining himself more to a presentation of his views in a convincing fashion. He seldom raised his voice, although this may have been due in part to the fact that his voice is tired after 287 speeches delivered in the Wisconsin election, which he won.

History Of Depression.

Opening his address he pointed out some of the reasons for the present economic crisis. The World war he placed first on the list. "The war killed 10,000,000 of the flower of the young manhood of the world," said he. "It destroyed $400,000,000,000 worth of capital. It is perfectly obvious that we could not destroy man power and capital without producing just such a crisis as we are passing through.

"Further, the war speeded up a trend that was prevailing before

Rural Avenue To Be Improved

GRADE WILL BE CUT DOWN GREATLY

Work on Rural avenue in the city is being started today under the RWD program, authority for the improvement being received by George Mudehart, RWD director here. The improvement will mean work for several hundred men and will finally make a thoroughfare of Rural avenue that will be of real service.

The grade will be reduced from 12 to eight per cent, which in itself will be a tremendous advantage in wet and slippery weather. The entrance to the street from Neshannock avenue will be widened and several cuts made to improve visibility. When it is completed it will offer a bypass to the downtown district from the North Hill that will undoubtedly be much used.

Finish School Job

Authority for the completion of the decorative scheme in the Benjamin Franklin junior high school has been received and artists will be back at work on Thursday. A school improvement job in Mahoning township and one in Neshannock township have been received, which will take up the unemployed in those districts. A hazard survey of industries has been approved and will start soon and will entail the inspection of industries to ascertain what work is hazardous to health.

Authority has also been received for a history and compilation of records of Troop F, 103rd Cavalry. This will mean the writing of a history of the troop from its inception in 1904 to the present day.

Gradually the list of unemployed is being reduced by the RWD projects and by the first of December Mr. Mudehart is hopeful that there will be work for every available man on relief.

Major General Butler Silent On Testimony About Dictator Plot

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa., Nov. 21.—Major General Smedley D. Butler is prepared to go again before the congressional committee investigating un-American activities and testify further regarding his charges that he declined an offer to head an army of 500,000 ex-service men in a coup to overthrow the government and set up a dictatorship.

"It depends entirely on the committee. If I am subpoenaed, I will go back."

Reached at his home here, Gen. Butler adamantly refused to discuss the testimony he gave before the Dickstein committee in executive session in New York yesterday.

"I said what I had to say before the congressional investigating committee yesterday," he asserted.

Will Not Disclose Testimony

"I'm not going to say anything more about the matter as I agreed with the committee not to disclose my testimony and I'm not going to break that agreement."

Concerning published accounts of his charge that Wall Street interests attempted to induce him to lead a military coup against the government, the fiery general declared:

"I cannot discuss that. To do so would be to disclose what took place before the committee."

"I will say this much, however," he added: "I was subpoenaed on Sunday to testify before the congressional committee on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. And that is just what I did."

Asked how he happened to be requested to appear before the Dickstein committee, Butler replied:

"My name has been used all around the country by organizations, a hundred of them. They'd get some vets and say, 'see, we have Butler with us.'

"They were using me. The investigators who have been running this thing down found my name popping up everywhere. So they wanted to know what I knew about it, and I'm not the only man in this thing."

Bond Salesman To Face Probers

COMMITTEE WILL GO INTO MATTER

Gen. Butler Charges Plan Broached To Set Up Dictator At Washington

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Placed squarely on the hot spot by Gen. Smedley D. Butler's astounding testimony, Gerald P. MacGuire, an embarrassed young bond salesman, was to appear before the Dickstein committee today to repeat his denials that he ever urged Butler to march on Washington with a "fascist" army.

Named by the fiery marine corps veteran as the intermediary in a plot of Wall street interests to overthrow President Roosevelt with a force of 500,000 ex-service men, MacGuire was to be examined on a number of circumstantial details in Butler's charges.

And despite the mirth, sarcasm and explosive indignation with which the charges were denied by various eminent officials mentioned in the "conspiracy", the congressional committee on un-American activities intends to "sift the matter to the bottom".

Congressman Samuel Dickstein, vice chairman of the committee, said:

"From present indications Butler has the evidence. He's not going to make any serious charges unless he has something to back them up. We'll have men here with bigger names than his.'

To Summon Sixteen

Dickstein said further that about 16 persons mentioned by General Butler would be subpoenaed and that a public hearing might be held next Monday.

General Butler's testimony represented the high point of a career

Canadian Ship Sinks In Lake Huron After Collision In Fog

SECOND BOAT IS BADLY DAMAGED

Rescue Ships Pick Up Part Of Crew Of Vessel Which Went Down

(International News Service)

ALPENA, Mich., Nov. 21.—The Canadian freighter W. C. Franz carried four members of her crew to their deaths in Lake Huron early today when she was rammed and sunk by the steamer Loomis of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation, 30 miles southeast of here.

The Loomis, badly damaged and in grave danger of sinking, struggled toward Harbor Beach, Mich., with the survivors from the Franz aboard. The Loomis was accompanied by the steamer Reiss Brothers of Sheboygan, Wis., and coast guards from the Harbor Beach station were putting out to meet the stricken ship.

Collide In Fog

Reports that the Loomis lost two men could not be confirmed.

The collision occurred in a dense fog about 3:30 a. m. The Loomis was proceeding down Lake Huron, while the Franz, a steel-hulled 3,429-ton grain ship, was enroute northward, Port Colburne, Ont., to Port Arthur, Ont., to pick up a cargo.

At 3:30 the Franz sent out a general S. O. S., reporting a collision with a ship which was not identified.

"We are sinking rapidly," the message said. "The men are taking to the boats."

Coast guard boats put out from Middle Island and Thunder Bay stations, but no further word came from the scene of the crash, until the Reiss Brothers arrived in answer to the S. O. S.

The Reiss reported by radio that the Franz had gone down with four of her crew, and that the Loomis was trying to make port at Harbor Beach.

BAY VILLAGE, O., Nov. 21.—Three persons were killed and seven injured, one critically, in a head-on automobile collision here today.

Two of the victims were burned to death when their automobile burst into flames. They were tentatively identified as Ralph Myles of Cleveland and a companion bound for a hunting trip. The other victim was a Frank Sylvestro, 13, son of a Detroit cement contractor. Joseph Sylvestro.

Sylvestro, with his wife, five children, and Mrs. Bettina Christiano, were enroute to Cleveland to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sylvestro's mother. Beside the boy who was killed the most seriously injured was Nancy, 14, a daughter, who suffered a possible fractured skull. The other occupants of the Sylvestro car suffered minor injuries. All were taken to Lakewood Hospital.

The two youths were burned beyond recognition, but tentative identification was made from the automobile's license plates.

TARGET OF THREAT

EVANGELINE DAVEY

An asserted underworld threat to kidnap Evangeline Davey, above, 23-year-old daughter of Martin L. Davey, governor-elect of Ohio, started Ohio police on a search for the originators of the threat. The threat is said to have come from underworld characters "in order to force Mr. Davey to make certain appointments he would not ordinarily make."

Rural Avenue To Be Improved

GRADE WILL BE CUT DOWN GREATLY

Work on Rural avenue in the city is being started today under the RWD program, authority for the improvement being received by George Mudehart, RWD director here. The improvement will mean work for several hundred men and will finally make a thoroughfare of Rural avenue that will be of real service.

The grade will be reduced from 12 to eight per cent, which in itself will be a tremendous advantage in wet and slippery weather. The entrance to the street from Neshannock avenue will be widened and several cuts made to improve visibility. When it is completed it will offer a bypass to the downtown district from the North Hill that will undoubtedly be much used.

Finish School Job

Authority for the completion of the decorative scheme in the Benjamin Franklin junior high school has been received and artists will be back at work on Thursday. A school improvement job in Mahoning township and one in Neshannock township have been received, which will take up the unemployed in those districts. A hazard survey of industries has been approved and will start soon and will entail the inspection of industries to ascertain what work is hazardous to health.

Authority has also been received for a history and compilation of records of Troop F, 103rd Cavalry. This will mean the writing of a history of the troop from its inception in 1904 to the present day.

Gradually the list of unemployed is being reduced by the RWD projects and by the first of December Mr. Mudehart is hopeful that there will be work for every available man on relief.

Senator La Follette Discusses Economic Issues Before Nation

Confining himself to the economic rather than the political side of the present crisis in America, Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, son of the late "Fighting Bob", spoke to a crowd of about 700 Tuesday night in the Cathedral, under the auspices of the W. & J. Alumni association.

If Young Bob is less dramatic in his appeal than was his famous father, he compensates this by a sounder view of remedies the future holds. He employes no oratorical tricks, confining himself more to a presentation of his views in a convincing fashion. He seldom raised his voice, although this may have been due in part to the fact that his voice is tired after 287 speeches delivered in the Wisconsin election, which he won.

History Of Depression.

Opening his address he pointed out some of the reasons for the present economic crisis. The World war he placed first on the list. "The war killed 10,000,000 of the flower of the young manhood of the world," said he. "It destroyed $400,000,000,000 worth of capital. It is perfectly obvious that we could not destroy man power and capital without producing just such a crisis as we are passing through.

"Further, the war speeded up a trend that was prevailing before

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa., Nov. 21.—Major General Smedley D. Butler is prepared to go again before the congressional committee investigating un-American activities and testify further regarding his charges that he declined an offer to head an army of 500,000 ex-service men in a coup to overthrow the government and set up a dictatorship.

The retired marine commander so declared today in telling International News Service:

"It depends entirely on the committee. If I am subpoenaed, I will go back."

Reached at his home here, Gen. Butler adamantly refused to discuss the testimony he gave before the Dickstein committee in executive session in New York yesterday.

"I said what I had to say before the congressional investigating committee yesterday," he asserted.

Will Not Disclose Testimony

"I'm not going to say anything more about the matter as I agreed with the committee not to disclose my testimony and I'm not going to break that agreement."

Concerning published accounts of his charge that Wall Street interests attempted to induce him to lead a military coup against the government, the fiery general declared:

"I cannot discuss that. To do so would be to disclose what took place before the committee."

"I will say this much, however," he added: "I was subpoenaed on Sunday to testify before the congressional committee on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. And that is just what I did."

Asked how he happened to be requested to appear before the Dickstein committee, Butler replied:

"My name has been used all around the country by organizations, a hundred of them. They'd get some vets and say, 'see, we have Butler with us.'

"They were using me. The investigators who have been running this thing down found my name popping up everywhere. So they wanted to know what I knew about it, and I'm not the only man in this thing."

Gen. Butler Charges Plan Broached To Set Up Dictator At Washington

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Placed squarely on the hot spot by Gen. Smedley D. Butler's astounding testimony, Gerald P. MacGuire, an embarrassed young bond salesman, was to appear before the Dickstein committee today to repeat his denials that he ever urged Butler to march on Washington with a "fascist" army.

Named by the fiery marine corps veteran as the intermediary in a plot of Wall street interests to overthrow President Roosevelt with a force of 500,000 ex-service men, MacGuire was to be examined on a number of circumstantial details in Butler's charges.

And despite the mirth, sarcasm and explosive indignation with which the charges were denied by various eminent officials mentioned in the "conspiracy", the congressional committee on un-American activities intends to "sift the matter to the bottom".

Congressman Samuel Dickstein, vice chairman of the committee, said:

"From present indications Butler has the evidence. He's not going to make any serious charges unless he has something to back them up. We'll have men here with bigger names than his."

To Summon Sixteen

Dickstein said further that about 16 persons mentioned by General Butler would be subpoenaed and that a public hearing might be held next Monday.

Rescue Ships Pick Up Part Of Crew Of Vessel Which Went Down

(International News Service)

ALPENA, Mich., Nov. 21.—The Canadian freighter W. C. Franz carried four members of her crew to their deaths in Lake Huron early today when she was rammed and sunk by the steamer Loomis of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation, 30 miles southeast of here.

The Loomis, badly damaged and in grave danger of sinking, struggled toward Harbor Beach, Mich., with the survivors from the Franz aboard. The Loomis was accompanied by the steamer Reiss Brothers of Sheboygan, Wis., and coast guards from the Harbor Beach station were putting out to meet the stricken ship.

Collide In Fog

Reports that the Loomis lost two men could not be confirmed.

The collision occurred in a dense fog about 3:30 a. m. The Loomis was proceeding down Lake Huron, while the Franz, a steel-hulled 3,429-ton grain ship, was enroute northward, Port Colburne, Ont., to Port Arthur, Ont., to pick up a cargo.

At 3:30 the Franz sent out a general S. O. S., reporting a collision with a ship which was not identified.

"We are sinking rapidly," the message said. "The men are taking to the boats."

Coast guard boats put out from Middle Island and Thunder Bay stations, but no further word came from the scene of the crash, until the Reiss Brothers arrived in answer to the S. O. S.

The Reiss reported by radio that the Franz had gone down with four of her crew, and that the Loomis was trying to make port at Harbor Beach.

TRUNK STORED TWO YEARS AGO

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The miniature skeletons of three babies were found today in a trunk covered with cobwebs in a Brooklyn warehouse. It had been stored there for two years.

Police arrested Ruby Clark, 36-year-old blonde school teacher, of Nyack, N. Y. She admitted the trunk was hers but denied knowledge of its gruesome contents.

Bodies Decomposed

The bodies were so decomposed that police said identification would be difficult.

The records of the warehouse showed the trunk, with some pieces of furniture, were stored on July 15, 1932, by Ruby Clark, of 1000 President street, Brooklyn. A monthly storage fee of four dollars was paid.

At the President street address it was said that Miss Clark had moved but that her parents lived in Nyack, N. Y., on Rocky road.

Report Hauptmann's Alibi Is Shattered

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Reports that police have definitely shattered Bruno Richard Hauptmann's alibi for the night of the Lindbergh kidnaping were current today as the suspect desperately offered his "autobiography" for sale to defray the cost of his defense.

The prisoner's urgent need for money to finance his battle to escape the electric chair was revealed after the federal government made an abrupt comeback in the case by placing an assessment of $9,678.30 against Hauptmann and his wife.

This assessment is based on the alleged income of the Hauptmanns in 1932 and 1933. The $50,000 ransom paid by Col. Lindbergh was passed in April of 1932.

Meanwhile, two of the internal revenue bureau's ace investigators, Frank Wilson and Arthur P. Madden, stepped back into the case to help New Jersey authorities on the ransom money phase. Wilson is the man who obtained the evidence by which Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion.

The report that Hauptmann's kidnap alibi had been shattered was said to have emanated from a high New York police official. According to this authority, not only was Hauptmann away from his Bronx home on the night of March 1, 1932, but on the three following nights.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 21.—Well, sir, here is something I would like to see all your cities and towns do. The L. A. Bar Association put on a pageant called "The Making of the Constitution." (They say it was originated in Kansas City.) Well, it's a great thing.

It shows Benjamin Franklin, Washington, Madison, Hamilton, and all those old "rope wigs" fighting during the making of our Constitution. Young as well as old will profit by it, and really enjoy it.

Write and get your information from the L. A. Bar Association. You can put it on for some good charity, or free admission. I am not press agent for any bar association. I just saw it and thought it was great. It's not expensive to put on, just the renting of the costumes is all. Do this, and you will thank me some day.

Three Children Die In Flames

Mother Of Three Little Victims Suffers Fractured Leg Rescuing Fourth Child

HUSBAND ALSO SUFFERS BURNS

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—Three children were burned to death today and their mother suffered a fractured leg and burns when she jumped from a second story window in rescuing a fourth child from fire of undetermined origin in the home of Charles Smith.

The dead:

Chandler Smith, five; Eugene, four, and Leonard, 10 weeks old.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their son, Charles, were removed to Cambridge Municipal hospital, where Mrs. Smith was found to be suffering from second and third degree burns. Her husband also was treated for burns, while baby Charles had his hair singed and face lacerations.

Robert Frye Begins Second Day Of Fight To Escape Death In Electric Chair

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 21.—Basing their defense argument that their client was "never normally mental," counsel for Robert Frye today began their second fight to save him from the electric chair in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Mae Clemens, his landlady, more than a year ago.

Although asserting Frye "came into the world with a mental handicap," Attorney Patrick McKague told the jury the defendant was harmless until teased or goaded.

"Mae Clemens brought this thing on herself,' he said. "The way she conducted herself affected Fry's mind."

District Attorney Richard D. Laird, who won the first degree verdict against Frye at the first trial, closed the commonwealth's case with the admission of an alleged confession by Frye shortly after court opened.

The defense offered no objections to the statement. Frye on the stand recalled cutting himself but was unable to remember stabbing either Mrs. Clemens or her sister, Olive Davis.

Arrests Of Underworld Characters Are Predicted Within 48 Hours

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—As the suspicion grew that William "Billy" Weiss, prosperous racket and night life figure, may have been murdered by his abductors after they had collected part of the $100,000 ransom demanded, Philadelphia police today joined federal agents in a search for clews to the baffling mystery.

A swift and sweeping roundup of local underworld characters loomed as R. George Harvey, chief of department of justice agents here, conferred until the early morning hours with Police Superintendent Joseph A. Le Strange.

Arrests Loom.

Following the conference Harvey reported that "considerable progress" had been made and that arrests may be anticipated within the next 48 hours. Le Strange pledged the cooperation of the Philadelphia police in solving this first major gang kidnaping in the east.

Meantime, fears that Weiss, a "big shot" gambler, may have been slain by mobsmen who seized him in front of his palatial Overbrook Hills mansion last October 26 were strengthened by the revelation that the kidnaped man's relatives have not been in direct contact with the supposed abductors since November 6.

On that occasion his wife, Lena, received a fragmentary telephone call. The anonymous caller demanded: "Did you get that letter?"

Collide In Fog

Reports that the Loomis lost two men could not be confirmed.

The collision occurred in a dense fog about 3:30 a. m. The Loomis was proceeding down Lake Huron, while the Franz, a steel-hulled 3,429-ton grain ship, was enroute northward, Port Colburne, Ont., to Port Arthur, Ont., to pick up a cargo.

At 3:30 the Franz sent out a general S. O. S., reporting a collision with a ship which was not identified.

"We are sinking rapidly," the message said. "The men are taking to the boats."

Coast guard boats put out from Middle Island and Thunder Bay stations, but no further word came from the scene of the crash, until the Reiss Brothers arrived in answer to the S. O. S.

The Reiss reported by radio that the Franz had gone down with four of her crew, and that the Loomis was trying to make port at Harbor Beach.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Robert Sterling Clark, New York broker candidly told International News Service today that he had "strongly urged" Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler "to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation," but he flatly denied allegations that he had sponsored an American fascist movement."

Threatening to take action against General Butler "for any libels which may have been committed," Clark expressed complete mystification concerning the general's charges that a Fascist coup was plotted.

"If anyone is Anti-Fascist, I am," Clark said. "I am just as opposed to Fascism as I am Communism."

He is here partially for his health, but he said he would willingly return to the United States if at any time congress wanted to question him in connection with Gen. Butler's story.

Can't Believe It

"I heard of General Butler's charges for the first time this morning, when I read the Paris newspapers," Clark said.

"I just can't believe it!

"Why, General Butler and I were in the army together in China, when we marched on Pekin during the Boxer rebellion.

"I was a guest in his home about a year ago. Then I urged him strongly to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation. I was and still am opposed to dollar inflation or inflation of any form."

This apparently was the visit that Gen. Butler referred to when he said that Clark had offered him money to go to Chicago and make a gold standard speech. Any offer of money was emphatically denied by Clark.

He came to Europe with a business agent, Albert G. Christmas, Clark said, and "I instructed Christmas to work against inflation.

"I am sending Christmas back to the United States immediately with full authority to act for redress of any libels which may have been committed."

Final Accounting In Harmony Co. Case Is Approved

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—A final receiver's accounting which shows a cash balance of $3,019.64 for the defunct Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler & New Castle Railway Co., was approved and filed in federal district court here today.

Cash on hand as of Oct. 4 for the Pittsburgh, Mars & Butler Railway Co., was revealed as $270.49 in a final accounting filed by Maurice Scharff, receiver for both lines.

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, in confirming the accountings, said they would be confirmed absolutely within 15 days if no exceptions were filed.

Charges to the former New Castle interurban line from July 30, 1932, to Aug. 21, 1934, were $137,963.92 while disbursements for the same period totalled $134,944.28, leaving a balance of $3,019.64.

She admitted she had stored the trunk, police said.

"But I know nothing about the babies," she added. "The trunk had a defective lock when I sent it to storage."

"I didn't think it would be safe to put anything valuable into the trunk because of the defective lock," Miss Clark explained.

Miss Clark said a man, whose name was not revealed, accompanied her on the hunting trip, according to Assistant District Attorney McGinnis.

Miss Clark is a widow. Her husband, whose name was "Mahod," died in 1916. She resumed her maiden name. She attended Vermont Teachers Training College and taught for many years in Vermont. She said she had recently been employed as a bookkeeper in New York banks.

ceived the communication and instantly the telephone connection was broken off. A week later the letter, last of a series of ransom notes, arrived. Instead of being delivered to the "Thomas Mayer" to whom it had been addressed, the postoffice sent the letter to the Weiss home which had been listed on the envelope as the sender's address.

"Thomas Mayer" was believed to be Albert "Buck" Mayer, an associate of Weiss, who together with Harry Roth, nephew of the abducted man, has been aiding Mrs. Weiss in her efforts to effect the safe return of her husband. It was reported, but not established, that Mayer paid over to an intermediary for abductors $25,000 installment of the demanded ransom.

Instructions Not Sent.

This payment, it was reported, was made before receipt of the final, delayed letter on November 13. The letter, which appeared to be in Weiss' handwriting, instructed his relatives to prepare the ransom money in five, ten and twenty dollar bills and said that instructions concerning delivery of the money would follow. No such instructions, however, were subsequently made, leading authorities to entertain the suspicion that the kidnapers, believing their demands would not be met, did away with their captive.

Despite the disclosures by other sources that ransom demands had been made, Harvey professed no official knowledge of them.

He said:

"I know of no ransom demand being made, nor of any money being paid in the case."

James Killip Speaks At Schools

JAMES KILLIP

More than 1,200 young people were reached Tuesday when James Killip, state president of the young people's branch of the W. C. T. U., spoke in the schools at Plaingrove, Harlansburg, East Brook and Rose avenue.

Mr. Killip, who is in Lawrence county this week under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., is giving an illustrated talk in a scientific manner, devoid of emotional appeal, stressing the dangers of alcoholism, instead of the horrors of drunkenness. It is an educational program for the younger generation, which has not known these things from experience.

This morning Mr. Killip, who is accompanied by his wife, who aids in the program, spoke to the pupils of senior high school; this afternoon he spoke in Shenango high and Union high. This evening at eight o'clock he will speak in the First Baptist church to the public, using lantern slides to illustrate his talk.

Thursday all day and evening he will speak in the various schools at New Wilmington, and Friday all day he will be in Ellwood City.

Saturday at six p. m. there will be a tureen dinner for the Y. P. B. in the Central Presbyterian church, with all city and county organizations represented, with the young people bringing a tureen and table service. Mr. Killip will show pictures of the state encampment at this time and give timely suggestions as to the work in the county.

Mechanization of Industry.

The mechanization of industry was another contributing cause to the present condition, plus the fact that corporations continued to pile up huge cash reserves instead of paying out the money in the form of wages or dividends, either of which would have increased the purchasing power. The removing from the Federal Reserve of $8,000,000,000 and putting into Wall Street and the withdrawal of another $8,000,000,000 from industry and commerce and putting it into the Street removed the money from productive use. Finally the forming of immense stock pools, with great banking houses more interested in selling securities than they were of selling service, took money from small investors and floated worthless bonds and stocks. Senator LaFollette was particularly critical of Albert Wiggins, president of the Chase National bank of New York. "At a time when the financial boat was rocking we find Wiggins selling the stock of his bank short, in order to make money for himself," said LaFollette.

Against Concentration.

He expressed his disapproval of the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few. "There was a day when perhaps this was justifiable, when it was possible for capital to be reinvested in capital structures. That day is gone. If I had ten billion dollars today for capital investment, where could I put it? Not in transportation companies, not in industry, for we are over-expanded. The day of concentration of wealth is gone, for we have come to the end of an era of expansion."

By inference he approved the present governmental plan of public work projects when he said that the government must expect to provide projects for unemployed. He urged a national old age pension plan, a national unemployment insurance scheme, public ownership of utilities and the rehabilitation of workers in order to raise the purchasing power of the country.

Against Dollar Devaluation.

As he finished, Senator LaFollette conducted a forum during which he answered many questions hurled at him. Among his answers he declared against further devaluation of the dollar, against a sales tax, and for higher income and inheritance taxes. Communism and Socialism held out no hope, he said.

Physically he is a little fellow, mentally he is agile and after nearing him through not even the most conservative could deny the soundness of most of his views. His lecture was a mental stimulant and it is to be regretted that the auditorium was not filled to capacity.

O. P. Brown of the W & J. alumni opened the meeting and introduced President Ralph Cooper Hutchison of W. & J., who in turn introduced Senator LaFollette. The proceeds of the lecture and also those of the Mark Sullivan lecture to be held later, will be used to found scholarships for worthy men students.

PRESIDENT IS DRAFTING RELIEF PLAN FOR WINTER

clearly before them, and provided the executive with the assurance that the states would be behind him in his program.

Mr. Roosevelt approved the idea behind the work that the governors intend to do in forming the southeastern development board for the carrying out of an economic plan for the southeast. He suggested a grouping of states in various portions of the country for cooperative solution of common problems.

The meeting with the governors gave the president an opportunity for a frank, informal discussion of the unemployment insurance program which he has long sought. He did not ask for any sort of a vote on unemployment insurance, but did sound out the visitors in a conversational way.

Preparing Program.

States must, in the last analysis, decide the question of unemployment insurance. The president's plan will call for enactment of state unemployment insurance laws, and the talk with the governors of the southeast provided a "laboratory" of sorts where the executive could determine just how the idea will be received. Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he intends to draft a model law after which he hopes all states will pattern their state laws. The apparent reactions to this proposal, it was said, were favorable to the presidential idea.

In connection with relief the president told his callers that he was whipping the program into shape as speedily as practically possible. Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins will come here for a conference before the president leaves, and the two will begin the work of actually shaping the program.

marked by such episodes as "turning in" a host who served liquor at a banquet in his honor, accusing Mussolini in the death of a baby, and being shut off on the air in the middle of a speech for dubious language.

Besides the men he mentioned in his testimony before the committee, there was a report that he had told friends in Philadelphia the dictator of the new fascist government was to be General Hugh S. Johnson.

When General Johnson learned of this, he barked:

"He'd better be pretty damn careful. Nobody said a word to me about anything of this kind, and if they did I'd throw them out of the window. I know nothing about it."

No Comment from President

There was no official comment from President Roosevelt, who is in Warm Springs, Ga., but it is known that when he heard of the "conspiracy" which was to relieve him of his job he laughed:

"Fantastic!"

In Wahsington the charges were at first greeted with derision, but as the scope of the testimony became known officials of the War Department boiled with anger.

The substance of Butler charges was substantially:

That MacGuire, employe of the financial firm of Grayson M.-P. Murphy, had asked him to organize war veterans into a fascist army with dues of $1 a year.

That MacGuire arranged a meeting between Robert Sterling Clark, financier, regarding a speech urging that America remain on the gold standard—a speech which it was hoped Butler would deliver before the Chicago American Legion convention.

That if Butler rejected the offer to lead the fascist army the command would be offered to General Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff, or to Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion.

According to Butler's testimony as made public, it was hoped that President Roosevelt would "go along" as the king of Italy did with Mussolini. And if he did not he and the vice president would be forced to resign after appointing a new secretary of state, who would succeed to the Presidency and become "dictator".

Butler was also quoted as saying that MacGuire had tossed $18,000 in 1$ bills on the bed of the general's room in a Newark hotel to "pay his expenses" in Chicago if he agreed to make the "gold standard" speech.

He also said that MacGuire showed him a bankbook with deposits of $64,000 to "take care of expenses" in Chicago.

MacGuire, denying all the charges, insisted he had never talked to Butler about anything but the need for an adequate military force and world affairs in general. He said:

"It's a joke—a publicity stunt. I know nothing about it. The matter is made out of whole cloth. I deny the story completely."

A. T. & T. Declares $2.25 Dividend

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. directors today declared the regular dividend of $2.25 a share on the common stock, continuing the unbroken dividend record throughout the depression.

This action came after some apprehension in Wall Street, particularly in view of the beginning of the sweeping federal investigation into the company's affairs.

The fears had led to the heavy selling of the stock several days ago which drove it down to only a fraction above par, the lowest level since the banking holiday last year. The stock recovered in the last few days, and ruled around $105 a share.

Tells Why Japan Denounces Treaty

WANTS NAVY SIZE OF ENGLAND-U. S.

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)

TOKYO, Nov. 21.—In one of the clearest expositions of Japanese foreign policy ever made, the Japanese government, in an exclusive statement to International News Service, today outlined its reasons for denunciation of the Washington naval treaty.

An official spokesman declared emphatically Japan has no intention of attempting to outstrip Great Britain or the United States in a naval building race, but at the same time sought to dispose of America's claims to a larger navy than that of Japan on the grounds of coastal defense.

Unfair Argument

"To say that the United States has two long coastlines to guard and Japan only one is an unfair argument," the spokesman declared. "Such measurements cannot be used as a yardstick to determine the size and strength of navies.

"The trade routes of America and Britain parallel those of Japan. We buy enormous quantities of raw products for manufacturing and huge amounts of foodstuffs for consumption.

"To balance these purchases, we must ship manufactured goods for foreign markets, making commerce a vital point in our existence and power. We must be assured of clear trade lanes. Our merchantmen operate regular worldwide services."

Reports Denied

The spokesman, whose views are clearly those of the navy department and thus of the government itself, denied Japan was demanding numerical or quantitative parity with the United States, and attributed reports to this effect to propogandists seeking to disturb the talks now under way in London.

Such a specific demand, he pointed out, would be entirely contrary to Japan's iron-clad intention to do no more than remove what is considered an unsatisfactory state of affairs resulting from the Washington treaty.

Hope For Failure

Some high naval officials, International News Service learned, are hopeful no new treaty at all will be formulated to replace the Washington Pact.

They openly express the hope the forthcoming naval conference will fail, allowing the Japanese delegates to return and that the public will believe the powers have misunderstood Japan's aims.

Four Of Crew Lost

The last message from the Reiss ship read:

"The Franz sank 17 and one-half miles east and south of Sturgeon Point about 30 miles from Thunder Bay, four members of the Franz' crew were lost, the rest being picked up by the Loomis. The Loomis, badly damaged, is proceeding, although the forecastle is flooded with four feet of water."

The Loomis was in charge of Capt. A. J. McKenzie, of Buffalo, with Harry Flaherty, also of Buffalo, as chief engineer.

"Unable to communicate very well with the Loomis. The ship is badly damaged. Unable to learn names of lost men."

The Loomis has no radio.

The Loomis, with a huge gash in her bow, was carrying the survivors of the Franz's crew. Four sailors went down with the Franz, Captain A. J. McKenzie, master of the Loomis, had attempted to reach port under his own power.

"No pen for me," Martin declared calmly. "I'd rather take it now, because if I got out I'd have to face trial for the Bellefonte, Pa., jailbreak and robbery, and after that the Penn's Grove, N. J., payroll job—it would mean jail forever."

After sentence was pronounced and the execution date set, Martin thanked Prosecutor George Secrest and his own attorneys for the "fair trial".

Martin was convicted a week ago by a Trumbull county common pleas jury on charges of first degree murder in the fatal shooting last August of Charles Campbell, Denver railroader and World War veteran. While held here he escaped once, was recaptured, was identified as the New Jersey payroll robber and Pennsylvania fugitive. Part of the New Jersey loot was found in his possession.

Tells Kiwanians Of Foreign Trade Life

Relating his own experiences of almost a decade of service as a trade ambassador for an American firm, George C. Ferver of Youngstown, for nine years a representative of the Truscon Steel Company at Tokio, Japan, now back home, thrilled the Kiwanis Club at The Castleton today as he spoke on "A Man in Foreign Trade".

Mr. Ferver was introduced by Hans N. Drio.

"Outside of glancing at statistics of foreign trade," declared Mr. Ferver, who went through Japan's earthquake of September, 1923, "we don't pay much attention to foreign business. When you look at figures in the papers—when you see a dollar mentioned in a report of some sales abroad—remember that every dollar represents a sales effort by some man."

The club was told of the fraternal feeling that develops between American men in service in foreign lands and of the romantic side of it. The fascination that grips the men was termed just as strong as any that holds men to jobs of certain types at home.

Mr. Ferver returned from Tokio in the fall of 1932.

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

"I didn't think it would be safe to put anything valuable into the trunk because of the defective lock," Miss Clark explained.

Miss Clark said a man, whose name was not revealed, accompanied her on the hunting trip, according to Assistant District Attorney McGinnis.

Miss Clark is a widow. Her husband, whose name was "Mahod," died in 1916. She resumed her maiden name. She attended Vermont Teachers Training College and taught for many years in Vermont. She said she had recently been employed as a bookkeeper in New York banks.

ceived the communication and instantly the telephone connection was broken off. A week later the letter, last of a series of ransom notes, arrived. Instead of being delivered to the "Thomas Mayer" to whom it had been addressed, the postoffice sent the letter to the Weiss home which had been listed on the envelope as the sender's address.

"Thomas Mayer" was believed to be Albert "Buck" Mayer, an associate of Weiss, who together with Harry Roth, nephew of the abducted man, has been aiding Mrs. Weiss in her efforts to effect the safe return of her husband. It was reported, but not established, that Mayer paid over to an intermediary for abductors $25,000 installment of the demanded ransom.

Instructions Not Sent.

This payment, it was reported, was made before receipt of the final, delayed letter on November 13. The letter, which appeared to be in Weiss' handwriting, instructed his relatives to prepare the ransom money in five, ten and twenty dollar bills and said that instructions concerning delivery of the money would follow. No such instructions, however, were subsequently made, leading authorities to entertain the suspicion that the kidnapers, believing their demands would not be met, did away with their captive.

Despite the disclosures by other sources that ransom demands had been made, Harvey professed no official knowledge of them.

He said:

"I know of no ransom demand being made, nor of any money being paid in the case."

James Killip Speaks At Schools

JAMES KILLIP

More than 1,200 young people were reached Tuesday when James Killip, state president of the young people's branch of the W. C. T. U., spoke in the schools at Plaingrove, Harlansburg, East Brook and Rose avenue.

Mr. Killip, who is in Lawrence county this week under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., is giving an illustrated talk in a scientific manner, devoid of emotional appeal, stressing the dangers of alcoholism, instead of the horrors of drunkenness. It is an educational program for the younger generation, which has not known these things from experience.

This morning Mr. Killip, who is accompanied by his wife, who aids in the program, spoke to the pupils of senior high school; this afternoon he spoke in Shenango high and Union high. This evening at eight o'clock he will speak in the First Baptist church to the public, using lantern slides to illustrate his talk.

Thursday all day and evening he will speak in the various schools at New Wilmington, and Friday all day he will be in Ellwood City.

Saturday at six p. m. there will be a tureen dinner for the Y. P. B. in the Central Presbyterian church, with all city and county organizations represented, with the young people bringing a tureen and table service. Mr. Killip will show pictures of the state encampment at this time and give timely suggestions as to the work in the county.

Mechanization of Industry.

The mechanization of industry was another contributing cause to the present condition, plus the fact that corporations continued to pile up huge cash reserves instead of paying out the money in the form of wages or dividends, either of which would have increased the purchasing power. The removing from the Federal Reserve of $8,000,000,000 and putting into Wall Street and the withdrawal of another $8,000,000,000 from industry and commerce and putting it into the Street removed the money from productive use. Finally the forming of immense stock pools, with great banking houses more interested in selling securities than they were of selling service, took money from small investors and floated worthless bonds and stocks. Senator LaFollette was particularly critical of Albert Wiggins, president of the Chase National bank of New York. "At a time when the financial boat was rocking we find Wiggins selling the stock of his bank short, in order to make money for himself," said LaFollette.

Against Concentration.

He expressed his disapproval of the concentration of wealth in the hands of a few. "There was a day when perhaps this was justifiable, when it was possible for capital to be reinvested in capital structures. That day is gone. If I had ten billion dollars today for capital investment, where could I put it? Not in transportation companies, not in industry, for we are over-expanded. The day of concentration of wealth is gone, for we have come to the end of an era of expansion."

By inference he approved the present governmental plan of public work projects when he said that the government must expect to provide projects for unemployed. He urged a national old age pension plan, a national unemployment insurance scheme, public ownership of utilities and the rehabilitation of workers in order to raise the purchasing power of the country.

Against Dollar Devaluation.

As he finished, Senator LaFollette conducted a forum during which he answered many questions hurled at him. Among his answers he declared against further devaluation of the dollar, against a sales tax, and for higher income and inheritance taxes. Communism and Socialism held out no hope, he said.

Physically he is a little fellow, mentally he is agile and after hearing him through not even the most conservative could deny the soundness of most of his views. His lecture was a mental stimulant and it is to be regretted that the auditorium was not filled to capacity.

O. P. Brown of the W. & J. alumni opened the meeting and introduced President Ralph Cooper Hutchison of W. & J., who in turn introduced Senator LaFollette. The proceeds of the lecture and also those of the Mark Sullivan lecture to be held later, will be used to found scholarships for worthy men students.

clearly before them, and provided the executive with the assurance that the states would be behind him in his program.

Mr. Roosevelt approved the idea behind the work that the governors intend to do in forming the southeastern development board for the carrying out of an economic plan for the southeast. He suggested a grouping of states in various portions of the country for cooperative solution of common problems.

The meeting with the governors gave the president an opportunity for a frank, informal discussion of the unemployment insurance program which he has long sought. He did not ask for any sort of a vote on unemployment insurance, but did sound out the visitors in a conversational way.

Preparing Program.

States must, in the last analysis, decide the question of unemployment insurance. The president's plan will call for enactment of state unemployment insurance laws, and the talk with the governors of the southeast provided a "laboratory" of sorts where the executive could determine just how the idea will be received. Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he intends to draft a model law after which he hopes all states will pattern their state laws. The apparent reactions to this proposal, it was said, were favorable to the presidential idea.

In connection with relief the president told his callers that he was whipping the program into shape as speedily as practically possible. Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins will come here for a conference before the president leaves, and the two will begin the work of actually shaping the program.

marked by such episodes as "turning in" a host who served liquor at a banquet in his honor, accusing Mussolini in the death of a baby, and being shut off on the air in the middle of a speech for dubious language.

Besides the men he mentioned in his testimony before the committee, there was a report that he had told friends in Philadelphia the dictator of the new fascist government was to be General Hugh S. Johnson.

When General Johnson learned of this, he barked:

"He'd better be pretty damn careful. Nobody said a word to me about anything of this kind, and if they did I'd throw them out of the window. I know nothing about it."

No Comment from President

There was no official comment from President Roosevelt, who is in Warm Springs, Ga., but it is known that when he heard of the "conspiracy" which was to relieve him of his job he laughed:

"Fantastic!"

In Wahsington the charges were at first greeted with derision, but as the scope of the testimony became known officials of the War Department boiled with anger.

The substance of Butler charges was substantially:

That MacGuire, employe of the financial firm of Grayson M.-P. Murphy, had asked him to organize war veterans into a fascist army with dues of $1 a year.

That MacGuire arranged a meeting between Robert Sterling Clark, financier, regarding a speech urging that America remain on the gold standard—a speech which it was hoped Butler would deliver before the Chicago American Legion convention.

That if Butler rejected the offer to lead the fascist army the command would be offered to General Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff, or to Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion.

According to Butler's testimony as made public, it was hoped that President Roosevelt would "go along" as the king of Italy did with Mussolini. And if he did not he and the vice president would be forced to resign after appointing a new secretary of state, who would succeed to the Presidency and become "dictator".

Butler was also quoted as saying that MacGuire had tossed $18,000 in 18 bills on the bed of the general's room in a Newark hotel to "pay his expenses" in Chicago if he agreed to make the "gold standard" speech.

He also said that MacGuire showed him a bankbook with deposits of $64,000 to "take care of expenses" in Chicago.

MacGuire, denying all the charges, insisted he had never talked to Butler about anything but the need for an adequate military force and world affairs in general. He said:

"It's a joke—a publicity stunt. I know nothing about it. The matter is made out of whole cloth. I deny the story completely."

A. T. & T. Declares $2.25 Dividend

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. directors today declared the regular dividend of $2.25 a share on the common stock, continuing the unbroken dividend record throughout the depression.

This action came after some apprehension in Wall Street, particularly in view of the beginning of the sweeping federal investigation into the company's affairs.

The fears had led to the heavy selling of the stock several days ago which drove it down to only a fraction above par, the lowest level since the banking holiday last year. The stock recovered in the last few days, and ruled around $105 a share.

Tells Why Japan Denounces Treaty

WANTS NAVY SIZE OF ENGLAND-U. S.

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)

TOKYO, Nov. 21.—In one of the clearest expositions of Japanese foreign policy ever made, the Japanese government, in an exclusive statement to International News Service, today outlined its reasons for denunciation of the Washington naval treaty.

An official spokesman declared emphatically Japan has no intention of attempting to outstrip Great Britain or the United States in a naval building race, but at the same time sought to dispose of America's claims to a larger navy than that of Japan on the grounds of coastal defense.

Unfair Argument

"To say that the United States has two long coastlines to guard and Japan only one is an unfair argument," the spokesman declared. "Such measurements cannot be used as a yardstick to determine the size and strength of navies.

"The trade routes of America and Britain parallel those of Japan. We buy enormous quantities of raw products for manufacturing and huge amounts of foodstuffs for consumption.

"To balance these purchases, we must ship manufactured goods for foreign markets, making commerce a vital point in our existence and power. We must be assured of clear trade lanes. Our merchantmen operate regular worldwide services."

Reports Denied

The spokesman, whose views are clearly those of the navy department and thus of the government itself, denied Japan was demanding numerical or quantitative parity with the United States, and attributed reports to this effect to propogandists seeking to disturb the talks now under way in London.

Such a specific demand, he pointed out, would be entirely contrary to Japan's iron-clad intention to do no more than remove what is considered an unsatisfactory state of affairs resulting from the Washington treaty.

Hope For Failure

Some high naval officials, International News Service learned, are hopeful no new treaty at all will be formulated to replace the Washington Pact.

They openly express the hope the forthcoming naval conference will fail, allowing the Japanese delegates to return and that the public will believe the powers have misunderstood Japan's aims.

Four Of Crew Lost

The last message from the Reiss ship read:

"The Franz sank 17 and one-half miles east and south of Sturgeon Point about 30 miles from Thunder Bay, four members of the Franz crew were lost, the rest being picked up by the Loomis. The Loomis, badly damaged, is proceeding, although the forecastle is flooded with four feet of water."

The Loomis was in charge of Capt. A. J. McKenzie, of Buffalo, with Harry Flaherty, also of Buffalo, as chief engineer.

"Unable to communicate very well with the Loomis. The ship is badly damaged. Unable to learn names of lost men."

The Loomis has no radio.

Loomis Sinking.

Harbor Beach, Mich., Nov. 21—The steamship Loomis, badly damaged in a collision which sank the freighter W. C. Franz, this morning, was reported in a sinking condition eight miles off Harbor Beach this afternoon.

All available coast guard forces were sent to the ship's aid.

The Loomis, with a huge gash in her bow, was carrying the survivors of the Franz's crew. Four sailors went down with the Franz. Captain A. J. McKenzie, master of the Loomis, had attempted to reach port under his own power.

court or Governor George White which would save him from the death penalty.

"No Pen for Me"

"No pen for me," Martin declared calmly. "I'd rather take it now, because if I got out I'd have to face trial for the Bellefonte, Pa., jailbreak and robbery, and after that the Penn's Grove, N. J., payroll job—it would mean jail forever."

After sentence was pronounced and the execution date set, Martin thanked Prosecutor George Secrest and his own attorneys for the "fair trial".

Martin was convicted a week ago by a Trumbull county common pleas jury on charges of first degree murder in the fatal shooting last August of Charles Campbell, Denver railroader and World War veteran. While held here he escaped once, was recaptured, was identified as the New Jersey payroll robber and Pennsylvania fugitive. Part of the New Jersey loot was found in his possession.

Tells Kiwanians Of Foreign Trade Life

Relating his own experiences of almost a decade of service as a trade ambassador for an American firm, George C. Ferver of Youngstown, for nine years a representative of the Truscon Steel Company at Tokio, Japan, now back home, thrilled the Kiwanis Club at The Castleton today as he spoke on "A Man in Foreign Trade".

Mr. Ferver was introduced by Hans N. Drio.

"Outside of glancing at statistics of foreign trade," declared Mr. Ferver, who went through Japan's earthquake of September, 1923, "we don't pay much attention to foreign business. When you look at figures in the papers—when you see a dollar mentioned in a report of some sales abroad—remember that every dollar represents a sales effort by some man."

The club was told of the fraternal feeling that develops between American men in service in foreign lands and of the romantic side of it. The fascination that grips the men was termed just as strong as any that holds men to jobs of certain types at home.

Mr. Ferver returned from Tokio in the fall of 1932.

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

BROKER DENIES GEN. BUTLER'S CHARGES

Threatens Action On Libel Basis

ROBT. S. CLARK REFUTES CHARGES

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Robert Sterling Clark, New York broker candidly told International News Service today that he had "strongly urged" Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler "to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation," but he flatly denied allegations that he had sponsored an American fascist movement."

Threatening to take action against General Butler "for any libels which may have been committed," Clark expressed complete mystification concerning the general's charges that a Fascist coup was plotted.

"If anyone is Anti-Fascist, I am," Clark said. "I am just as opposed to Fascism as I am Communism."

He is here partially for his health, but he said he would willingly return to the United States if at any time congress wanted to question him in connection with Gen. Butler's story.

Can't Believe It

"I heard of General Butler's charges for the first time this morning, when I read the Paris newspapers," Clark said.

"I just can't believe it!

"Why, General Butler and I were in the army together in China, when we marched on Pekin during the Boxer rebellion.

"I was a guest in his home about a year ago. Then I urged him strongly to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation. I was and still am opposed to dollar inflation or inflation of any form."

This apparently was the visit that Gen. Butler referred to when he said that Clark had offered him money to go to Chicago and make a gold standard speech. Any offer of money was emphatically denied by Clark.

He came to Europe with a business agent, Albert G. Christmas, Clark said, and "I instructed Christmas to work against inflation.

"I am sending Christmas back to the United States immediately with full authority to act for redress of any libels which may have been committed."

Final Accounting In Harmony Co. Case Is Approved

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—A final receiver's accounting which shows a cash balance of $3,019.64 for the defunct Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler & New Castle Railway Co., was approved and filed in federal district court here today.

Cash on hand as of Oct. 4 for the Pittsburgh, Mars & Butler Railway Co., was revealed as $270.49 in a final accounting filed by Maurice Scharff, receiver for both lines.

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, in confirming the accountings, said they would be confirmed absolutely within 15 days if no exceptions were filed.

Charges to the former New Castle interurban line from July 30, 1932, to Aug. 21, 1934, were $137,963.92 while disbursements for the same period totalled $134,944.28, leaving a balance of $3,019.64.

The meeting with the governors gave the president an opportunity for a frank, informal discussion of the unemployment insurance program which he has long sought. He did not ask for any sort of a vote on unemployment insurance, but did sound out the visitors in a conversational way.

Preparing Program.

States must, in the last analysis, decide the question of unemployment insurance. The president's plan will call for enactment of state unemployment insurance laws, and the talk with the governors of the southeast provided a "laboratory" of sorts where the executive could determine just how the idea will be received. Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he intends to draft a model law after which he hopes all states will pattern their state laws. The apparent reactions to this proposal, it was said, were favorable to the presidential idea.

In connection with relief the president told his callers that he was whipping the program into shape as speedily as practically possible. Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins will come here for a conference before the president leaves, and the two will begin the work of actually shaping the program.

marked by such episodes as "turning in" a host who served liquor at a banquet in his honor, accusing Mussolini in the death of a baby, and being shut off on the air in the middle of a speech for dubious language.

Besides the men he mentioned in his testimony before the committee, there was a report that he had told friends in Philadelphia the dictator of the new fascist government was to be General Hugh S. Johnson.

When General Johnson learned of this, he barked:

"He'd better be pretty damn careful. Nobody said a word to me about anything of this kind, and if they did I'd throw them out of the window. I know nothing about it."

No Comment from President

There was no official comment from President Roosevelt, who is in Warm Springs, Ga., but it is known that when he heard of the "conspiracy" which was to relieve him of his job he laughed:

"Fantastic!"

In Wahsington the charges were at first greeted with derision, but as the scope of the testimony became known officials of the War Department boiled with anger.

The substance of Butler charges was substantially:

That MacGuire, employe of the financial firm of Grayson M.-P. Murphy, had asked him to organize war veterans into a fascist army with dues of $1 a year.

That MacGuire arranged a meeting between Robert Sterling Clark, financier, regarding a speech urging that America remain on the gold standard—a speech which it was hoped Butler would deliver before the Chicago American Legion convention.

That if Butler rejected the offer to lead the fascist army the command would be offered to General Douglas MacArthur, army chief of staff, or to Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion.

According to Butler's testimony as made public, it was hoped that President Roosevelt would "go along" as the king of Italy did with Mussolini. And if he did not he and the vice president would be forced to resign after appointing a new secretary of state, who would succeed to the Presidency and become "dictator".

Butler was also quoted as saying that MacGuire had tossed $18,000 in 18 bills on the bed of the general's room in a Newark hotel to "pay his expenses" in Chicago if he agreed to make the "gold standard" speech.

He also said that MacGuire showed him a bankbook with deposits of $64,000 to "take care of expenses" in Chicago.

MacGuire, denying all the charges, insisted he had never talked to Butler about anything but the need for an adequate military force and world affairs in general. He said:

"It's a joke—a publicity stunt. I know nothing about it. The matter is made out of whole cloth. I deny the story completely."

A. T. & T. Declares $2.25 Dividend

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. directors today declared the regular dividend of $2.25 a share on the common stock, continuing the unbroken dividend record throughout the depression.

This action came after some apprehension in Wall Street, particularly in view of the beginning of the sweeping federal investigation into the company's affairs.

The fears had led to the heavy selling of the stock several days ago which drove it down to only a fraction above par, the lowest level since the banking holiday last year. The stock recovered in the last few days, and ruled around $105 a share.

Tells Why Japan Denounces Treaty

WANTS NAVY SIZE OF ENGLAND-U. S.

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, By International News Service)

TOKYO, Nov. 21.—In one of the clearest expositions of Japanese foreign policy ever made, the Japanese government, in an exclusive statement to International News Service, today outlined its reasons for denunciation of the Washington naval treaty.

An official spokesman declared emphatically Japan has no intention of attempting to outstrip Great Britain or the United States in a naval building race, but at the same time sought to dispose of America's claims to a larger navy than that of Japan on the grounds of coastal defense.

Unfair Argument

"To say that the United States has two long coastlines to guard and Japan only one is an unfair argument," the spokesman declared. "Such measurements cannot be used as a yardstick to determine the size and strength of navies.

"The trade routes of America and Britain parallel those of Japan. We buy enormous quantities of raw products for manufacturing and huge amounts of foodstuffs for consumption.

"To balance these purchases, we must ship manufactured goods for foreign markets, making commerce a vital point in our existence and power. We must be assured of clear trade lanes. Our merchantmen operate regular worldwide services."

Reports Denied

The spokesman, whose views are clearly those of the navy department and thus of the government itself, denied Japan was demanding numerical or quantitative parity with the United States, and attributed reports to this effect to propogandists seeking to disturb the talks now under way in London.

Such a specific demand, he pointed out, would be entirely contrary to Japan's iron-clad intention to do no more than remove what is considered an unsatisfactory state of affairs resulting from the Washington treaty.

Hope For Failure

Some high naval officials, International News Service learned, are hopeful no new treaty at all will be formulated to replace the Washington Pact.

They openly express the hope the forthcoming naval conference will fail, allowing the Japanese delegates to return and that the public will believe the powers have misunderstood Japan's aims.

Arrives In England

(International News Service)

Dover, Eng., Nov. 21.—After a fast trip from France despite fog and rough water, Princess Marina of Greece arrived in England this afternoon for her marriage to the Duke of Kent.

The duke met his financee at the pier. Princess Marina had made the journey from Calais abroad the channel steamer Canterbury, which was gaily decorated with flags and flowers.

Deaths of the Day

Mrs. Paulina Krueger Meehan

Mrs. Paulina Albertina Krueger Meehan, aged 80, widow of James Meehan, 246 Smithfield street, died at 9:30 this morning in her home after an illness incident to her age.

She was born in Ossowa, Prussia, May 30, 1854 and came to New Castle in 1899. She was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

She is survived by three children: Mrs. W. J. McClellan, Greenville; Joseph Krueger and Herbert Krueger of this city; and four step-children: C. G. Krueger, E. H. Krueger, Mrs. August Arnold, of New Castle, and Mrs. F. W. Pond, Cleveland, Ohio.

Funeral services will be held Friday, November 23, at 2:30 p. m. from the home, 246 Smithfield street, with the Rev. A. M. Stump officiating. Interment will be made in Greenwood cemetery.

FOUR MEMBERS OF FREIGHTER'S CREW LOST WITH BOAT

Four Of Crew Lost

The last message from the Reiss ship read:

"The Franz sank 17 and one-half miles east and south of Sturgeon Point about 30 miles from Thunder Bay, four members of the Franz' crew were lost, the rest being picked up by the Loomis. The Loomis, badly damaged, is proceeding, although the forecastle is flooded with four feet of water."

The Loomis was in charge of Capt. A. J. McKenzie, of Buffalo, with Harry Flaherty, also of Buffalo, as chief engineer.

"Unable to communicate very well with the Loomis. The ship is badly damaged. Unable to learn names of lost men."

The Loomis has no radio.

Loomis Sinking.

Harbor Beach, Mich., Nov. 21—The steamship Loomis, badly damaged in a collision which sank the freighter W. C. Franz, this morning, was reported in a sinking condition eight miles off Harbor Beach this afternoon.

All available coast guard forces were sent to the ship's aid.

The Loomis, with a huge gash in her bow, was carrying the survivors of the Franz's crew. Four sailors went down with the Franz. Captain A. J. McKenzie, master of the Loomis, had attempted to reach port under his own power.

court or Governor George White which would save him from the death penalty.

"No Pen for Me"

"No pen for me," Martin declared calmly. "I'd rather take it now, because if I got out I'd have to face trial for the Bellefonte, Pa., jailbreak and robbery, and after that the Penn's Grove, N. J., payroll job—it would mean jail forever."

After sentence was pronounced and the execution date set, Martin thanked Prosecutor George Secrest and his own attorneys for the "fair trial".

Martin was convicted a week ago by a Trumbull county common pleas jury on charges of first degree murder in the fatal shooting last August of Charles Campbell, Denver railroader and World War veteran. While held here he escaped once, was recaptured, was identified as the New Jersey payroll robber and Pennsylvania fugitive. Part of the New Jersey loot was found in his possession.

Tells Kiwanians Of Foreign Trade Life

Relating his own experiences of almost a decade of service as a trade ambassador for an American firm, George C. Ferver of Youngstown, for nine years a representative of the Truscon Steel Company at Tokio, Japan, now back home, thrilled the Kiwanis Club at The Castleton today as he spoke on "A Man in Foreign Trade".

Mr. Ferver was introduced by Hans N. Drio.

"Outside of glancing at statistics of foreign trade," declared Mr. Ferver, who went through Japan's earthquake of September, 1923, "we don't pay much attention to foreign business. When you look at figures in the papers—when you see a dollar mentioned in a report of some sales abroad—remember that every dollar represents a sales effort by some man."

The club was told of the fraternal feeling that develops between American men in service in foreign lands and of the romantic side of it. The fascination that grips the men was termed just as strong as any that holds men to jobs of certain types at home.

Mr. Ferver returned from Tokio in the fall of 1932.

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

JR. B. P. W. DINNER TUESDAY ENJOYABLE

A party of Tuesday evening that was bubbling over with zest and pep was the "Progressive Dinner" event given by members of the Junior B. P. W. club, which attracted thirty-two enthusiastic young ladies, two of whom were special guests, the Misses Harriet Truby and Marjorie Milholland.

The occasion was a decided success, and was due to the cordial hospitality extended by each of the hostesses, who were Virginia Hickok, Geraldine McClelland, Mae Cromie and Lucille Emery, each carrying out her part of the program in a most gracious manner.

At 6:30 o'clock, the girls gathered at the Hickok home on Wilmington avenue where they were served a refreshing first course; from there, they motored to the McClelland residence on Croton avenue. Here the main course was served by the hostess, aided by her mother, Mrs. Charles McClelland. Janet Waddell, Lois Biggins and Sylvia Lee Martin. After partaking of the delicious and bountiful repast, the guests of cars motored out to the home of Mae Cromie on the Harlansburg road, where the dessert was served a tasty, delight salad. She was assisted by Carrie Wharton and Alice Mae Huffman.

The dessert which was most tempting, was served at the home of the president of the organization, Lucille Emery, on Lutes avenue. She had as her aides, her mother, Mrs. W. C. Emery, and Grace Sankey. The balance of the evening was spent at the latter place, and informal diversions were enjoyed.

The reservations were in charge of Dorothy Boyles and Virginia Conover.

Before adjournment, announcement was made that Executive Board members will meet Monday evening, promptly at 6:15 o'clock, in the home of Grace Sankey on Albert street, for an important session.

Past Chiefs Club

Mrs. Jennie Drumm, North Mill street, entertained the members of the Past Chiefs club in her home Tuesday evening, but was greatly surprised when the party turned out to be a housewarming, with a shower of useful gifts for her.

Games and music featured the evening, with Mrs. Tillie Hartman winning the prize. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Drumm and Miss Ethel Douglass.

YOUNGER GIRLS ATTEND COLLEGE HOUSE PARTIES

House parties at the various colleges are being included, this winter, in the round of gaiety for many of the younger set.

Over the week-end, Miss Layte Wheeler, was at Bethlehem, Pa., attending a house party given by Lehigh students. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wheeler drove up later, to Pittsburgh, and she returned with them.

At Penn State, other local girls were at another house party, Miss Becky Carson of Wallace avenue, who is attending Temple University this year, and Miss Joan Veach, of Youngstown, who spends much of her time in New Castle during vacation time.

LUNCHEON-BRIDGE AT FIELD CLUB

Mrs. James D. Crawford and Miss Jean Donnelly were hostesses for the Dutch luncheon-bridge at the Field club Tuesday at 1 o'clock.

After enjoying an appetizing menu the 12 guests had a keen contract competition, with the awards going to Mrs. Fred A. Glenn, Mrs. Thomas G. Lamoree and Mrs. John Ray Preston.

For the next affair in two weeks, Mrs. Joseph A. Green and Mrs. Fred A. Glenn will be hostesses.

Queen Esthers Meet

Miss Neva Moore presided over the November meeting of the Queen Esther Auxiliary of the First Methodist church, Tuesday evening when 45 members assembled in the church. Mrs. Vernor Bright had the opening devotionals.

Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held December 18, with an exchange of gifts. Miss Adeline Marshall was appointed to take charge of packing a Christmas box for the Ruth M. Smith Home.

Miss Barbara Boyd gave an interesting reading and Mrs. C. S. Hart gave a report of the W. H. M. convention at Jamestown, N. Y.

Miss Verne Cloak and Miss Mary Emery were special guests.

Concluding the program the members were invited to the church dining room where each place at long tables was marked with a turkey favor. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. L. Fink, Mrs. Ralph Reed, Mrs. Jessie Cunningham, Miss Hester Heiner, Miss Mary Alice White, Miss Ethel Pollard, Mrs. J. D. McClelland and Mrs. Victor Hoye.

"PEPPY DOZEN" NAME NEW ORGANIZATION

Peppy Dozen is the name of a new club, organized Tuesday evening, in the home of Mrs. Arthur Martin, Hillcrest avenue, that assembled for a dinner at 6, and an evening of bridge.

Mrs. M. Horchler was a visitor and those fortunate at cards were Mrs. S. Nelson and Mrs. B. Allgier. Names were exchanged for gifts, which will be exchanged at a Christmas party to be held in the home of Mrs. Paul Burrows, on Morton street, December 13.

The group includes Mrs. Arthur Martin, Mrs. Harry Sturdevant, Mrs. Paul Burrows, Mrs. Marie Stillwagon, Mrs. Glenn Moore, Mrs. William Joyce, Mrs. William Allgier, Mrs. R. L. Nelson, Mrs. Norman Freeborne, Mrs. Frank Schnider, Mrs. G. W. Conway, the latter of Monroe street. Another member will be taken in at the next meeting.

TUESDAY BRIDGE AFTERNOON MEET

Members of the Tuesday Bridge club were pleasantly entertained yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Ivan Holsinger, Edgewood avenue. Special guests who shared, included Mrs. Norman Freeborne, Mrs. Iver Carlson and Mrs. Edward Rainey, the former being awarded the hostess gift.

Cards contests featured the hours, and at conclusion, the honors scores were held by Mrs. A. C. Miller and Mrs. Frank Taylor for which they were presented with lovely prizes. The tallies, the work of the hostess, were cleverly carried out in novel cartoons of the everyday comics. Each found their corresponding partner, such as "Maggie and Jiggs."

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Joseph Lindsey, hostess, the date and place to be decided.

A. O. T. Bridge Club.

Members of the A. O. T. Bridge club were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clingensmith on Eighth street last evening. Two tables of bridge were in play, scoring honors going to Harry Carlson and Mrs. Harry Davies.

Later in the evening the hostess was assisted in serving delicious refreshments by her sister, Mrs. Harry Davies, who was a special guest of the evening.

The place of the next meeting will be announced later.

Pal Party at Church

The members of the Christian Endeavor of the Central Presbyterian church enjoyed a "pal party" in the church Monday evening, with 27 present.

After a short business meeting Misses Geraldine Fry, Viola Maxwell and Martha Swisher directed a period of "pal" games, after which refreshments were served.

There were a number of special guests present.

1932 Club

Mrs. Jessie Camblin, 318 North Beaver street, will entertain the members of the 1932 club in her home Thursday afternoon.

MRS. ECKENROAD NEW DISTRICT CHAIRMAN

Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad, of Fairfield avenue, will support Mrs. S. D. Pearson, Moody avenue, in the department of conservation and gardens, Federation of Women's clubs, this season, Mrs. Richard B. Perry, new president of the Southwestern district, making the appointment at the district meeting held in Pittsburgh, yesterday, at which many local club women were present.

By way of innovation, this year, Mrs. Perry introduced junior vice chairmen, for all major departments. Several prominent women were named to fill these newly created offices.

Junior clubs will receive the same services from the Federation, as the Senior groups. At the district meet appointments were announced of other officers: Mrs. Arthur Texter, Wilkinsburg, chairman department of public welfare; Mrs. C. C. Taylor, former state chairman of the division of work for the blind, chairman of education; with Miss Elizabeth Hamilton of the Wilkinsburg Juniors, to assist.

Mrs. Ernest Waltz, Washington, Pa., will support Mrs. Denman in the legislative field, with Bessie Kann Sacks, the junior appointment. Miss Florence Wallace, Indiana, has accepted the post of citizenship chairman and she will be assisted by Miss Emily Wilson, of the Carnegie Juniors.

Mrs. Walter C. Montgomery, Waynesburg, will head the Home department and Mrs. Samuel Cuthbert will continue as motion picture chairman, with Mrs. Ruth Baxter Hill, New Kensington, to assist. Mrs. J. Charles Runk, will direct music and drama as chairman of the department of fine arts with Mrs. I. H. Milliken, Aspinwall, chairman of literature.

Club institutes will be managed by Mrs. T. M. Stahlman and clubs can now receive help with their program planning from Mrs. E. L. Thomssen, former district publicity chairman.

The morning session was featured by an excellent talk by Mrs. S. D. Pearson, who outlined practical suggestions on Christmas decorations and table appointments. She also conducted a contest in which house plants were named, the plants becoming the property of the winning contestants.

Local club women attending the district meeting were: Mrs. A. P. Treser, president Lawrence County federation ,Mrs. S. D. Pearson, Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad, Mrs. S. M. Matheny, Mrs. George White, Mrs. C. A. Ingals, Mrs. John A. McNeill, Mrs. Ralph S. Reed, Mrs. George W. Short, Mrs. Joseph Pyle, Mrs. Louis H. Gordon, Mrs. Howard H. Beck, Mrs. W. H. Shipler, Mrs. Harry Marshall, Sr., Mrs. John Butler, Mrs. John L. Emery, Mrs. J. A. Sechler.

Auxiliary Party.

There was a large crowd present the card and bingo party of the ladies auxiliary of the Harry L. McBride post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the Legion Home last evening.

High score honors in 500 were awarded Mrs. Jesse Cox, Mrs. Reba LaRue, J. P. Turney and E. B. Cummins. Mrs. Shook and Mrs. Shaffer won the bingo awards, while special bingo prizes went to Mrs. Mary Cox, Clarence A. Leslie, A. F. Miller, Mary McLafferty, Jack LaRue, Clarence Conner, Audrey McLafferty and Hermine Rook.

Another party will take place on December 12 with Mrs. Adella Evans as chairlady, who will name her assistants later.

Later in the evening, lunch was served by the kitchen committee of the auxiliary, composed of Elsie Lach, Sarah McLafferty, Hermine Rook and Rebecca Strong.

The committee in charge of last evening's successful party was Etta Keelen, chairlady; Louise Evans, Mabel Kennedy and Viola Ryhal.

Birthday Party

A birthday party was held on the evening of November 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nastel, on Hanna street, to honor their daughter Wanda, who was 18 years of age.

The twenty guests had an enjoyable time with games and dancing, and at midnight, an elegant lunch was served. The honored one received many beautiful gifts. Among the guests were several out of town, including Laura Yakicla, Tarentum; Joseph Alles, Stanley Gargash, Beaver County; Alex and Jack Rzeczek, John Gargash, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barczek, Volant.

Rainbow Girls

Tuesday evening many master masons and Eastern Star members attended the initiatory ceremonies of the Rainbow Girls, when Miss Isabelle Shaw, worthy advisor, and her corps of officers, initiated 5 candidates into the order.

There were special guests present from Beaver Falls and at close of the ceremonies the advisory board invited all to the dining room of the cathedral, where a lunch was served, the long tables being appointed in orange and brown, the Thanksgiving colors.

Kard Klub

An enjoyable gathering of Kard Klub associates was held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dora Broadus, on Fourth street. Mrs. Charles Hammond and Mrs. Arthur Scott won card trophies and a dainty lunch was served. Mrs. Maude Wagner, of Youngstown, who is a club member, attended from out of town.

DINNER PROGRAM FOR SERVICE STAR

A meeting deeply suggestive of the Thanksgiving season was that of the Service Star Legion Tuesday evening when they began their activities with a delicious tureen dinner in the home of Mrs. Sarah Thomas, East Washington street.

Mrs. Leona Smith was in charge of the program which followed, with Thanksgiving as its theme.

Mrs. Hattie Nowling gave a reading, "Thanksgiving Memory"; Mrs. Emma Clapie gave "Over the River and Far Away" and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller gave "A Garden Thanksgiving". Mrs. Smith gave the origin of Thanksgiving.

Concluding the program the women held a "hat sale" and much laughter ensued as they donned the chapeaux they had bought. Bingo then whiled away a period, with Mrs. Leona Smith, Mrs. Hattie Nowling and Mrs. Fanny Wooley winning the prizes.

The December 4 meeting will be in the home of Mrs. M. Hookway, 506 Electric street, with an election of officers featuring the business session.

Program At Meeting

A Thank Offering program was presented Tuesday evening by the members of the M. C. circle of the Third United Presbyterian church in the home of Mrs. D. M. Ritchie, South Mill street.

Mrs. Faye Minnick was leader for the evening; a poem on "Thankoffering was given by Mrs. G. Clement; Mrs. Sylvia Millison told how the Thank Offering originated and Irene McKibben spoke on "Our Thank Offering".

Mrs. M. B. Bates presided over the business period after which a social time was enjoyed, with the group visiting the Ritchie Mortuary.

Mrs. A. Kildoo assisted Mrs. Ritchie in serving refreshments.

Price-Junkin Wedding.

Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock in St. Joseph's church, the Rev. Fr. J. A. Doerr performed the ceremony which united Miss Emily Price, of North Beaver street, and Edward Junkin of Mercer in marriage.

The couple was attended by the groom's brother, Joe Junkin, and Miss Helene Geary of Mercer.

NAOMI CIRCLE HAS DINNER MEETING

The dining room of the Highland United Presbyterian church presented a pretty picture Tuesday at one o'clock when the members of the Naomi Circle enjoyed a tureen luncheon, with places arranged for 45 at tables centered in the colorful baby mums of the season.

Concluding dinner Mrs. H. A. Donaldson conducted a business session after which the group was entertained by a one act play, presented by pupils of Miss Clara Hartsuff's class of Senior High School, with Doris Marvin as student director.

The play was "Just Once More" and the cast included Charles Dinsmore as the groom; Helen Bauman as the bride; Jack Muse as the best man; Billy Evans as the groomsman; Walter Conover as the father; Betty Cole as the mother and Kathleen Shuttleworth as the aunt.

Party For Guests

Piano selections were rendered by Miss Betty Lesnock, and foretelling of the future created much amusement. Various card games followed. Prizes being awarded to Helen Turkowitz, Henry and Stanley Krusa. After a period of dancing, an appetizing lunch was served by the hostesses assisted by Miss Ann Turkowitz.

Blazejewski-Mateja

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Frances Blazejewski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blazejewski, of Terrace avenue, to Chester Mateja of this city.

The license was secured in Mercer, Friday, November 16, the marriage taking place in Sharon, with Justice of the Peace Henry Elliott performing the ceremony.

CHOP SUEY SUPPER

Dinner Party

A dinner of lovely appointments, in yellow and white, held on November 16, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Weyrick, West Washington street, held a double significance for the participants, in that it was a post nuptial courtesy for their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Weyrick, a bride and groom of October 31, and also was an honor for Betty Weyrick, whose birthday occurred that day.

An elegant menu was served at the noon hour, covers being laid for nine at a large table centered with baby mums. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Domer Heckathorn, parents of the bride, who was Ruth Heckathorn, Jane Denako.

THEY ALL GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

BUSINESS GIRL. Eve Miller says: "I started to smoke Camels because I appreciate mildness and delicacy of flavor. I found, in addition, that Camels give me a 'lift' when my energy is low—and they never upset my nerves."

EXPLORER. Says Captain R. Stuart Murray: "Camels always give me a 'pick-up' in energy when I need it most. And I prefer Camel's flavor above all others!"

DRAFTSMAN: "When I get tired, Camels bring back the feeling of ease and mental alertness—that a draftsman needs to continue such exacting work," says Franklin Dominick. "And I smoke Camels constantly whether I'm working or not."

Hold Grace Moore Musical Show Over

Due to the insistent demand of the theatre goers and the fact that the Regent Theatre has been playing to crowded houses, "One Night of Love," starring Grace Moore, has been held over again for tonight and Thursday.

No musical play in years has caught the fancy of the public like this stellar picture has. It combines good music with entertainment, artistry with humor and is the complete show. Thursday night is the last night it will play the Regent. Missing it will mean missing the sweetest musical play the screen has seen.

JR. B. P. W. DINNER TUESDAY ENJOYABLE

A party of Tuesday evening that was bubbling over with zest and pep was the "Progressive Dinner" event given by members of the Junior B. P. W. club, which attracted thirty-two enthusiastic young ladies, two of whom were special guests, the Misses Harriet Truby and Marjorie Milholland.

The occasion was a decided success, and was due to the cordial hospitality extended by each of the hostesses, who were Virginia Hickok, Geraldine McClelland, Mac Cromie and Lucille Emery, each carrying out her part of the program in a most gracious manner.

At 6:30 o'clock, the girls gathered at the Hickok home on Wilmington avenue where they were served a refreshing first course; from there, they motored to the McClelland residence on Croton avenue. Here, the main course was served by the hostess, aided by her mother, Mrs. Charles McClelland. Janet Weddell, Lois Biggins and Sylvia Lee Martin. After partaking of the delicious and bountiful menu, the caravan of cars motored out to the home of Mac Cromie on the Harlansburg road, where the guests were served a tasty, crispy salad. She was assisted by Carrie Wharton and Alice Mae Huffman.

The dessert which was most tempting, was served at the home of the president of the organization, Lucille Emery, on Laurel avenue. She had as her aides, her mother, Mrs. W. C. Emery, and Grace Sankey. The balance of the evening was spent at the latter place, and informal diversions were enjoyed.

The reservations were in charge of Dorothy Boyles and Virginia Conover.

Before adjournment, announcement was made that Executive Board members will meet Monday evening, promptly at 6:15 o'clock, in the home of Grace Sankey on Albert street, for an important session.

Past Chiefs Club

Mrs. Jennie Drumm, North Mill street, entertained the members of the Past Chiefs club in her home Tuesday evening, but was greatly surprised when the party turned out to be a housewarming, with a shower of useful gifts for her.

Games and music featured the evening, with Mrs. Tillie Hartman winning the prize. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Drumm and Miss Ethel Douglass.

YOUNGER GIRLS ATTEND COLLEGE HOUSE PARTIES

House parties at the various colleges are being included, this winter, in the round of gaiety for many of the younger set.

Over the week-end, Miss Layte Wheeler, was at Bethlehem, Pa., attending a house party given by Lehigh students. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wheeler drove up later, to Pittsburgh, and she returned with them.

At Penn State, other local girls were at another house party, Miss Becky Carson of Wallace avenue, who is attending Temple University this year, and Miss Joan Veach, of Youngstown, who spends much of her time in New Castle during vacation time.

LUNCHEON-BRIDGE AT FIELD CLUB

Mrs. James D. Crawford and Miss Jean Donnelly were hostesses for the Dutch luncheon-bridge at the Field club Tuesday at 1 o'clock.

After enjoying an appetizing menu the 12 guests had a keen contract competition, with the awards going to Mrs. Fred A. Glenn, Mrs. Thomas G. Lamoree and Mrs. John Ray Preston.

For the next affair in two weeks, Mrs. Joseph A. Green and Mrs. Fred A. Glenn will be hostesses.

Queen Esthers Meet

Miss Neva Moore presided over the November meeting of the Queen Esther Auxiliary of the First Methodist church, Tuesday evening when 45 members assembled in the church. Mrs. Vennor Bright had the opening devotionals.

Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held December 18, with an exchange of gifts. Miss Adeline Marshall was appointed to take charge of packing a Christmas box for the Ruth M. Smith Home.

Miss Barbara Boyd gave an interesting reading and Mrs. C. S. Hart gave a report of the W. H. M. convention at Jamestown, N. Y.

Concluding the program the members were invited to the church dining room where each place at long tables was marked with a turkey favor. Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. L. Fink, Mrs. Ralph Reed, Mrs. Jessie Cunningham, Miss Hester Hainer, Miss Mary Alice White, Miss Ethel Pollard, Mrs. J. D. McClelland and Mrs. Victor Hoye.

"PEPPY DOZEN" NAME NEW ORGANIZATION

Peppy Dozen is the name of a new club, organized Tuesday evening, in the home of Mrs. Arthur Martin, Hillcrest avenue, that assembled for a dinner at 6, and an evening of bridge.

Mrs. M. Horchler was a visitor and those fortunate at cards were Mrs. S. Nelson and Mrs. B. Allgier. Names were exchanged for gifts, which will be exchanged at a Christmas party to be held in the home of Mrs. Paul Burrows, on Morton street, December 13.

The group includes Mrs. Arthur Martin, Mrs. Harry Sturdevant, Mrs. Paul Burrows, Mrs. Marie Stillwagon, Mrs. Glenn Moore, Mrs. William Joyce, Mrs. William Allgier, Mrs. R. L. Nelson, Mrs. Norman Freeborne, Mrs. Frank Schnider, Mrs. G. W. Conway, the latter of Monroe street. Another member will be taken in at the next meeting.

TUESDAY BRIDGE AFTERNOON MEET

Members of the Tuesday Bridge club were pleasantly entertained yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Ivan Holsinger, Edgewood avenue. Special guests who shared, included Mrs. Norman Freeborne, Mrs. Ivor Carlson and Mrs. Edward Rainey, the former being awarded the hostess gift.

Cards contests featured the hours and at conclusion, the honors scores were held by Mrs. A. C. Miller and Mrs. Frank Taylor for which they were presented with lovely prizes. The tallies, the work of the hostess, were cleverly carried out in novel cartoons of the everyday comics. Each found their corresponding partner, such as "Maggie and Jiggs."

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Joseph Lindsay, hostess, the date and place to be decided.

A. O. T. Bridge Club.

Members of the A. O. T. Bridge club were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clingensmith on Eighth street last evening. Two tables of bridge were in play, scoring honors going to Harry Carlson and Mrs. Harry Davies.

Later in the evening the hostess was assisted in serving delicious refreshments by her sister, Mrs. Harry Davies, who was a special guest of the evening.

The place of the next meeting will be announced later.

Pal Party at Church

After a short business meeting Misses Geraldine Fry, Viola Maxwell and Martha Swisher directed a period of "pal" games, after which refreshments were served.

There were a number of special guests present.

1932 Club

Mrs. Jessie Cambiln, 318 North Beaver street, will entertain the members of the 1932 club in her home Thursday afternoon.

MRS. ECKENROAD NEW DISTRICT CHAIRMAN

Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad, of Fairfield avenue, will support Mrs. S. D. Pearson, Moody avenue, in the department of conservation and gardens, Federation of Women's clubs, this season, Mrs. Richard B. Perry, new president of the Southwestern district, making the appointment at the district meeting held in Pittsburgh, yesterday, at which many local club women were present.

By way of innovation, this year, Mrs. Perry introduced junior vice chairmen, for all major departments. Several prominent women were named to fill these newly created offices.

Junior clubs will receive the same services from the Federation, as the Senior groups. At the district meet appointments were announced of other officers: Mrs. Arthur Texter, Wilkinsburg, chairman department of public welfare; Mrs. C. C. Taylor, former state chairman of the division of work for the blind, chairman of education; with Miss Elizabeth Hamilton of the Wilkinsburg Juniors, to assist.

Mrs. Ernest Waltz, Washington, Pa., will support Mrs. Denman in the legislative field, with Bessie Kann Sacks, the junior appointment. Miss Florence Wallace, Indiana, has accepted the post of citizenship chairman and she will be assisted by Miss Emily Wilson, of the Carnegie Juniors.

Mrs. Walter C. Montgomery, Waynesburg, will head the Home department and Mrs. Samuel Cuthbert will continue as motion picture chairman, with Mrs. Ruth Baxter Hill, New Kensington, to assist. Mrs. J. Charles Runk, will direct music and drama as chairman of the department of fine arts with Mrs. J. H. Milliken, Aspinwall, chairman of literature.

Club institutes will be managed by Mrs. T. M. Stahlman and clubs can now receive help with their program planning from Mrs. E. L. Thomssen, former district publicity chairman.

The morning session was featured by an excellent talk by Mrs. S. D. Pearson, who outlined practical suggestions on Christmas decorations and table appointments. She also conducted a contest in which house plants were named, the plants becoming the property of the winning contestants.

Local club women attending the district meeting were: Mrs. A. P. Treser, president Lowrence County federation, Mrs. S. D. Pearson, Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad, Mrs. S. M. Matheny, Mrs. George White, Mrs. C. Mrs. Shook and Mrs. Shaffer won the bingo awards, while special bingo prizes went to Mrs. Mary Cox, Clarence A. Leslie, A. F. Miller, Mary McLafferty, Jack LaRue, Clarence Conner, Audrey McLafferty and Hermine Rook.

Another party will take place on December 12 with Mrs. Adella Evans as chairlady, who will name her assistants later.

Later in the evening, lunch was served by the kitchen committee of the auxiliary, composed of Elsie Lach, Sarah McLafferty, Hermine Rook and Rebecca Strong.

The committee in charge of last evening's successful party was Etta Keelen, chairlady; Louise Evans, Mabel Kennedy and Viola Ryhal.

Birthday Party

A birthday party was held on the evening of November 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nastel, on Hanna street, to honor their daughter Wanda, who was 18 years of age.

The twenty guests had an enjoyable time with games and dancing, and at midnight, an elegant lunch was served. The honored one received many beautiful gifts. Among the guests were several out of town, including Laura Yakiela, Tarentum; Joseph Alles, Stanley Gargash, Beaver County; Alex and Jack Raczczek; John Gargash, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barczek, Volant.

Rainbow Girls

Tuesday evening many master masons and Eastern Star members attended the initiatory ceremonies of the Rainbow Girls, when Miss Isabelle Shaw, worthy advisor, and her corps of officers, initiated 5 candidates into the order.

There were special guests present from Beaver Falls and at close of the ceremonies the advisory board invited all to the dining room of the cathedral, where a lunch was served, the long tables being appointed in orange and brown, the Thanksgiving colors.

Kard Klub

An enjoyable gathering of Kard Klub associates was held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dora Broadus, on Fourth street. Mrs. Charles Hemmond and Mrs. Arthur Scott won card trophies and a dainty lunch was served. Mrs. Maude Wagner, of Youngstown, who is a club member, attended from out of town.

DINNER PROGRAM FOR SERVICE STAR

A meeting deeply suggestive of the Thanksgiving season was that of the Service Star Legion Tuesday evening when they began their activities with a delicious tureen dinner in the home of Mrs. Sarah Thomas, East Washington street.

Mrs. Leona Smith was in charge of the program which followed, with Thanksgiving as its theme.

Mrs. Hattie Nowling gave a reading, "Thanksgiving Memory"; Mrs. Emma Clapie gave "Over the River and Far Away" and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller gave "A Garden Thanksgiving". Mrs. Smith gave the origin of Thanksgiving.

Concluding the program the women held a "hat sale" and much laughter ensued as they donned the chapeaux they had bought. Bingo then whiled away a period, with Mrs. Leona Smith, Mrs. Hattie Nowling and Mrs. Fanny Wooley winning the prizes.

The December 4 meeting will be in the home of Mrs. M. Hookway, 506 Electric street, with an election of officers featuring the business session.

A. Ingals, Mrs. John A. McNeill, Mrs. Ralph S. Reed, Mrs. George W. Short, Mrs. Joseph Pyle, Mrs. Louis H. Gordon, Mrs. Howard H. Beck, Mrs. W. H. Shipler, Mrs. Harry Marshall, Sr., Mrs. John Butler, Mrs. John L. Emery, Mrs. J. A. Sechler.

Auxiliary Party.

There was a large crowd present the card and bingo party of the ladies auxiliary of the Harry L. McBride post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the Legion Home last evening.

High score honors in 500 were awarded Mrs. Jesse Cox, Mrs. Reba LaRue, J. P. Turney and E. B. Cummins. Mrs. Shook and Mrs. Shaffer won the bingo awards, while special bingo prizes went to Mrs. Mary Cox, Clarence A. Leslie, A. F. Miller, Mary McLafferty, Jack LaRue, Clarence Conner, Audrey McLafferty and Hermine Rook.

Another party will take place on December 12 with Mrs. Adella Evans as chairlady, who will name her assistants later.

Later in the evening, lunch was served by the kitchen committee of the auxiliary, composed of Elsie Lach, Sarah McLafferty, Hermine Rook and Rebecca Strong.

The committee in charge of last evening's successful party was Etta Keelen, chairlady; Louise Evans, Mabel Kennedy and Viola Ryhal.

Birthday Party

A birthday party was held on the evening of November 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nastel, on Hanna street, to honor their daughter Wanda, who was 18 years of age.

The twenty guests had an enjoyable time with games and dancing, and at midnight, an elegant lunch was served. The honored one received many beautiful gifts. Among the guests were several out of town, including Laura Yakiela, Tarentum; Joseph Alles, Stanley Gargash, Beaver County; Alex and Jack Rzeczek, John Gargash, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barczek, Volant.

Rainbow Girls

Tuesday evening many master masons and Eastern Star members attended the initiatory ceremonies of the Rainbow Girls, when Miss Isabelle Shaw, worthy advisor, and her corps of officers, initiated 5 candidates into the order.

There were special guests present from Beaver Falls and at close of the ceremonies the advisory board invited all to the dining room of the cathedral, where a lunch was served, the long tables being appointed in orange and brown, the Thanksgiving colors.

Kard Klub

An enjoyable gathering of Kard Klub associates was held Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dora Broadus, on Fourth street. Mrs. Charles Hammond and Mrs. Arthur Scott won card trophies and a dainty lunch was served. Mrs. Maude Wagner, of Youngstown, who is a club member, attended from out of town.

DINNER PROGRAM FOR SERVICE STAR

A meeting deeply suggestive of the Thanksgiving season was that of the Service Star Legion Tuesday evening when they began their activities with a delicious tureen dinner in the home of Mrs. Sarah Thomas, East Washington street.

Mrs. Leona Smith was in charge of the program which followed, with Thanksgiving as its theme.

Mrs. Hattie Nowling gave a reading, "Thanksgiving Memory"; Mrs. Emma Clapie gave "Over the River and Far Away" and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller gave "A Garden Thanksgiving". Mrs. Smith gave the origin of Thanksgiving.

Concluding the program the women held a "hat sale" and much laughter ensued as they donned the chapeaux they had bought. Bingo then whiled away a period, with Mrs. Leona Smith, Mrs. Hattie Nowling and Mrs. Fanny Wooley winning the prizes.

The December 4 meeting will be in the home of Mrs. M. Hookway, 506 Electric street, with an election of officers featuring the business session.

Program At Meeting

A Thank Offering program was presented Tuesday evening by the members of the M. C. circle of the Third United Presbyterian church in the home of Mrs. D. M. Ritchie, South Mill street.

Mrs. Faye Minnick was leader for the evening; a poem on "Thankoffering was given by Mrs. G. Clement; Mrs. Sylvia Millison told how the Thank Offering originated and Irene McKibben spoke on "Our Thank Offering".

Mrs. M. B. Bates presided over the business period after which a social time was enjoyed, with the group visiting the Ritchie Mortuary.

Mrs. A. Kildoo assisted Mrs. Ritchie in serving refreshments.

Price-Junkin Wedding.

Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock in St. Joseph's church, the Rev. Fr. J. A. Doerr performed the ceremony which united Miss Emily Price, of North Beaver street, and Edward Junkin of Mercer in marriage.

The couple was attended by the groom's brother, Joe Junkin, and Miss Helene Geary of Mercer.

NAOMI CIRCLE HAS DINNER MEETING

The dining room of the Highland United Presbyterian church presented a pretty picture Tuesday at one o'clock when the members of the Naomi Circle enjoyed a tureen luncheon, with places arranged for 45 at tables centered in the colorful baby mums of the season.

Concluding dinner Mrs. H. A. Donaldson conducted a business session after which the group was entertained by a one act play, presented by pupils of Miss Clara Hartsuff's class of Senior High School, with Doris Marvin as student director.

The play was "Just Once More" and the cast included Charles Dinsmore as the groom; Helen Bauman as the bride; Jack Muse as the best man; Billy Evans as the groomsman; Walter Conover as the father; Betty Cole as the mother and Kathleen Shuttleworth as the aunt.

Party For Guests

Piano selections were rendered by Miss Betty Lesnock, and foretelling of the future created much amusement. Various card games followed. Prizes being awarded to Helen Turkowitz, Henry and Stanley Krusa. After a period of dancing, an appetizing lunch was served by the hostesses assisted by Miss Ann Turkowitz.

Blazejewski-Mateja

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Frances Blazejewski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blazejewski, of Terrace avenue, to Chester Mateja of this city.

The license was secured in Mercer, Friday, November 16, the marriage taking place in Sharon, with Justice of the Peace Henry Elliott performing the ceremony.

Dinner Party

A dinner of lovely appointments, in yellow and white, held on November 18, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Weyrick, West Washington street, held a double significance for the participants, in that it was a post nuptial courtesy for their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Weyrick, a bride and groom of October 31, and also was an honor for Betty Weyrick, whose birthday occurred that day.

An elegant menu was served at the noon hour, covers being laid for nine at a large table centered with baby mums. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Domer Heckathorn, parents of the bride, who was Ruth Heckathorn, Jane Denako.

Hold Grace Moore Musical Show Over

Due to the insistent demand of the theatre goers and the fact that the Regent Theatre has been playing to crowded houses, "One Night of Love," starring Grace Moore, has been held over again for tonight and Thursday.

No musical play in years has caught the fancy of the public like this stellar picture has. It combines good music with entertainment, artistry with humor and is the complete show. Thursday night is the last night it will play the Regent. Missing it will mean missing the sweetest musical play the screen has seen.

ORGANIZING CONGRESS

THE Seventy-fourth congress is described as an embarrassment of riches for the administration. Good manners are not all that prevents Mr. Roosevelt from gloating over the huge congressional majority once more presented him. He has a real problem in keeping the illy assorted Democratic throng in order, and while it is believed he commands enough loyalty to prevent over-riding of any veto the president is determined to have upheld, a bloc-ridden and squabbling house is threatened again as when the Republicans last ruled.

Two things are counted upon to hold the house in control. One is a heavy legislative program, to keep the boys too busy to engage in experiments of their own and the other is the election of a firm-handed speaker. The first is the more dependable, for in the contest for a speaker the Democrats are already splitting into blocs, the North divided against the South, and each major division subdivided by group allegiances to region, personality and program. Such a state of affairs is naturally regrettable, but is the inevitable consequence of huge majorities. The fight cannot be averted. The hope must be that it will not leave bitterness and discord as its aftermath.

While the Democrats are having their organization troubles, so are the Republicans, with strong efforts indicated to wrest the minority leadership from veteran conservative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, and vest it in some more liberal Westerner, perhaps, who will be symbolic of the party as its heirs hope to reconstitute it. The Republicans have no strong master in the white house to dictate or suggest preferences.

The way the Democrats organize will have a bearing on the course of legislation for the next two years, but the way the Republicans line up will be more interesting to the student of government, for it will forecast the future of what the British call "the king's most loyal opposition."

COMPULSORY LIABILITY FOR MOTORISTS?

The usual Monday morning list of motor accidents stirs the inevitable query, what if anything can be done about it? Modernized and revised traffic laws help to prevent many tragedies, but they do not suffice. The human element has to be reckoned with, and it must be admitted that too many drivers are utterly lacking in a sense of responsibility. In scores of cases men guilty of maiming and killing others have no liability insurance. Police authorities and traffic experts agree that as a class such persons are the most reckless and dangerous.

Under the Pennsylvania law a motor driver may be involved in two accidents within a year, resulting in death, injuries or destruction of property, before proof of financial responsibility is made obligatory.

There is a question whether the time has not arrived when all drivers should be compelled to offer such evidence.

Would not compulsory public liability have the effect of reducing the number of accidents?

Is it not reasonable to assume that it would make more cautious many drivers who are now a menace?

THE PRESIDENT'S HEALTH

American people can be grateful that their president has the fortunate ability to relax under strain and take needed vacations from the routine of work at the White House.

President Roosevelt differs considerably from his predecessor in this respect. President Hoover worked long, hard hours and took very little recreation. As his work was increased with the advent of national depression he worked even harder and refused to take any real vacation.

With equal, if not greater, demand upon his time and energy, President Roosevelt has been able to continue the periodic recreations which he enjoyed before his election. He makes trips on the sea, visits distant points of the country and its possessions, retreats to Warm Springs and frequently returns to his home in New York.

The strain of the presidency is such that few men survive many years after they are out of office.

Their value while in the White House is increased by their ability to retain good health and keep themselves in good condition. It is a fortunate temperament that permits the president to enjoy these periods of relaxation.

SPREADING AUTO OUTPUT

Following so soon after President Roosevelt had questioned the effectiveness of a policy of fixing a minimum hourly or weekly wage as against insuring an annual wage that provided the minimum needs of the worker, the announcement of the General Motors Corporation of a change in its methods to spread output may be highly significant. It marks an important step in the direction of establishing a balance in economic mechanism which, through leveling the peaks and valleys of production, is the essential requisite to stable employment and, incidentally, maximum efficiency.

The seasonal factor in the sale of automobiles has been largely created by the policy of the industry in bringing out new models the first of the year. It has meant that the average prospect would not buy in the fall, with the result that sales volume in November and December, as Mr. Sloan, the General Motors president shows, is less than one-third that for April and May. The effect on employment is obvious extending through the industries supplying accessories and raw products.

The country is still waiting for Farley to redeem his promise of two-cent postage.

The average life of a horse is 12 years, due somewhat to the fact that he does not travel at 80 miles an hour on a wet highway.

Farley now says the postoffice department has found it can spend the money and will continue three-cent postage. So it was an election promise, Jim?

Seventy-one per cent of the C. C. N. Y. alumni asked for "humor" in the speeches to be given at a coming dinner. The missing 29 per cent are doubtless those who have been asked to speak at the dinner.

The Soviet government has appointed a board to study human nature, and the board will find, we firmly believe, that human nature is a mighty strange thing.

CARRY A SPARE!

Would you start out for Yellowstone Park without a spare tire on your car? Even if you had four new tires on the wheels of your car, would you start without a spare?

"Not me!" you say. "What makes you think I'd be so silly?"

Well, life's more important than an automobile tire, but too many of us don't carry a spare.

Because we don't carry a spare, when things go wrong we are out of luck. When we lose our money, we're finished. We have no consolation. We've trusted entirely to cash to pull us through, and when that goes, we have nothing left.

We place our happiness too much in the hands of other people. Our "popularity" is all that makes us happy. And if we lose the least shred of that popularity, we are miserable. We haven't a spare.

Or we depend entirely on health. We make a god of our strength, our fitness, and live as if we thought our vigorous youth would last forever. . . . It goes, we discover that we cannot do all those things we used to do so easily, and we think we've been badly treated.

We yearn toward One glittering vision and try to make that bright dream come true. It fails us because our powers are not equal to our aspirations. Our failure may not be our fault, but we Can't Stand It. We break down on the road and stand there hopelessly despairing, bewailing our luck.

In many ways we are like the reckless fellow who starts across the continent with no spare tire on his car. We take chances like that, and when the inevitable blowout comes—we don't know what to do and we wish we'd never been born.

We go it blind, we go it foolishly. We assume that the casual and temporary things that make life pleasant will last forever. We believe that the joys outside of ourselves will never die. We carry no spare of inner comfort, inner courage, inner understanding—and courage, inner understanding—and our hearts break before we reach the journey's end.

It is better, by far, to carry a spare.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

DOES YOUR BENEVOLENCE INTERFERE WITH YOUR PERSONAL COMFORT?

At times you are resentful because needy persons to whom you make gifts give evidence they are not enthusiastic over them.

Undoubtedly it is because you have tendered something they do not wish or need.

If a person needs food, he cannot appreciate something to wear.

If he needs medicine, a book case cannot take the place of something to help him physically.

Isn't it true that much of your charity is the giving of something that you do not want, regardless of whether it be suitable to the one upon whom you bestow your gift?

How often do you try to learn just what is most needed?

You fear it may be something you wish to retain. You fear it might mean more or less of a sacrifice on your part to give it away.

You are not prepared to sacrifice to make others happier or more content with life.

You like to be benevolent, so long as it does not interfere with your own ease or comfort.

So your charity means getting rid of things—there is nothing particularly praiseworthy about that.

TWO VIEWS OF A MAN

We have heard that men admired him
For his courage as a fighter
And the way, when burdens tired him,
He could grip them all the tighter.
For they paid such tributes to him
Which the outside world must render,
But the ones who loved him knew him
As a man whose heart was tender.

In the way men judge each other
Where the inner life is crusted
With the cares that fret and bother
He was one who could be trusted.
But they see with partial blindness
Now his loved ones miss his kindness
And his great heart, warm and tender.

Strange it seems that others raised him
To their topmost heights of glory,
But the deeds for which they praised him
Tell but partially the story.
For to those who loved him dearly
And to loneliness surrender,
He was more than honest merely.
He was patient, kind and tender.

Bible Thought For Today

Why it is that as soon as a man gets an auto license, or a marriage license, he tries, to see how much he can get away with.

Bulgaria has decided to cancel payments on her huge foreign debt, amounting to approximately a hundred and fifty millions of dollars, and is asking her creditors to make a study of her financial position. Sort of locking up the horse after the barn has been stolen, so to speak.

THOSE TAKING WAYS

She took my hand in sheltered nooks
She took my candy and my books
She took that lustrous wrap of fur.
She took the gloves I bought for her.
She took my word of love and care,
She took my flowers, rich and rare.
She took my time for quite a while.
She took my kisses—maid so shy,
She took, I confess, my eye.
She took whatever I would buy.
And then, she took the other guy!

Life was simpler in the old days. The poor didn't have to keep up an old second-hand horse.

The government's theory is that a shiftless illiterate will become industrious and smart if you start him off with enough debt.

If the banks are delaying recovery by refusing to lend, how come the RFC can't find any more borrowers?

NOT SO FAMILIAR

Husband—Who is that man?
Wife—I don't know.
Husband—But I heard you call him "darling."
Wife—Well, I merely called him "darling" because I did not know his name.

"Sandy, I'm very sorry to see you in this condition."
"Ah, weel, it's a' for the good o' the cause," replied the delinquent happily. "Ye see, meenister, its through these subscriptions. I've been through the parish collectin' funds, and at every house they made me hae a wee drappie."
"Every house? But surely Sandy, some of my people are teetotallers?"
"Aye, some are, but I wrote to them."

Many a forward girl insists on looking backwards now and then.

A Youngstown boy is going to have to spend his evenings at home for the next four months and will be put in jail if he is seen on the streets after nine o'clock. The boy was found with two bullet wounds, and told police he was shot by an unidentified man. About the same time, police fired at a marauder who got away from them. If the boy really has a criminal trend, four months is not punishment enough.

Doubtless marriage is called a "match" because a little friction can make an end of it.

Correct This Sentence: "I have too much self-respect," said the typical American, "to attend the funeral of a bandit."

Correct this sentence: "It's a good story," said the wife, "and I never get tired of hearing my husband tell it."

You can't satisfy people. When they're well fixed, the only difference is that they worry about smaller troubles.

Some boys would be on easy street if they spent just half as much time trying to pick up a little money as they waste trying to pick up girls.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Raymond Moley, called in oftenest as an adviser to President Roosevelt, is hinting to congress how it should behave. Congres, however, is likely to consider Moley too far to the right. Congress has to appease voters.

What is Moley recommending?

Moley has his say in Today magazine, of which he is editor.

Says he:

"The emergency before us requires quick expenditures, and in the selection of specific projects this must be the guiding principle. The building of great works which will be of permanent value to the nation is important; but the putting of men to work soon is more important."

That is O. K. with congress, and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes is doing a great job in selecting the works.

* * *

FOR BUSINESS

Moley continues:

"Every friend of public works expects the most scrupulous and painstaking effort to provide an accurate measure of the amount of employment that will be provided by a given expenditure."

That is a statement made for business men. It serves no purpose for congress—and not much among the mass. Every district finds itself in need of public works.

* * *

Moley proceeds to reassure business:

"The revival of private business is the ultimate goal of public works expenditures. Hence, the private capital market must open freely and soon. . . . In the light of all that business has said as to the restricting effects of the securities act on private spending, this adjustment gives the public the right to expect immediate and comprehensive action by business. Bank lending is improving, but renewed efforts are in order to break the impasse between borrowers, banks and federal examiners."

Congress (beg pardon) is likely to consider all that largely chatter.

Moley is stating an opinion—undoubtedly the opinion of the Roosevelt administration—in kindly words.

Business may expect congress to shock business by saying:

"Do you mean to say that the revival of private business depends upon public expenditures? Well, well, we'll appropriate another eight billion."

(As a matter of fact, heavy governmental expenditures invariably depress private initiative — and, eventually, heavy government expenditures may cause private enterprise to be absorbed completely by the government. This, incidentally, is the hope of some of the broadest thinkers, as, to their way of thinking, the only means of putting everybody to work. But it is not likely to do other than alarm people who have businesses that can be absorbed. It is, however, making the government bond market strong, for that is the only place to which money desires to turn.)

ISN'T MARKET OPEN NOW?

Congress may ask, too:

"Isn't the private capital market open now? We didn't provide very serious stock market restrictions after all."

(Yes, the private capital market is open—but governmental needs absorb the capital, some financial men say. And what is more, they add, they must keep large reserves on hand to meet new governmental drafts. The bringing of additional gold merely depresses money still more, until its only profit and its only security lies with the government. That is tending to turn private business into public business.)

* * *

HOW ABOUT BORROWERS?

Congress is likely to ask, also:

(Ah, but that might breed even more insecurity.)

In fact, the ultra liberals say the administration is walking straight toward the jumping off point without getting its parachute ready. The administration is trying, to be sure, to get business back to the spot 'way back there where it was, and sincerely believes it is succeeding. As one eminent Washington observer remarked the other day in a speech, the administration may succeed for a while. But congress and the majority of the voters, it seems evident now, will pull toward an abrupt change, toward that precipice.

The majority will not be satisfied until the administration actually jumps.

TODAY Is The Day

The World War Day-By-Day, Nov. 21, 1914.—It was the anniversary of the first notable balloon flight by humans, the beginning of practical aeronautics. It was just a coincidence, however, that this was the day British aviators chose to fly across Lake Constance to bomb the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen.

Lake Constance was a vexatious problem to the German secret service. The frontier between Germany and Switzerland lies in the middle of the lake. If the depths of Lake Constance could be dredged, the fate of more than one German or Allied spy might be revealed, whom the clerks of his intelligence service wrote off in their books as: "Missing: further details unknown."

The peculiar disposition of Swiss territory often made it possible for spies to see what they wanted without venturing over the frontier. There were a few square miles of German territory into which any Briton or Frenchman could go without hindrance and boast that he had stood unmolested on German soil during the heighth of the war. The village of Busingen, with its surrounding farms, situated in the northeast corner of Switzerland, close to the shores of Lake Constance was neutral territory for the period of the war. At Annemasse, close to Geneva, Germans often crossed into French territory, to drink coffee at a French cafe and mail postcards to friends.

One November day a party of sturdy young Englishmen could have been seen in a motorboat in the Swiss side of Lake Constance, studying the Zeppelin sheds where German's aerial monsters were made and housed. Forty hours later the Brish press exulted over the air-raid on Friedrichshafen, when those same young men, now high in the air in planes, rained bomb after bomb down on the Zeppelin sheds. The German defense was caught napping, and the damage done was sufficient to delay the operations of Zeppelins over England for several months.

History Up-To-Date, Nov. 21, 1718—After he had been sliced to ribbons with a cutlass and shot five times, he dropped upon the quarter deck where he had never yielded to man before, and "took a glass and drank damnation to them that gave or asked quarter. His head was carried to Virginia, and there fixed on a pole."

Thus died Edward Teach, the piratical, blood-thirsty Blackbeard, who was born of good parents in Jamaica and had brothers who were officers in the British service. It was a British officer who ended Blackbeard's career in a hand-to-hand duel in his lair at Ocracoke Inlet, North Carolina. The officer's name was Lieut. Robert Maynard, H. M. S. Pearl. His reward: the equivalent of $500.

Left to mourn Blackbeard were the survivors among 14 wives, the youngest a beautiful girl of 16, and the British royal governor, Eden, who shared profits of Blackbeard's expeditions.

Nov. 21, 1783—Pilatre de Rozier and Marquis d'Arlandes made a balloon flight.

Nearly half million people stood "awe-stricken" as the elegantly decorated envelope rose at 2 p. m. from the Garden of the Chateau de la Mouette in Paris. The balloon, built by Etienne Montgolfier, was 85 feet high and 48 feet across, of 100,000 cubic feet capacity, lemon-shaped. Around the 16-foot cylindrical neck was a wicker balcony 3 feet wide, to carry the aeronauts, also bundles of moist straw and wool for fuel and pails of water to extinguish sparks that ignited the envelope.

The "heroic adventurers" rose to 300 feet, saluting the throng below, and sailed across Paris. A south wind carried them five miles in 20 minutes. The Marquis d'Arlandes was so excited that he forgot to do his work, which was to keep the braizers sending up warm smoke to keep the bag filled. They bumped down to safety in a field.

King Louis XVI had ordered 29-year-old De Rozier, brilliant scientist, not to risk his life in such a foolhardy stunt as trying to fly. He commanded that "two French criminals sentenced to death" should be the subjects of the experiment.

"Permit vile criminals to have the glory of the first aerial voyage, your majesty?" exclaimed De Rozier. "Non! non!"

His friend, d'Arlandes, interceded

"My husband was induced into the CWA over a year ago and I aint received no pay sense he was gone. Please send my elopment as I have a little baby and he is my sole support and I kneed every day to buy food and keep up in clothes. I am a pore woman and all I have is one. Both sides of my parents are very old and I cant expect nothing from them as My Mother has been in bed for thirteen years with one doctor and she won't take another. Do I get any more than I am going to get? Please send a letter and tell me if my husband made application for a wife and child. Please send me a wifes form to fill out. I have already wrote to the president and got no answer and if I dont hear from you I will write uncle Sam about you and him."

ORGANIZING CONGRESS

THE Seventy-fourth congress is described as an embarrassment of riches for the administration. Good manners are not all that prevents Mr. Roosevelt from gloating over the huge congressional majority once more presented him. He has a real problem in keeping the illy assorted Democratic throng in order, and while it is believed he commands enough loyalty to prevent over-riding of any veto the president is determined to have upheld, a bloc-ridden and squabbling house is threatened again as when the Republicans last ruled.

Two things are counted upon to hold the house in control. One is a heavy legislative program, to keep the boys too busy to engage in experiments of their own and the other is the election of a firm-handed speaker. The first is the more dependable, for in the contest for a speaker the Democrats are already splitting into blocs, the North divided against the South, and each major division subdivided by group allegiances to region, personality and program. Such a state of affairs is naturally regrettable, but is the inevitable consequence of huge majorities. The fight cannot be averted. The hope must be that it will not leave bitterness and discord as its aftermath.

While the Democrats are having their organization troubles, so are the Republicans, with strong efforts indicated to wrest the minority leadership from, veteran conservative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, and vest it in some more liberal Westerner, perhaps, who will be symbolic of the party as its heirs hope to reconstitute it. The Republicans have no strong master in the white house to dictate or suggest preferences.

The way the Democrats organize will have a bearing on the course of legislation for the next two years, but the way the Republicans line up will be more interesting to the student of government, for it will forecast the future of what the British call "the king's most loyal opposition."

COMPULSORY LIABILITY FOR MOTORISTS?

The usual Monday morning list of motor accidents stirs the inevitable query, what if anything can be done about it? Modernized and revised traffic laws help to prevent many tragedies, but they do not suffice. The human element has to be reckoned with, and it must be admitted that too many drivers are utterly lacking in a sense of responsibility. In scores of cases men guilty of maiming and killing others have no liability insurance. Police authorities and traffic experts agree that as a class such persons are the most reckless and dangerous.

Under the Pennsylvania law a motor driver may be involved in two accidents within a year, resulting in death, injuries or destruction of property, before proof of financial responsibility is made obligatory.

There is a question whether the time has not arrived when all drivers should be compelled to offer such evidence.

Would not compulsory public liability have the effect of reducing the number of accidents?

Is it not reasonable to assume that it would make more cautious many drivers who are now a menace?

THE PRESIDENT'S HEALTH

American people can be grateful that their president has the fortunate ability to relax under strain and take needed vacations from the routine of work at the White House.

President Roosevelt differs considerably from his predecessor in this respect. President Hoover worked long, hard hours and took very little recreation. As his work was increased with the advent of national depression he worked even harder and refused to take any real vacation.

With equal, if not greater, demand upon his time and energy President Roosevelt has been able to continue the periodic recreations which he enjoyed before his election. He makes trips on the sea, visits distant points of the country and its possessions, retreats to Warm Springs and frequently returns to his home in New York.

The strain of the presidency is such that few men survive many years after they are out of office.

Their value while in the White House is increased by their ability to retain good health and keep themselves in good condition. It is a fortunate temperament that permits the president to enjoy these periods of relaxation.

SPREADING AUTO OUTPUT

Following so soon after President Roosevelt had questioned the effectiveness of a policy of fixing a minimum hourly or weekly wage as against insuring an annual wage that provided the minimum needs of the worker, the announcement of the General Motors Corporation of a change in its methods to spread output may be highly significant. It marks an important step in the direction of establishing a balance in economic mechanism which, through leveling the peaks and valleys of production, is the essential requisite to stable employment and, incidentally, maximum efficiency.

The seasonal factor in the sale of automobiles has been largely created by the policy of the industry in bringing out new models the first of the year. It has meant that the average prospect would not buy in the fall, with the result that sales volume in November and December, as Mr. Sloan, the General Motors president shows, is less than one-third that for April and May. The effect on employment is obvious extending through the industries supplying accessories and raw products.

The country is still waiting for Farley to redeem his promise of two-cent postage.

The average life of a horse is 12 years, due somewhat to the fact that he does not travel at 80 miles an hour on a wet highway.

Farley now says the postoffice department has found it can spend the money and will continue three-cent postage. So it was an election promise, Jim?

CARRY A SPARE!

Would you start out for Yellowstone Park without a spare tire on your car? Even if you had four new tires on the wheels of your car, would you start without a spare?

"Not me!" you say. "What makes you think I'd be so silly?"

Well, life's more important than an automobile tire, but too many of us don't carry a spare.

Because we don't carry a spare, when things go wrong we are out of luck. When we lose our money, we're finished. We have no consolation. We've trusted entirely to cash to pull us through, and when that goes, we have nothing left.

We place our happiness too much in the hands of other people. Our "popularity" is all that makes us happy. And if we lose the least shred of that popularity, we are miserable. We haven't a spare.

Or we depend entirely on health. We make a god of our strength, our fitness, and live as if we thought our vigorous youth would last forever. . . . It goes, we discover that we cannot do all those things we used to do so easily, and we think we've been badly treated.

We yearn toward One glittering vision and try to make that bright dream come true. It fails us because our powers are not equal to our aspirations. Our failure may not be our fault, but we Can't Stand It. We break down on the road and stand there hopelessly despairing, bewailing our luck.

In many ways we are like the reckless fellow who starts across the continent with no spare tire on his car. We take chances like that, and when the inevitable blowout comes—we don't know what to do and we wish we'd never been born.

We go it blind, we go it foolishly. We assume that the casual and temporary things that make life pleasant will last forever. We believe that the joys outside of ourselves will never die. We carry no spare of inner comfort, inner courage, inner understanding—and courage, inner understanding—and our hearts break before we reach the journey's end.

It is better, by far, to carry a spare.

At times you are resentful because needy persons to whom you make gifts give evidence they are not enthusiastic over them.

Undoubtedly it is because you have tendered something they do not wish or need.

If a person needs food, he cannot appreciate something to wear.

If he needs medicine, a book case cannot take the place of something to help him physically.

Isn't it true that much of your charity is the giving of something that you do not want, regardless of whether it be suitable to the one upon whom you bestow your gift?

How often do you try to learn just what is most needed?

You fear it may be something you wish to retain. You fear it might mean more or less of a sacrifice on your part to give it away.

You are not prepared to sacrifice to make others happier or more content with life.

You like to be benevolent, so long as it does not interfere with your own ease or comfort.

So your charity means getting rid of things—there is nothing particularly praiseworthy about that.

TWO VIEWS OF A MAN

We have heard that men admired him
For his courage as a fighter
And the way, when burdens tired him,
He could grip them all the tighter.
For they paid such tributes to him
Which the outside world must render,
But the ones who loved him knew him
As a man whose heart was tender.

In the way men judge each other
Where the inner life is crusted
With the cares that fret and bother
He was one who could be trusted.
But they see with partial blindness
Who find only worldly splendor.
Now his loved ones miss his kindness
And his great heart, warm and tender.

Strange it seems that others raised him
To their topmost heights of glory,
But the deeds for which they praised him
Tell but partially the story,
For to those who loved him dearly
And to loneliness surrender,
He was more than honest merely.
He was patient, kind and tender.

Congress and Moley's Views It Is Likely to Upset Them Brain Truster "Too Conservative" Now?

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Raymond Moley, called in oftenest as an adviser to President Roosevelt, is hinting to congress how it should behave. Congres, however, is likely to consider Moley too far to the right. Congress has to appease voters.

What is Moley recommending?

Moley has his say in Today magazine, of which he is editor.

Says he:

"The emergency before us requires quick expenditures, and in the selection of specific projects this must be the guiding principle. The building of great works which will be of permanent value to the nation is important; but the putting of men to work soon is more important."

That is O. K. with congress, and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes is doing a great job in selecting the works.

Moley proceeds to reassure business:

"The revival of private business is the ultimate goal of public works expenditures. Hence, the private capital market must open freely and soon. . . . In the light of all that business has said as to the restricting effects of the securities act on private spending, this adjustment gives the public the right to expect immediate and comprehensive action by business. Bank lending is improving, but renewed efforts are in order to break the impasse between borrowers, banks and federal examiners."

Congress (beg pardon) is likely to consider all that largely chatter.

Moley is stating an opinion—undoubtedly the opinion of the Roosevelt administration—in kindly words.

Business may expect congress to shock business by saying:

"Do you mean to say that the revival of private business depends upon public expenditures? Well, well, we'll appropriate another eight billion."

(As a matter of fact, heavy governmental expenditures invariably depress private initiative — and, eventually, heavy government expenditures may cause private enterprise to be absorbed completely by the government. This, incidentally, is the hope of some of the broadest thinkers, as, to their way of thinking, the only means of putting everybody to work. But it is not likely to do other than alarm people who have businesses that can be absorbed. It is, however, making the government bond market strong, for that is the only place to which money desires to turn.)

ISN'T MARKET OPEN NOW?

Congress may ask, too:

"Isn't the private capital market open now? We didn't provide very serious stock market restrictions after all."

(Yes, the private capital market is open—but governmental needs absorb the capital, some financial men say. And what is more, they add, they must keep large reserves on hand to meet new governmental drafts. The bringing of additional gold merely depresses money still more, until its only profit and its only security lies with the government. That is tending to turn private business into public business.)

HOW ABOUT BORROWERS?

Congress is likely to ask, also:

(Ah, but that might breed even more insecurity.)

In fact, the ultra liberals say the administration is walking straight toward the jumping off point without getting its parachute ready. The administration is trying, to be sure, to get business back to the spot 'way back there where it was, and sincerely believes it is succeeding. As one eminent Washington observer remarked the other day in a speech, the administration may succeed for a while. But congress and the majority of the voters, it seems evident now, will pull toward an abrupt change, toward that precipice.

The majority will not be satisfied until the administration actually jumps.

The World War Day-By-Day, Nov. 21, 1914.—It was the anniversary of the first notable balloon flight by humans, the beginning of practical aeronautics. It was just a coincidence, however, that this was the day British aviators chose to fly across Lake Constance to bomb the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen.

Lake Constance was a vexatious problem to the German secret service. The frontier between Germany and Switzerland lies in the middle of the lake. If the depths of Lake Constance could be dredged, the fate of more than one German or Allied spy might be revealed, whom the clerks of his intelligence service wrote off in their books as: "Missing: further details unknown."

The peculiar disposition of Swiss territory often made it possible for spies to see what they wanted without venturing over the frontier. There were a few square miles of German territory into which any Briton or Frenchman could go without hindrance and boast that he had stood unmolested on German soil during the heighth of the war. The village of Busingen, with its surrounding farms, situated in the northeast corner of Switzerland, close to the shores of Lake Constance was neutral territory for the period of the war. At Annemasse, close to Geneva, Germans often crossed into French territory, to drink coffee at a French cafe and mail postcards to friends.

One November day a party of sturdy young Englishmen could have been seen in a motorboat in the Swiss side of Lake Constance, studying the Zeppelin sheds where German's aerial monsters were made and housed. Forty hours later the Brish press exulted over the air-raid on Friedrichshafen, when those same young men, now high in the air in planes, rained bomb after bomb down on the Zeppelin sheds. The German defense was caught napping, and the damage done was sufficient to delay the operations of Zeppelins over England for several months.

History Up-To-Date, Nov. 21, 1718—After he had been sliced to ribbons with a cutlass and shot five times, he dropped upon the quarter deck where he had never yielded to man before, and "took a glass and drank damnation to them that gave or asked quarter. His head was carried to Virginia, and there fixed on a pole."

Thus died Edward Teach, the piratical, blood-thirsty Blackbeard, who was born of good parents in Jamaica and had brothers who were officers in the British service. It was a British officer who ended Blackbeard's career in a hand-to-hand duel in his lair at Ocrocoke Inlet, North Carolina. The officer's name was Lieut. Robert Maynard, H. M. S. Pearl. His reward: the equivalent of $500.

Left to mourn Blackbeard were the survivors among 14 wives, the youngest a beautiful girl of 16, and the British royal governor, Eden, who shared profits of Blackbeard's expeditions.

Nov. 21, 1783—Pilatre de Rozier and Marquis d'Arlandes made a balloon flight.

Nearly half million people stood "awe-stricken" as the elegantly decorated envelope rose at 2 p. m. from the Garden of the Chateau de la Mouette in Paris. The balloon, built by Etienne Montgolfier, was 85 feet high and 48 feet across, of 100,000 cubic feet capacity, lemon-shaped. Around the 16-foot cylindrical neck was a wicker balcony 3 feet wide, to carry the aeronauts, also bundles of moist straw and wool for fuel and pails of water to extinguish sparks that ignited the envelope.

The "heroic adventurers" rose to 300 feet, saluting the throng below, and sailed across Paris. A south wind carried them five miles in 20 minutes. The Marquis d'Arlandes was so excited that he forgot to do his work, which was to keep the braizers sending up warm smoke to keep the bag filled. They bumped down to safety in a field.

King Louis XVI had ordered 29-year-old De Rozier, brilliant scientist, not to risk his life in such a foolhardy stunt as trying to fly. He commanded that "two French criminals sentenced to death" should be the subjects of the experiment.

"Permit vile criminals to have the glory of the first aerial voyage, your majesty?" exclaimed De Rozier. "Non! non!"

His friend, d'Arlandes, interceded

ORGANIZING CONGRESS

THE Seventy-fourth congress is described as an embarrassment of riches for the administration. Good manners are not all that prevents Mr. Roosevelt from gloating over the huge congressional majority once more presented him. He has a real problem in keeping the illy assorted Democratic throng in order, and while it is believed he commands enough loyalty to prevent over-riding of any veto the president is determined to have upheld, a bloc-ridden and squabbling house is threatened again as when the Republicans last ruled.

Two things are counted upon to hold the house in control. One is a heavy legislative program, to keep the boys too busy to engage in experiments of their own and the other is the election of a firm-handed speaker. The first is the more dependable, for in the contest for a speaker the Democrats are already splitting into blocs, the North divided against the South, and each major division subdivided by group allegiances to region, personality and program. Such a state of affairs is naturally regrettable, but is the inevitable consequence of huge majorities. The fight cannot be averted. The hope must be that it will not leave bitterness and discord as its aftermath.

While the Democrats are having their organization troubles, so are the Republicans, with strong efforts indicated to wrest the minority leadership from veteran conservative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, and vest it in some more liberal Westerner, perhaps, who will be symbolic of the party as its heirs hope to reconstitute it. The Republicans have no strong master in the white house to dictate or suggest preferences.

The way the Democrats organize will have a bearing on the course of legislation for the next two years, but the way the Republicans line up will be more interesting to the student of government, for it will forecast the future of what the British call "the king's most loyal opposition."

COMPULSORY LIABILITY FOR MOTORISTS?

The usual Monday morning list of motor accidents stirs the inevitable query, what if anything can be done about it? Modernized and revised traffic laws help to prevent many tragedies, but they do not suffice. The human element has to be reckoned with, and it must be admitted that too many drivers are utterly lacking in a sense of responsibility. In scores of cases men guilty of maiming and killing others have no liability insurance. Police authorities and traffic experts agree that as a class such persons are the most reckless and dangerous.

Under the Pennsylvania law a motor driver may be involved in two accidents within a year, resulting in death, injuries or destruction of property, before proof of financial responsibility is made obligatory.

There is a question whether the time has not arrived when all drivers should be compelled to offer such evidence.

Would not compulsory public liability have the effect of reducing the number of accidents?

Is it not reasonable to assume that it would make more cautious many drivers who are now a menace?

THE PRESIDENT'S HEALTH

American people can be grateful that their president has the fortunate ability to relax under strain and take needed vacations from the routine of work at the White House.

President Roosevelt differs considerably from his predecessor in this respect. President Hoover worked long, hard hours and took very little recreation. As his work was increased with the advent of national depression he worked even harder and refused to take any real vacation.

With equal, if not greater, demand upon his time and energy President Roosevelt has been able to continue the periodic recreations which he enjoyed before his election. He makes trips on the sea, visits distant points of the country and its possessions, retreats to Warm Springs and frequently returns to his home in New York.

The strain of the presidency is such that few men survive many years after they are out of office.

Their value while in the White House is increased by their ability to retain good health and keep themselves in good condition. It is a fortunate temperament that permits the president to enjoy these periods of relaxation.

SPREADING AUTO OUTPUT

Following so soon after President Roosevelt had questioned the effectiveness of a policy of fixing a minimum hourly or weekly wage as against insuring an annual wage that provided the minimum needs of the worker, the announcement of the General Motors Corporation of a change in its methods to spread output may be highly significant. It marks an important step in the direction of establishing a balance in economic mechanism which, through leveling the peaks and valleys of production, is the essential requisite to stable employment and, incidentally, maximum efficiency.

The seasonal factor in the sale of automobiles has been largely created by the policy of the industry in bringing out new models the first of the year. It has meant that the average prospect would not buy in the fall, with the result that sales volume in November and December, as Mr. Sloan, the General Motors president shows, is less than one-third that for April and May. The effect on employment is obvious extending through the industries supplying accessories and raw products.

The country is still waiting for Farley to redeem his promise of two-cent postage.

The average life of a horse is 12 years, due somewhat to the fact that he does not travel at 80 miles an hour on a wet highway.

Farley now says the postoffice department has found it can spend the money and will continue three-cent postage. So it was an election promise, Jim?

CARRY A SPARE!

Would you start out for Yellowstone Park without a spare tire on your car? Even if you had four new tires on the wheels of your car, would you start without a spare?

"Not me!" you say. "What makes you think I'd be so silly?"

Well, life's more important than an automobile tire, but too many of us don't carry a spare.

Because we don't carry a spare, when things go wrong we are out of luck. When we lose our money, we're finished. We have no consolation. We've trusted entirely to cash to pull us through, and when that goes, we have nothing left.

We place our happiness too much in the hands of other people. Our "popularity" is all that makes us happy. And if we lose the least shred of that popularity, we are miserable. We haven't a spare.

Or we depend entirely on health. We make a god of our strength, our fitness, and live as if we thought our vigorous youth would last forever. . . . It goes, we discover that we cannot do all those things we used to do so easily, and we think we've been badly treated.

We yearn toward One glittering vision and try to make that bright dream come true. It fails us because our powers are not equal to our aspirations. Our failure may not be our fault, but we Can't Stand It. We break down on the road and stand there hopelessly despairing, bewailing our luck.

In many ways we are like the reckless fellow who starts across the continent with no spare tire on his car. We take chances like that, and when the inevitable blowout comes—we don't know what to do and we wish we'd never been born.

We go it blind, we go it foolishly. We assume that the casual and temporary things that make life pleasant will last forever. We believe that the joys outside of ourselves will never die. We carry no spare of inner comfort, inner courage, inner understanding—and our hearts break before we reach the journey's end.

It is better, by far, to carry a spare.

At times you are resentful because needy persons to whom you make gifts give evidence they are not enthusiastic over them.

Undoubtedly it is because you have tendered something they do not wish or need.

If a person needs food, he cannot appreciate something to wear.

If he needs medicine, a book case cannot take the place of something to help him physically.

Isn't it true that much of your charity is the giving of something that you do not want, regardless of whether it be suitable to the one upon whom you bestow your gift?

How often do you try to learn just what is most needed?

You fear it may be something you wish to retain. You fear it might mean more or less of a sacrifice on your part to give it away.

You are not prepared to sacrifice to make others happier or more content with life.

You like to be benevolent, so long as it does not interfere with your own ease or comfort.

So your charity means getting rid of things—there is nothing particularly praiseworthy about that.

TWO VIEWS OF A MAN

We have heard that men admired him
For his courage as a fighter
And the way, when burdens tired him,
He could grip them all the tighter.
For they paid such tributes to him
Which the outside world must render,
But the ones who loved him knew him
As a man whose heart was tender.

In the way men judge each other
Where the inner life is crusted
With the cares that fret and bother
He was one who could be trusted.
But they see with partial blindness
Who find only worldly splendor.
Now his loved ones miss his kindness
And his great heart, warm and tender.

Strange it seems that others raised him
To their topmost heights of glory,
But the deeds for which they praised him
Tell but partially the story,
For to those who loved him dearly
And to loneliness surrender,
He was more than honest merely.
He was patient, kind and tender.

The World At A Glance

Central Press
New York Bureau
235 East 45th street

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Raymond Moley, called in oftenest as an adviser to President Roosevelt, is hinting to congress how it should behave. Congres, however, is likely to consider Moley too far to the right. Congress has to appease voters.

What is Moley recommending?

Moley has his say in Today magazine, of which he is editor.

Says he:

"The emergency before us requires quick expenditures, and in the selection of specific projects this must be the guiding principle. The building of great works which will be of permanent value to the nation is important; but the putting of men to work soon is more important."

That is O. K. with congress, and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes is doing a great job in selecting the works.

* * *

FOR BUSINESS

Moley continues:

"Every friend of public works expects the most scrupulous and painstaking effort to provide an accurate measure of the amount of employment that will be provided by a given expenditure."

That is a statement made for business men. It serves no purpose for congress—and not much among the mass. Every district finds itself in need of public works.

* * *

A REASSURANCE

Moley proceeds to reassure business:

"The revival of private business is the ultimate goal of public works expenditures. Hence, the private capital market must open freely and soon. . . . In the light of all that business has said as to the restricting effects of the securities act on private spending, this adjustment gives the public the right to expect immediate and comprehensive action by business. Bank lending is improving, but renewed efforts are in order to break the impasse between borrowers, banks and federal examiners."

Congress (beg pardon) is likely to consider all that largely chatter.

Moley is stating an opinion—undoubtedly the opinion of the Roosevelt administration—in kindly words.

Business may expect congress to shock business by saying:

"Do you mean to say that the revival of private business depends upon public expenditures? Well, well, we'll appropriate another eight billion."

(As a matter of fact, heavy governmental expenditures invariably depress private initiative — and, eventually, heavy government expenditures may cause private enterprise to be absorbed completely by the government. This, incidentally, is the hope of some of the broadest thinkers, as, to their way of thinking, the only means of putting everybody to work. But it is not likely to do other than alarm people who have businesses that can be absorbed. It is, however, making the government bond market strong, for that is the only place to which money desires to turn.)

ISN'T MARKET OPEN NOW?

Congress may ask, too:

"Isn't the private capital market open now? We didn't provide very serious stock market restrictions after all."

(Yes, the private capital market is open—but governmental needs absorb the capital, some financial men say. And what is more, they add, they must keep large reserves on hand to meet new governmental drafts. The bringing of additional gold merely depresses money still more, until its only profit and its only security lies with the government. That is tending to turn private business into public business.)

* * *

HOW ABOUT BORROWERS?

Congress is likely to ask, also:

(Ah, but that might breed even more insecurity.)

In fact, the ultra liberals say the administration is walking straight toward the jumping off point without getting its parachute ready. The administration is trying, to be sure, to get business back to the spot 'way back there where it was, and sincerely believes it is succeeding. As one eminent Washington observer remarked the other day in a speech, the administration may succeed for a while. But congress and the majority of the voters, it seems evident now, will pull toward an abrupt change, toward that precipice.

The majority will not be satisfied until the administration actually jumps.

The World War Day-By-Day, Nov. 21, 1914.—It was the anniversary of the first notable balloon flight by humans, the beginning of practical aeronautics. It was just a coincidence, however, that this was the day British aviators chose to fly across Lake Constance to bomb the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen.

If the depths of Lake Constance could be dredged, the fate of more than one German or Allied spy might be revealed, whom the clerks of his intelligence service wrote off in their books as: "Missing: further details unknown."

The peculiar disposition of Swiss territory often made it possible for spies to see what they wanted without venturing over the frontier. There were a few square miles of German territory into which any Briton or Frenchman could go without hindrance and boast that he had stood unmolested on German soil during the heighth of the war. The village of Busingen, with its surrounding farms, situated in the northeast corner of Switzerland, close to the shores of Lake Constance was neutral territory for the period of the war. At Annemasse, close to Geneva, Germans often crossed into French territory, to drink coffee at a French cafe and mail postcards to friends.

One November day a party of sturdy young Englishmen could have been seen in a motorboat in the Swiss side of Lake Constance, studying the Zeppelin sheds where German's aerial monsters were made and housed. Forty hours later the Brish press exulted over the air-raid on Friedrichshafen, when those same young men, now high in the air in planes, rained bomb after bomb down on the Zeppelin sheds. The German defense was caught napping, and the damage done was sufficient to delay the operations of Zeppelins over England for several months.

It was a British officer who ended Blackbeard's career in a hand-to-hand duel in his lair at Ocracoke Inlet, North Carolina. The officer's name was Lieut. Robert Maynard, H. M. S. Pearl. Nov. 21, 1783—Pilatre de Rozier and Marquis d'Arlandes made a balloon flight.

Nearly half million people stood "awe-stricken" as the elegantly decorated envelope rose at 2 p. m. from the Garden of the Chateau de la Mouette in Paris. The balloon, built by Etienne Montgolfier, was 85 feet high and 48 feet across, of 100,000 cubic feet capacity, lemon-shaped. Around the 16-foot cylindrical neck was a wicker balcony 3 feet wide, to carry the aeronauts, also bundles of moist straw and wool for fuel and pails of water to extinguish sparks that ignited the envelope.

The "heroic adventurers" rose to 300 feet, saluting the throng below, and sailed across Paris. A south wind carried them five miles in 20 minutes. The Marquis d'Arlandes was so excited that he forgot to do his work, which was to keep the braizers sending up warm smoke to keep the bag filled. They bumped down to safety in a field.

King Louis XVI had ordered 29-year-old De Rozier, brilliant scientist, not to risk his life in such a foolhardy stunt as trying to fly. He commanded that "two French criminals sentenced to death" should be the subjects of the experiment.

"Permit vile criminals to have the glory of the first aerial voyage, your majesty?" exclaimed De Rozier. "Non! non!"

"My husband was induced into the CWA over a year ago and I aint received no pay sense he was gone. Please send my elopment as I have a little baby and he is my sole support and I kneed every day to buy food and keep up in clothes. I am a pore woman and all I have is one. Both sides of my parents are very old and I cant expect nothing from them as My Mother has been in bed for thirteen years with one doctor and she won't take another. Do I get any more than I am going to get? Please send a letter and tell me if my husband made application for a wife and child. Please send me a wifes form to fill out. I have already wrote to the president and got no answer and if I dont hear from you I will write uncle Sam about you and him."

Words of Wisdom

"In" is generally incorrect when used to express motion. Say "into".

CLASS SURPRISES MISS LAURA CAVEN

Tuesday evening as Miss Laura Caven, Miller avenue, was calmly preparing to eat her dinner, there came a knock at the door, and when the door was opened there were 15 members of the Teachers' Training class of the First Baptist church, taught by Mrs. S. J. Callahan, of which Miss Caven is a member.

Each person carried a casserole of food and after greeting Miss Caven with "surprise" they entered and when the food was arranged on a table prettily centered with a birthday cake, presented by Mrs. H. G. Horton, all enjoyed a hearty repast.

Music and games featured the evening, with the honored one presented with a shower of colorful hankies in commemoration of her birthdate.

with the king and won him over by indicating his willingness to accompany de Rozier on the flight himself.

Among the witnesses of this epochal flight was Benjamin Franklin, American minister at Paris. That same evening Montgolfier and d'Arlandes visited him at his home to discuss the affair, and Franklin prophetically wrote a friend that here was a new and deadly instrument of war. This was 50 years before balloons were used for the purpose.

Notable Nativities—Francois Marie Arouet, known as Voltaire, b. 1694, celebrated French dramatist, historian, novelist, poet whom kings paid to be their guests. Once Casanova met Voltaire, and presumed to advise him that he was wasting his time in warring against superstition. He said, "If you were to abolish superstition from the world, what would you substitute for it?" Voltaire replied, "I admire that; when I deliver the world from a monster which devours it, I am asked what I will put in its place.

You're Wrong If You Believe—That Shakespere was the author of the phrase, "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse!" spoken in the Shakesperean play, Richard III.

He wasn't. The lines were interpolated into the play two centuries after Shakespere's death by Colley Cibber, English actor-manager.

That the name of the Bard of Avon was Shakespeare. He spelled it Shakespere in signatures that are preserved.

That a greyhound was so named because of its color.

I. W. Bates, Butte, Mont., doubts our statement that you're wrong if you believe that catgut comes from cats. Actually, it comes from sheep and other animals. As explained here, the original term was cattlegut.

You're Wrong If You Believe—That Shakespere was the author of the phrase, "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse!" spoken in the Shakesperean play, Richard III.

He wasn't. The lines were interpolated into the play two centuries after Shakespere's death by Colley Cibber, English actor-manager.

That the name of the Bard of Avon was Shakespeare. He spelled it Shakespere in signatures that are preserved.

That a greyhound was so named because of its color.

I. W. Bates, Butte, Mont., doubts our statement that you're wrong if you believe that catgut comes from cats. Actually, it comes from sheep and other animals. As explained here, the original term was cattlegut.

CLASS SURPRISES MISS LAURA CAVEN

Tuesday evening as Miss Laura Caven, Miller avenue, was calmly preparing to eat her dinner, there came a knock at the door, and when the door was opened there were 15 members of the Teachers' Training class of the First Baptist church, taught by Mrs. S. J. Callahan, of which Miss Caven is a member.

Each person carried a casserole of food and after greeting Miss Caven with "surprise" they entered and when the food was arranged on a table prettily centered with a birthday cake, presented by Mrs. H. G. Horton, all enjoyed a hearty repast.

Music and games featured the evening, with the honored one presented with a shower of colorful hankies in commemoration of her birthdate.

Syrian Party.

Moses Jacobs served as chairman and Mrs. Moses Jacobs filled the role of hostess for a largely attended party of over 200 members of St. Elias Syrian Orthodox church, held on the evening of November 17.

Speeches were made by Mrs. Isaac Naveha, Esper Bashoor, Richard Chaleel, Albert Joseph, Moses Jacobs and Assad Mike. The hours from 7 to 9 were filled with informal entertainment and the evening was concluded by the serving of dainty Syrian sweets.

It is planned to have similar parties at the church every two weeks during the winter, the next one being arranged for Saturday evening, December 1.

Tureen Dinner.

The T. N. T. class of the First Baptist church entertained at a tureen dinner in the church dining room Tuesday evening. A delicious menu was served at nicely appointed tables, and following, a business session was in order with the election of officers taking place.

Those named are: President, Katheryn Russler; vice-president, Helen Garratt; secretary, Ethel Marsh; treasurer, Shirley Seteson.

In New York

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews, Jr., North Jefferson street, with their brother-in-law Robert H. Cunningham, New Wilmington, left last night for New York City where Mrs. Cunningham has been visiting for the past several days.

Pioneer Supper.

The Pioneer members of the W. B. A. will have a dinner Friday evening at 6 o'clock in their hall, after which they will attend the regular review meeting.

COSMO CLUB PLANS FOR LADIES NIGHT

The monthly "ladies' night" at the Cosmo club headquarters, North Mercer street, will take place Thursday evening, with bridge as the diversion of the evening.

These bridge parties have been running in a series, which will conclude with the December party. At this time the grand prizes for the series will be presented the women who have held the high scores at the preceding parties.

Hostesses for Thursday evening will be Mrs. Jack Gold, Mrs. William Blau, Sara Blau and Mrs. D. Tobin.

Honored At School

Miss Mary Lou Burckart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burckart, Clenmore boulevard, who is a student at Green Briar college, Lewisburg, W. Va., has been honored by her school in being named secretary of the school Athletic association.

Miss Burckart has also been taking an active part in the dramatics of the school also, having appeared in the leading role in two plays given recently.

Attend Mars Party

Mrs. Carolyne Lindsley, North Mercer street, Mrs. P. H. Bridenbaugh, Edison avenue, Mrs. Olive Hewitt, Sheridan avenue, and Mrs. Ada Jackson, Neshannock boulevard, are at Mars today attending a luncheon bridge in the home of Mrs. Olive Kerr.

Sicilian Club

Members of the Sicilian Girls club will be entertained in the home of Miss Marie Tomasello, of East Washington street, on Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Choral Society

The New Castle Choral society will meet this evening in the Emmanuel Baptist church at 8 o'clock, with Miss Gladys Thomas as director.

Pioneers To Dine

The Pioneers of the W. B. A. Review 98, will have a tureen dinner Friday evening at 6 o'clock in their hall, followed by a business meeting of the review.

Royal Neighbors

Mrs. Anna March, 331 Shaw street, will entertain the members of Camp 2550 Royal Neighbors of America, in her home Thursday evening at eight o'clock.

1919 Kensington

A delightful meeting of the 1919 Kensington members was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. M. J. Young on Hillcrest avenue. The early period was spent pleasantly with games and music. At the chosen hour the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Audrey, served a delicious collation. Dainty appointments prevailed.

Their next gathering in two weeks will be held at the home of Mrs. E. G. Hoover, Winter avenue.

1907 Club

Mrs. John Logue, will entertain the 1907 club, Friday evening, at her home on Boroline street.

Parent-Teacher Associations

UNION TOWNSHIP MEET

The Union Township Parent-Teacher Association met in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening for the regular monthly business session.

A most interesting and worthwhile report from the Parenthood and Home Relations Institute held at Thiel College last week was given by R. F. Conway after which Miss Anna Rice presented the program.

There was a violin number by Miss Alice Reed, accompanied by Gloria Ludovici; a trumpet solo by Chester Gierlach, after which Mrs. Clinton Keagy, accompanied by Miss Helen Ewing, sang a group of songs.

A social period followed the program.

EAST SIDE UNION

Mrs. Mack Wiles, Butler road, received the members of the East Side W. C. T. U. in her home Monday evening, with Mrs. William McClane and Mrs. Betty Byers as associates.

Mrs. M. E. McClure led the devotionals and Mrs. A. Kildoo led the business session when splendid reports were given of the activities of the various departments.

Mrs. W. G. Wilkins, county superintendent, gave the highlights of the state and national conventions.

Mrs. Lulu Kocher, Maryland avenue, will be the December hostess, with Mrs. W. M. McMillen and Mrs. S. B. Copeland as associate hostesses. Mrs. Mack Wiles will have charge of the program.

WEST SIDE Y. P. B.

The West Side Y. P. B. had its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening in the home of Lois Cochran, King street, with Vivian Hogue conducting the devotionals, aided by Erma Mathews.

Plans were made for a medal contest in January, with Lois Cochran and Willis Foster appointed a committee to arrange the program.

State president, James Killip and his wife, were special guests and delighted the group with lantern slides on "Alcohol Education".

Long Avenue Man Reported Better

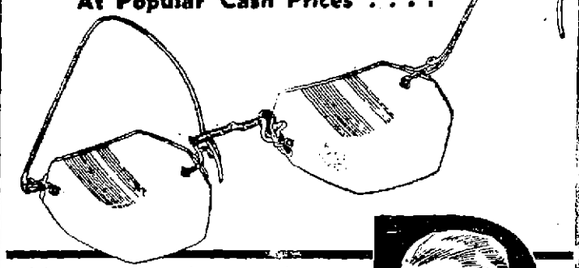

Nick Halkias of 26 West Long avenue, who was injured on Sunday when the automobile in which he was riding, upset, is reported showing improvement in the Ellwood City hospital.

Mr. Halkias sustained serious injuries about the right side of the face, back and the right side. William Economidis of Greenville, the driver of the vehicle, escaped injuries. The two men were headed towards New Castle at the time of the casualty. The car upset when Mr. Economidis failed to make a sharp curve, about four miles away from Ellwood City.

Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association Members To Meet Friday

FARM PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Arrangements for the annual meeting of the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association on Friday in the First U. P. church have been completed by officers of the association.

In addition to the address of Dr. J. E. Hunter of Pennsylvania State College, who will speak on "Human and Animal Nutrition", many of the members will speak on farm questions, and there will be a discussion of 4-H Club work.

The meeting will convene at 10 a. m., when the business session will be conducted, with reports and election of officers.

This will be followed by a program of discussions, with intermission at noon for lunch.

"Two Important Factors in Fruit Production," Harry Newman, Hickory township.

Work of the 4-H Clubs will be discussed by W. H. Walton of Wayne township; Ida Peebles of Scott township and members of the 4-H Clubs from Wayne, Big Beaver and New Bedford Clubs, along with some others.

President N. E. Sampson of Wilmington township will preside.

With New Castle Afro-Americans

MISSIONARY MEETING

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Emily Diggs, West Falls street, Thursday, November 22, at 3 p. m.

TRUTH SEEKERS CLASS

The Truth Seekers Study class will meet at 312 Locust street on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

P. L. D. READING CIRCLE

The P. L. D. Reading Circle met Monday evening in the Y. W. C. A., Elm street center. Officers were elected as follows: President, Rebecca Baker; first vice president, Esther Young; second vice president, Bessie Goodbar; secretary, Carolyn Williams; assistant secretary, Carrie Fuergerson; treasurer, Belle Shannon; reporter, Elizabeth Thomas; assistant reporter, Mabel Taylor; chaplain, Julia Toney; critic, Mabel Gardner; parliamentarian, Blanche Dillar.

The program hostess, Mary Clark, then took charge, and presented the entertainment. Papers, by Rebecca Baker and Carolyn Williams; vocal solo by Cornelia Cox. Following, refreshments were served by Katherin Fitzhugh, Anna Taylor and Mabel Taylor.

The manufacture and sale of absinthe was prohibited in France by an Act of March 16, 1915. The characteristic flavoring matter used in absinthe is derived from different species of wormwood. The wormwood acts powerfully on the nerve-centers, and causes delirium and hallucinations, followed in some cases by dementia.

Two Sentenced To Die In Chair

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Two 21-year-old would-be "tough guys" today were sentenced to die in the electric chair for the cold-blooded murder of Patrolman William C. Wilson during a $600 holdup on Labor Day.

The doomed youths are Walter Mika and William Talarico, both of the Kensington section of Philadelphia. Their fate was sealed today by Judge Harry S. McDevitt before whom they were convicted last month of brutally pouring lead into the prostrate body of the policeman after one of the five gunmen who participated in the crime had felled Wilson with a blow on the head.

Life Sentences

Two other members of the gang, Peter Talarico, 18-year-old brother of Willie, and John Costello, 18, pleaded guilty to participating in the crime and have been sentenced to spend the rest of their lives in the Eastern penitentiary at hard labor.

The fifth gunman is still at liberty.

Both Mika and the elder Talarico, described as the "brains" of the gang, have been denied new trials. Mika, whose pistol leashed its full charge into the victim, cringed when sentence was pronounced. Talarico took his fate stoically.

In Religious and Fraternal Circles

Section Meeting

Mrs. Florence Klee, East Washington street, will be hostess to the members of Section A of the Y. L. B. class of the Third United Presbyterian church Friday at 8 p. m.

Spiritual Meeting

This evening and Friday evening at 8 o'clock there will be services of the Church of Spiritual Truth in the McGoun Hall.

Change Of Meeting

The meeting of the Central Circle of the Central Presbyterian church will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., in the church instead of at the home of Mrs. J. H. Cox, 314 Park avenue.

Class Names Officers

At a meeting of the Annetta McKee Bible class Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Ida May Allison, Maryland avenue, following the study of the lesson a business session was held, at which time officers were named.

Mrs. J. W. Nelson was elected president; Mrs. R. A. Fleming, vice; Mrs. W. H. Englehart, secretary; Olive McMillen, assistant; Mrs. J. N. Wagner, treasurer; Mrs. Allison, teacher; Mrs. Grant Fisher, assistant; Mrs. A. B. Coulter, pianiste and Mrs. M. R. Newbery, chorister.

F. L. H. Class

Members of the F. L. H. class of the Second United Presbyterian church met for a tureen dinner Tuesday evening in the home of Maxine Morgan, North Crawford avenue, with baby mums and pink candles used in the table decorations.

After a short business session the girls enjoyed an evening of music and games.

Westminster Guild

In the manse, 328 Park avenue, Tuesday evening, the members of the Westminster Guild of the Central Presbyterian church assembled for a business and social session.

Plans were made for presenting a play in the near future and the parts were read, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. C. B. Wingerd and Miss Bernice Forrest.

Livingstone Society.

Livingstone Missionary society with 12 members present, met Tuesday evening at the home of Eleanor Phelps, Tempelena avenue, with Mrs. I. Davis leading the devotionals.

A committee was appointed to pack baskets for the needy at Thanksgiving time and plans were discussed for the white gift contributions to the various homes for Christmas.

The society is sponsoring the organization of a missionary society for girls of the church over 16, which will take place Monday evening, November 26. Miss Ruth McKinnis of Pittsburgh will be the speaker.

The committee in charge will be Mrs. I. Davis, Mrs. Charles Irwin, Mrs. Harry Redman and Mrs. C. W. Johnstone.

W. R. C. Corps No. 11

The Woman's Relief Corps No. 11, Auxiliary to the G. A. R., held their regular meeting in the City hall Tuesday evening. Gladus M. Everett, department president, will meet with the local corps at their next regular session, which will be on December 4.

Corps No. 11 is planning to entertain Mrs. Everett at a tureen dinner in the hall at 6:30 o'clock.

Section 1

Margaret Shields Class

Miss Wanda White was associate hostess with Mabel Campbell, Moody avenue, Monday evening when they entertained the members of the Margaret Shields class of the First Methodist church in the Campbell home.

Committees were appointed for the Yuletide party. Mrs. Margaret Shields, Mrs. Ralph Baker, Mrs. Jane Bradley and Mrs. W. Hopper were named to the garment sewing committee; Amelda Ruby and Mrs. Ned Chapman to the toy committee.

Refreshments were served and plans made to meet December 17 at the home of Mrs. W. Hopper, Mt. Jackson.

Fuller Circle Meets.

Tuesday evening 17 members of the Fuller Circle of the Croton Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Grace Locke, Croton avenue, with Mrs. Amy McCreary leading the devotionals and Mrs. Lillian Johns presenting the mission study on "Japan".

Miss Leona Nolan presided at the business session when plans were completed for the thank offering service Sunday evening, November 25, when Miss Eve Nicklin, former deaconess, will be the speaker.

Plans were also made for the Christmas party December 16, in the home of Mrs. Florence Cook, Garfield avenue, with Mrs. Jessie Beck and Mrs. Hazel Thompson in charge of the program.

The hostess was assisted by Goldie Shields in serving refreshments.

L. L. O. I. Meeting

Thursday evening at 7:30 in the City building the members of Lodge 129, L. L. O. I. will meet for a business session, to be followed by a social evening of cards and bingo for the families and friends.

Howard J. Wisehaupt, Business Counsellor, Will Be Heard At High School

HOW TO SUCCEED WILL BE THEME

—Howard J. Wisehaupt, business counsellor and philosopher, who is in New Castle for a series of lectures which will show people how they may succeed, no matter what their station in life or their profession, will make his first appearance this evening at the Senior High school at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Wisehaupt's lectures are not lengthy and he will tell people in exactly one hour this evening, "How to influence people." He is appearing here under the auspices of the New Castle News and the Merchants Division of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce.

Every man and woman has something to sell, whether it be his personality or if a business man, his goods. Mr. Wisehaupt in his series will tell how this can be done.

His homely advice will be valuable not only to merchants, but also to doctors, lawyers, manufacturers, insurance men, and other professions.

Mr. Wisehaupt is recognized as one of the country's foremost business counsellors. On his recent appearance at Salt Lake City, one thousand people were turned away for his last lecture in the series, while 10,000 people heard him speak in one night at Miami, Fla.

There is no admission charge to hear Mr. Wisehaupt, and every man and woman in New Castle and its environs is invited to attend.

E. S. & A. Club Meets Monday

E. S. & A. club will meet at 8 p. m. Monday in the Clendennin building. The program will be sponsored by the sub-station and stores department. One of the questions to be discussed will be the proposal to change the name of the club to a name that signifies its affiliation with the Pennsylvania Power company.

There are about 50 fatal cases of tularemia in the United States each year.

Two Sentenced To Die In Chair

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Two 21-year-old would-be "tough guys" today were sentenced to die in the electric chair for the cold-blooded murder of Patrolman William C. Wilson during a $600 holdup on Labor Day.

The doomed youths are Walter Mika and William Talarico, both of the Kensington section of Philadelphia. Their fate was sealed today by Judge Harry S. McDevitt before whom they were convicted last month of brutally pouring lead into the prostrate body of the policeman after one of the five gunmen who participated in the crime had felled Wilson with a blow on the head.

Life Sentences

Two other members of the gang, Peter Talarico, 18-year-old brother of Willie, and John Costello, 18 pleaded guilty to participating in the crime and have been sentenced to spend the rest of their lives in the Eastern penitentiary at hard labor.

The fifth gunman is still at liberty.

Both Mika and the elder Talarico, described as the "brains" of the gang, have been denied new trials. Mika, whose pistol leashed its full charge into the victim, cringed when sentence was pronounced. Talarico took his fate stoically.

Start Lecture Series Tonight

Howard J. Wisehaupt, Business Counsellor, Will Be Heard At High School

HOW TO SUCCEED WILL BE THEME

—Howard J. Wisehaupt, business counsellor and philosopher, who is in New Castle for a series of lectures which will show people how they may succeed, no matter what their station in life or their profession, will make his first appearance this evening at the Senior High school at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Wisehaupt's lectures are not lengthy and he will tell people in exactly one hour this evening, "How to influence people." He is appearing here under the auspices of the New Castle News and the Merchants Division of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce.

Every man and woman has something to sell, whether it be his personality or if a business man, his goods. Mr. Wisehaupt in his series will tell how this can be done.

His homely advice will be valuable not only to merchants, but also to doctors, lawyers, manufacturers, insurance men, and other professions.

Mr. Wisehaupt is recognized as one of the country's foremost business counsellors. On his recent appearance at Salt Lake City, one thousand people were turned away for his last lecture in the series, while 10,000 people heard him speak in one night at Miami, Fla.

There is no admission charge to hear Mr. Wisehaupt, and every man and woman in New Castle and its environs is invited to attend.

E. S. & A. Club Meets Monday

E. S. & A. club will meet at 8 p. m. Monday in the Clendennin building. The program will be sponsored by the sub-station and stores department. One of the questions to be discussed will be the proposal to change the name of the club to a name that signifies its affiliation with the Pennsylvania Power company.

There are about 50 fatal cases of tularemia in the United States each year.

Desire State Police Be Kept From Politics

Friends Of Organization Hopeful That No Change In Command Will Be Made

FEEL EFFICIENCY WOULD BE LOST

Hope is expressed by friends of the Pennsylvania state police that no change will be made in the control of the organization when the administration changes into Democratic hands at the first of the year.

Many intimations have been made of sweeping changes which are to take place in various state departments, and those who are in touch with the situation as it applies to the state police are fearful of the consequences if the control of the organization is placed in political hands.

When the state police force was organized in 1906, it was made a non-political organization and has remained as such since that date. Its members have never participated in political campaigns, and politics has been kept out of its administration, with the result that one of the most efficient police systems to be found in America has been built up.

If this present high efficiency is to be maintained, friends of the organization feel that it must not be allowed to pass into political hands, and they are making an effort to bring this fact to the attention of their local representatives.

An appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace, S. Y. Douds of Ellwood City, has been taken by the defendant in the case of Dr. W. G. Evans against B. W. Applebaum, in which judgment was rendered by the justice in favor of the plaintiff for $22.

Appeal from the decision of Alderman L. C. Mantz has been filed at the prothonotary's office in the case of Wyatt Campbell against Richard R. Lewis. The controversy is over a bill and the decision of the alderman was in favor of the defendant. Campbell took the appeal.

Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard has posted a schedule of proposed disposition of proceeds of recent sheriff sales. Unless objections are raised within ten days from the filing of the schedule, the distribution will be confirmed. The ten days will be up on November 29th.

Henry Lightner, Superintendent of Highways, was in conference with county commissioners yesterday on matters pertaining to local highways. Lightner has finished the building of the New Wilmington-Volant road, and is finishing up a project in Slippery Rock township, and one in Shenango township.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor reports that three prosecutions for violations of the hunting laws have been made by Game Warden Frank Cohen. One was that of a non-resident hunting without a license, another that of a hunter having unlawful possession of game and a third that of hunter who had no license.

Sarah J. Arner has filed an action in assumpsit at the prothonotary's office against Harriet A. Elliott, executrix in the estate of Agusta Campbell, in which the prothonotary is directed to index a claim for $699 against the estate.

Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard has received notice to be on the lookout for Merton Ward Goodrich, 26, wanted in Detroit, Mich., for murder. He is described as being 5 feet, 10½ inches tall, weight, 120 pounds; sallow complexion; brown hair, partly bald; hazel eyes that bulge and stare; protruding ears and a scar on his right cheek. There is $3000 reward.

For the first time in the history of the county a record is being kept of all the calls received at the sheriff's office. A book, especially for that purpose, has been opened. The date of call, the person making the call, the complaint, and the action that was taken, together with remarks, are all jotted down.

County Treasurer William O. Pitts has a farm in North Beaver township on which he is using considerable dynamite. Under his direction the tenant is using the explosive to blow out stumps, trees and rocks. A hole is bored under the obstacle to be removed and a stick or two of dynamite inserted. It usually does the trick, and saves a large amount of labor.

Board of Trustees of the Mothers Assistant fund are beginning to realize that they have a pretty big job on hands in investigating the thirteen hundred or more applications which have been made for old age pensions. It now begins to look as though they would have to employ a special investigator to assist in the work.

PULASKI

ENTERTAIN GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Taylor entertained at a nicely appointed supper in their home recently, honoring the former's sister, Mrs. W. F. Lauten of Hannibal, Mo., who is visiting in this vicinity. Covers marked for the guest of honor, the hosts and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Taylor, the latter of West Middlesex.

Miss Gladys Thomas, Leader, To Direct Program At Emmanuel Baptist Church

By WM. N. JOHNS
(Brython)

On Sunday evening, November 25, a sacred concert will be given in the Emmanuel Baptist church, under the leadership of Miss Gladys Thomas. She will give a group of beautiful selections and solos will be heard from several members of the choir. The concert will begin at 8:30 o'clock, following the sermon to be given by Grfith Thomas, who will fill the pulpit.

BIRTHDAY HONORED

A quiet celebration occurred on Thursday that is of interest to many, when the family of John Harvard, Euclid avenue, assembled to celebrate his 86th birthday anniversary. The occasion was fittingly observed and his famous daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Armstrong, of New York City, were in New Castle for the occasion. They have returned to their home.

STAR OF WALES LODGE

Members of the Star of Wales Lodge, No. 60, True Ivorites of America, will hold a meeting on Saturday evening, November 24, at 7:30 o'clock, in their hall. Griffith Phillips, president, and Thomas Grey, vice president, will have charge. Reports of committees will be heard during the business period.

CONCLUDE VISIT

Mrs. Sarah Davies and Mrs. Catherine Merriman, of Youngstown, O., have concluded a visit with friends and relatives of the South Side. They attended the services held Sunday evening in the Emmanuel Baptist church while here.

LITTLE BEAVER

HURT ON SAW

Joe Knepp, while sawing wood with a buzz saw at the home of Ben Yoder on Thursday, he stepped on a piece of wood, causing him to slip and throwing him against the saw, sustaining a severe cut on the side which extended to his back. Fortunately, the saw machine, was not running at fullest rate of speed. He is reported to be resting as well as can be expected.

An appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace, S. Y. Douds of Ellwood City, has been taken by the defendant in the case of Dr. W. G. Evans against B. W. Applebaum, in which judgment was rendered by the justice in favor of the plaintiff for $22.

Appeal from the decision of Alderman L. C. Mantz has been filed at the prothonotary's office in the case of Wyatt Campbell against Richard R. Lewis. The controversy is over a bill and the decision of the alderman was in favor of the defendant. Campbell took the appeal.

Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard has posted a schedule of proposed disposition of proceeds of recent sheriff sales. Unless objections are raised within ten days from the filing of the schedule, the distribution will be confirmed. The ten days will be up on November 29th.

Henry Lightner, Superintendent of Highways, was in conference with county commissioners yesterday on matters pertaining to local highways. Lightner has finished the building of the New Wilmington-Volant road, and is finishing up a project in Slippery Rock township, and one in Shenango township.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor reports that three prosecutions for violations of the hunting laws have been made by Game Warden Frank Cohen. One was that of a non-resident hunting without a license, another that of a hunter having unlawful possession of game and a third that of hunter who had no license.

Sarah J. Arner has filed an action in assumpsit at the prothonotary's office against Harriet A. Elliott, executrix in the estate of Agusta Campbell, in which the prothonotary is directed to index a claim for $699 against the estate.

Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard has received notice to be on the lookout for Merton Ward Goodrich, 26, wanted in Detroit, Mich., for murder. He is described as being 5 feet, 10½ inches tall, weight, 120 pounds; sallow complexion; brown hair, partly bald; hazel eyes that bulge and stare; protruding ears and a scar on his right cheek. There is $3000 reward.

For the first time in the history of the county a record is being kept of all the calls received at the sheriff's office. A book, especially for that purpose, has been opened. The date of call, the person making the call, the complaint, and the action that was taken, together with remarks, are all jotted down.

County Treasurer William O. Pitts has a farm in North Beaver township on which he is using considerable dynamite. Under his direction the tenant is using the explosive to blow out stumps, trees and rocks. A hole is bored under the obstacle to be removed and a stick or two of dynamite inserted. It usually does the trick, and saves a large amount of labor.

Board of Trustees of the Mothers Assistant fund are beginning to realize that they have a pretty big job on hands in investigating the thirteen hundred or more applications which have been made for old age pensions. It now begins to look as though they would have to employ a special investigator to assist in the work.

Desire State Police Be Kept From Politics

Friends Of Organization Hopeful That No Change In Command Will Be Made

FEEL EFFICIENCY WOULD BE LOST

Hope is expressed by friends of the Pennsylvania state police that no change will be made in the control of the organization when the administration changes into Democratic hands at the first of the year.

Many intimations have been made of sweeping changes which are to take place in various state departments, and those who are in touch with the situation as it applies to the state police are fearful of the consequences if the control of the organization is placed in political hands.

When the state police force was organized in 1906, it was made a non-political organization and has remained as such since that date. Its members have never participated in political campaigns, and politics has been kept out of its administration, with the result that one of the most efficient police systems to be found in America has been built up.

If this present high efficiency is to be maintained, friends of the organization feel that it must not be allowed to pass into political hands, and they are making an effort to bring this fact to the attention of their local representatives.

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. November 20, 10 arrests on charges as follows: Drunkenness, 2; keeper of disorderly house, 1; visitors to disorderly house, 4; and violation of traffic regulations, 3.

Although seven youths of this city have been turned over to the custody of an alderman and will receive a hearing on charges of breaking, entering and larceny, it is apparent that some other youths here have paid no heed to the fact that the police may have required a little time to catch the boys but finally caught them. Almost nightly reports from the Moravia street and Long avenue section tell of someone's auto having been robbed or damaged.

City health department attaches are clamping tight quarantine on homes where contagion is discovered. Last spring there were hundreds of cases reported and attaches of the office were kept on the hop putting up and removing quarantine notices. As yet only 27 cases of contagion have been reported.

Bell Telephone company has been granted a permit by city council to build a conduit in Diamond street to the new postoffice building. It will be through this conduit that the telephone system to the new postoffice will run.

City council has passed an ordinance designating on what streets sledriding will not be prohibited this winter. It is expected that where a lane where sledriding is permitted intersects a thoroughfare through which heavy traffic occurs the police will have the street department place a heavy layer of ashes so that the likelihood of accident will be minimized.

When State of New Jersey Was Regarded as "Foreign"

AT ONE TIME, New Jersey was regarded as a foreign state. This was due to the fact that in 1817 the state legislature passed a law authorizing aliens to purchase and hold real estate within the boundaries of the state. Authorities of early New Jersey history believe that the law was passed specifically for the case of Joseph Bonaparte, eldest brother of Napoleon I, who fled to the United States after he had served as king of Spain. Joseph, who lived in this country until 1840, had acquired a tract of about 1,400 acres near Trenton. Before the law was passed, aliens were not permitted to own land.

Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., Seeking To Isolate Germ Of Influenza

Another long step towards the isolation of the influenza germ has been made by a New Castle scientist who is associated with the Rockefeller Foundation in New York City, Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., son of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Francis, of Craig street.

For some time Dr. Francis has been conducting experiments in an attempt to isolate the influenza germ and has found that the disease is caused by a sub-microscopic organism so small that it passes through the porcelain filters which hold back ordinary bacteria. His work in this respect agrees with recent reports by three British scientists, Drs. C. H. Andrewes, P. P. Laidlaw and W. Smith and previous studies by Dr. Richard E. Shope.

In his experiments, Dr. Francis innoculated both ferrets and mice with specimens of sputum taken from typical cases which occurred in Porto Rico in September of this year. His experiments proved the theories upon which he had been working and he was asked to prepare an article for "Science" which was printed.

Unfortunately Dr. Francis contracted the influenza himself from the animals with which he was experimenting. He is now about fully recovered and has again returned to the experimental laboratory where he intends to go further in his attempts to find a cure for the dread influenza.

He is a graduate of the New Castle high school, of Allegheny College and of Yale University. During the winter of 1933 he was personal physician to John D. Rockefeller during the latter's stay in Florida.

Senior High Play On December 7

January Graduating Class Preparing For Annual Play Presentation

December 7 has been set by the graduating class of the senior high school as the date of their presentation of the class play.

They have chosen "Big-Hearted Herbert" by Sophie Kerr and Anna Steese Richardson, an up-to-the-minute modern comedy on the younger generation, the income tax, the depression, a difficult parent, romance and similar themes of either eternal or current interest. "Big-Hearted Herbert" is good, wholesome fun from beginning to end, an ideal high school farce in the modern style.

The cast has not yet been chosen, but rehearsals are going on briskly with two groups of aspirants for the various roles, stimulating one another to continually better interpretations. This system of preparing for the selection of the cast has long been in force in the local school and has many obvious merits. Rivalry is spirited and the final cast of players can be depended on to produce a play with all the earmarks of professional acting.

The dramatics coach, Miss Clara Hartsuff, looks forward to a highly successful performance from this newest generation of her high school players. Miss Hartsuff's past record of well-produced plays of all types guarantees another evening of fun, entertainment and good acting to the numerous friends of the senior high school stage.

Next Generation Will Have To Pay For Federal Development Projects Although It May Not Require Them

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S. street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—As between straight-out charity and the stimulation of productive activity the Roosevelt administration is 100 per cent in favor of productive activity.

Its spokesmen, such as the president himself, Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Relief Director Harry Hopkins, have been emphasizing this idea strongly of late—apparently with a view to preparing the public's mind for the program the White House seemingly intends to urge when congress meets in January.

The preference is one with which, naturally, no sensible person can but be warmly in sympathy.

* * *

The question is:

Is so-called productive activity always as genuinely productive as it pretends to be, and maybe honestly believes that it is?

Shoveling down a hill to fill up a valley, and then shoveling out the valley again, to reconstruct the original hill, is work certainly, but purely wasted work. Socialists call it "made work" and incline to consider it rather worse than nothing at all.

Economically it has absolutely no value, anyway.

It has an additional disadvantage: It's an expensive method of dispensing charity. An unadulterated hand-out is just that much and no more. A shoveling job calls for engineering skill and supervision and an organization—all wasted, as completely as the shovelers' pay. It's doubtful that anyone's self-respect is saved, either; the bluff is too manifest.

* * *

Of course the creators of made work are not actually as crass as this.

Erecting them does provide considerable artificial employment, it's true—and probably it is made work so disguised that the workers don't recognize it as such, and their self-respect really is saved. But unfortunately the contractors are the folk who reap most of the benefit—which only goes to prove, as aforesaid, that it's a mighty expensive way of dispensing charity.

* * *

FAR AHEAD

But how about the government's colossal projects for Tennessee valley and Columbia river and perhaps Mississippi-Missouri basin development?—and for St. Lawrence development, too, if congress finally indorses it?

These schemes run into considerations involving issues of generations.

Who can estimate them?

They call for work now—but will not begin to yield results, to an appreciable extent, in less than 30 or 40 or 50 years.

They would appear to be a deadweight load on the present generation.

However, the present generation isn't footing the bill—it's being met by borrowing, on the security of government bonds—an obligation on the next generation.

* * *

So far, good—it may be. If the job is worth while to the next generation, pay for it; this generation having had the benefit of the employment involved, meantime.

However, will the job strike the next generation as having been worth while?

America's population is approaching the stationary. Will the next generation need all this new development? If not, the next generation will have it to pay for, and will wish it hadn't had it.

To the next generation it will look as if it had been made work to suit this generation's convenience.

* * *

Congress will have these problems to wrestle with next winter.

Five to seven addition billions of additional indebtedness are suggested.

The next generation is out of luck. It isn't here to speak for itself. The administration and congress will solve the puzzle in accordance with their necessities of today.

The generation to come will have its own salvation to hit on.

During the past two days Alderman Richard R. Lewis, of South Mill street, has heard three cases.

In the case of Constable Joseph W. Dukes versus Carl Krass, on a charge of an alien possessing a pistol, the defendant pleaded guilty. He was fined $25 and costs.

Ted Harris, of R. F. D. 2, charged with non-support and desertion, by his wife, Mary, was held for the December term of court. In default of bail, Harris was committed to the Lawrence county jail.

The case of Eddie and Bessie Walker versus Perry Wagner, of 16 West Lutton street, on a charge of assault and battery, was dropped, due to lack of evidence.

Sorority Pledging To Start Saturday

Silent Period After Rushing Season Now Prevails At Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Sorority rushing season ended Wednesday noon at Westminster College, according to Pan-Hellenic council regulations. Silent period starts Wednesday, and ends Friday at noon. Pledging will probably take place Saturday morning, since preferential cards must be turned in by first-year coeds by 8 o'clock Friday evening.

The seven sororities on the campus will probably pledge about 70 or 80 first-year women. The sororities are: Alpha Gamma Delta, Kappa Delta, Sigma Kappa, Theta Upsilon, Beta Phi Alpha, Chi Omega, and Omicron Mu Gamma.

Each of the seven sororities held one rushing party during the last two weeks, and each sorority will hand to a faculty referee a list of pledges. Freshman coeds will then be given preferential cards and will indicate their sorority choices on the cards. The referee will announce the results Saturday.

Hobby Prizes Are Announced

Miss Alice Joyce, children's librarian, today announced the following prize winners in the "hobby exhibit" which was a feature of National Book Week at the local public library:

The prizes were "books."

WIDE VARIETY OF PROFESSIONS ARE FOLLOWED BY CLUB

The new roster just printed by the Business and Professional Women's club lists, in addition to the names of members, their businesses or professions.

It is interesting to note the wide variety of positions held by the over 100 women. The teachers are there in strong numbers, as are nurses and store clerks. Then there are: Librarians, a lawyer, bookkeepers, an assistant funeral director, cashier, hostess, store owners and managers, stenogs and secretaries, an auditor, a beautician, principal, telegraph operator, insurance agent, physicians and post office clerk.

They have chosen "Big-Hearted Herbert" by Sophie Kerr and Anna Steese Richardson, an up-to-the-minute modern comedy on the younger generation, the income tax, the depression, a difficult parent, romance and similar themes of either eternal or current interest. "Big-Hearted Herbert" is good, wholesome fun from beginning to end, an ideal high school farce in the modern style.

The cast has not yet been chosen but rehearsals are going on briskly with two groups of aspirants for the various roles, stimulating one another to continually better interpretations. This system of preparing for the selection of the cast has long been in force in the local school and has many obvious merits. Rivalry is spirited and the final cast of players can be depended on to produce a play with all the earmarks of professional acting.

The dramatics coach, Miss Clara Hartsuff, looks forward to a highly successful performance from this newest generation of her high school players. Miss Hartsuff's past record of well-produced plays of all types guarantees another evening of fun, entertainment and good acting to the numerous friends of the senior high school stage.

Next Generation Will Have To Pay For Federal Development Projects Although It May Not Require Them

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S. street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—As between straight-out charity and the stimulation of productive activity the Roosevelt administration is 100 per cent in favor of productive activity.

Its spokesmen, such as the president himself, Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Relief Director Harry Hopkins, have been emphasizing this idea strongly of late—apparently with a view to preparing the public's mind for the program the White House seemingly intends to urge when congress meets in January.

The preference is one with which, naturally, no sensible person can but be warmly in sympathy.

* * *

HOW GENUINE?

The question is:

Shoveling down a hill to fill up a valley, and then shoveling out the valley again, to reconstruct the original hill, is work certainly, but purely wasted work. Socialists call it "made work" and incline to consider it rather worse than nothing at all.

Economically it has absolutely no value, anyway.

It has an additional disadvantage: It's an expensive method of dispensing charity. An unadulterated hand-out is just that much and no more. A shoveling job calls for engineering skill and supervision and an organization—all wasted, as completely as the shovelers' pay. It's doubtful that anyone's self-respect is saved, either; the bluff is too manifest.

* * *

Of course the creators of made work are not actually as crass as this.

Erecting them does provide considerable artificial employment, it's true—and probably it is made work so disguised that the workers don't recognize it as such, and their self-respect really is saved. But unfortunately the contractors are the folk who reap most of the benefit—which only goes to prove, as aforesaid, that it's a mighty expensive way of dispensing charity.

* * *

FAR AHEAD

But how about the government's colossal projects for Tennessee valley and Columbia river and perhaps Mississippi-Missouri basin development?—and for St. Lawrence development, too, if congress finally indorses it?

These schemes run into considerations involving issues of generations.

Who can estimate them?

They call for work now—but will not begin to yield results, to an appreciable extent, in less than 30 or 40 or 50 years.

They would appear to be a deadweight load on the present generation.

However, the present generation isn't footing the bill—it's being met by borrowing, on the security of government bonds—an obligation on the next generation.

* * *

WORTH WHILE?

So far, good—it may be. If the job is worth while to the next generation, pay for it; this generation having had the benefit of the employment involved, meantime.

However, will the job strike the next generation as having been worth while?

America's population is approaching the stationary. Will the next generation need all this new development? If not, the next generation will have it to pay for, and will wish it hadn't had it.

To the next generation it will look as if it had been made work to suit this generation's convenience.

* * *

FOR CONGRESS

Congress will have these problems to wrestle with next winter.

Five to seven addition billions of additional indebtedness are suggested.

The next generation is out of luck. It isn't here to speak for itself. The administration and congress will solve the puzzle in accordance with their necessities of today.

The generation to come will have its own salvation to hit on.

Alderman R. Lewis Hears Three Cases

During the past two days Alderman Richard R. Lewis, of South Mill street, has heard three cases.

In the case of Constable Joseph W. Dukes versus Carl Krass, on a charge of an alien possessing a pistol, the defendant pleaded guilty. He was fined $25 and costs.

Ted Harris, of R. F. D. 2, charged with non-support and desertion, by his wife, Mary, was held for the December term of court. In default of bail, Harris was committed to the Lawrence county jail.

The case of Eddie and Bessie Walker versus Perry Wagner, of 16 West Lutton street, on a charge of assault and battery, was dropped, due to lack of evidence.

Nearly 2,500,000 Britons have been found to be at least partially deaf.

Sorority Pledging To Start Saturday

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Sorority rushing season ended Wednesday noon at Westminster College, according to Pan-Hellenic council regulations. Silent period starts Wednesday, and ends Friday at noon. Pledging will probably take place Saturday morning, since preferential cards must be turned in by first-year coeds by 8 o'clock Friday evening.

The seven sororities on the campus will probably pledge about 70 or 80 first-year women. The sororities are: Alpha Gamma Delta, Kappa Delta, Sigma Kappa, Theta Upsilon, Beta Phi Alpha, Chi Omega, and Omicron Mu Gamma.

Each of the seven sororities held one rushing party during the last two weeks, and each sorority will hand to a faculty referee a list of pledges. Freshman coeds will then be given preferential cards and will indicate their sorority choices on the cards. The referee will announce the results Saturday.

Pompeii was being rebuilt after an earthquake which took place in the year 63 A. D. when Vesuvius buried it in the eruption of 79.

Hobby Prizes Are Announced

Miss Alice Joyce, children's librarian, today announced the following prize winners in the "hobby exhibit" which was a feature of National Book Week at the local public library:

The prizes were "books."

WIDE VARIETY OF PROFESSIONS ARE FOLLOWED BY CLUB

The new roster just printed by the Business and Professional Women's club lists, in addition to the names of members, their businesses or professions.

It is interesting to note the wide variety of positions held by the over 100 women. The teachers are there in strong numbers, as are nurses and store clerks. Then there are: Librarians, a lawyer, bookkeepers, an assistant funeral director, cashier, hostess, store owners and managers, stenogs and secretaries, an auditor, a beautician, principal, telegraph operator, insurance agent, physicians and post office clerk.

Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., Seeking To Isolate Germ Of Influenza

Another long step towards the isolation of the influenza germ has been made by a New Castle scientist who is associated with the Rockefeller Foundation in New York City, Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., son of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Francis, of Craig street.

For some time Dr. Francis has been conducting experiments in an attempt to isolate the influenza germ and has found that the disease is caused by a sub-microscopic organism so small that it passes through the porcelain filters which hold back ordinary bacteria. His work in this respect agrees with recent reports by three British scientists, Drs. C. H. Andrewes, P. P. Laidlaw and W. Smith and previous studies by Dr. Richard E. Shope.

In his experiments, Dr. Francis innoculated both ferrets and mice with specimens of sputum taken from typical cases which occurred in Porto Rico in September of this year. His experiments proved the theories upon which he had been working and he was asked to prepare an article for "Science" which was printed.

Unfortunately Dr. Francis contracted the influenza himself from the animals with which he was experimenting. He is now about fully recovered and has again returned to the experimental laboratory where he intends to go further in his attempts to find a cure for the dread influenza.

He is a graduate of the New Castle high school, of Allegheny College and of Yale University. During the winter of 1933 he was personal physician to John D. Rockefeller during the latter's stay in Florida.

Next Congress May Be Split Into Three Political Groups Bringing Plenty Of Friction

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Political partisanship seems likely to be in a state of almost complete fluidity when congress meets in Washington next January.

Some few solidifications into a couple of groups, or into a considerable number of groups, may have to develop before then, but the probabilities are that this tendency will not start to manifest itself until the processes of legislation encourage it.

Meantime analysis of the situation are puzzled by election's results beyond the capacity of the ablest of them to hit on any definite solution of the problem.

* * * *

CLEAVAGE

At first glance the voters' latest verdict may appear to have been so overwhelmingly one-sided as to leave the country with only one political party of enough consequence to be seriously reckoned with.

In addition to the fact that the administration has perfectly enormous Democratic majorities in both the senate and house of representatives, more than half the Republican candidates, who squeaked through, won on the strength of declarations that they favor the administration's program—or have no fault to find with it except that they advocate carrying it still farther.

However, no student of congressional history doubts that there is, in reality, a decided cleavage, somewhere, through the ranks of the newly-chosen lawmaking body's personnel, into liberals and conservatives.

* * * *

DIVIDING LINE

That this cleavage will become evident soon after the lawmakers begin law making is the practically unanimous judgment of the most experienced chroniclers of events on Capitol Hill.

Since Theodore Roosevelt ran for president as a Bull Moose, at the most recent calculation, it has been a commonplace that the Republican and Democratic parties have been nearly as alike as two peas; that a realignment alone can draw a distinction between voters, to give a meaning to their ballots, against one another.

The elder Roosevelt and subsequently the elder La Follette tried to effect such a realignment by the method of splitting off from the two old groups.

The plan failed to work that way.

But now, by accident, the two old groups have almost, if not quite, coalesced. Yet it isn't a satisfactory coalescence. There is, after all, a dividing line. Is the country on the verge of a natural division along that line?

* * * *

BLOCS

Maybe. Maybe not, also.

That is to say, if there's a split, it may be a split, not into two new parties, but into several.

The truth is that members of the national legislature have been divided into several parties for a long time. They have not been officially so described; they have been called "blocs", but these blocs actually have been separate parties. There have been occasional temporary coalitions among them, and disintegrations of these coalitions, and fresh coalitions along new lines. Their members have stuck to their Democratic and Republican labels, but they haven't been, consistently, either Democrats or Republicans. They have represented conflicting interests and philosophies; at least half a dozen of them.

MIDDLE ROAD

If it were possible to classify President Roosevelt as one thing or the other, left or right, it would be easy to think of the opposite side as abandoning his standard "en masse," in one-party formation.

But he doesn't so classify.

In the recent election his organization supported Senator Hiram W. Johnson, a Republican progressive in California, but frowned on Senator Bronson Cutting, a Republican progressive, in New Mexico. It was mighty cold toward Senator Royal S. Copeland, a Democratic conservative, in New York, but did its utmost for Joseph F. Guffey, decidedly a Democratic conservative, who defeated Senator David A. Reed in Pennsylvania.

In short, conservatism generally unquestionably regards the New Deal askance, as radical. Yet assuredly radicals will be slow to forget that Senator Cutting in New Mexico, Frazier in North Dakota, Shipstead in Minnesota and La Follette in Wisconsin got precious little administration help, running as progressives in their respective states in the late election.

* * * *

FRICTION

Thus it would appear that there will be at least three substantial groups in congress next winter:

1. President Roosevelt's, in the middle of the road.
2. The conservatives, for whom the administration is too advanced.
3. The ultra-progressives, for whom it isn't advanced enough.

Senator Johnson, for example, running for re-election in California, with the administration's blessing, couldn't well afford to be otherwise than pro-administration while the campaign was on, but he and his fellow-progressives may be too radical for the administration next winter, on the senate floor.

Joseph F. Guffey, helped by the administration to beat Senator Reed in Pennsylvania, naturally was pro-administration, too—while the campaign was on. But he may be too conservative for the administration on the senate floor.

Perhaps there'll be a two-way split, meaning a party realignment.

JACK LEBBY ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Jack Lebby of Highland avenue, who was injured when his automobile was forced off the Perry highway, near Zelienople, November 11, has recovered sufficiently to leave the Jameson Memorial hospital.

With his wife, and Mrs. Anna Raffel of the Leslie hotel, he was enroute to New York when the accident occurred.

Wolves Club Has Meeting Tuesday

Following a delicious chicken dinner, President Dr. John Palazzo called on Anthony Marino who responded with an interesting address on "Football." Mr. Marino relates his numerous grid experiences. The speaker paid a tribute to Coach Pop Warner, now at Temple, Dr. Jock Sutherland and Knute Rockne. Frank Sumners, one of the most active members, told of his experiences in New York. Secretary Sam Ross also said a few words.

Members of the organization brought an unusual amount of food stuffs which will be donated to the Margaret Henry Home. At the next regular meeting, scheduled for Tuesday evening, December 4, in The Castleton, officers for 1935 will be elected, it was announced. A large attendance was present at last night's meeting.

St. Vitus Knights Plan Big Banquet

Fete Will Take Place In New Clubhouse On Wednesday, November 28

Preliminary plans for a big banquet and dedication of the newly renovated Knights of St. Vitus hall were formulated at the regular meeting of the Knights of St. Vitus on Monday evening.

The building has been remodeled extensively. The fete will commence at 8 o'clock. The committees named to be in charge of the event follows: Angelo Filigenzi, dance music, Jack DeFonso, entertainment, Angelo Casacchia, arrangements, Francis Augostine, reception, Charles DeCarbo, business manager, Joseph Factor, table committee, Anthony Annicello, food committee, Anthony Villani, decoration and publicity committee.

At the next regular meeting, which will be announced later, officers for 1935 will be nominated.

ATTEND MEETING

Officers of the local Epworth League were much in evidence at a meeting of the various young people's societies executives at Volant last night. Plans were made for a drive to influence more younger people to affiliate with the various societies.

LOUISE SCOTT MEETING

Members of the Louise Scott society of the United Presbyterian church met Monday night in the church parlor for their guest meeting. An address by Miss Louise Scott, a missionary for whom the organization was named, addressed the gathering on "The Living Christ for the Life of the Community."

GUEST SPEAKER

Rev. Don P. Montgomery, pastor of the Pleasant Grove U. P. church of Youngstown, addressed the members of the United Presbyterian congregation on Sabbath morning.

Dr. J. Ralph Neale preached the thank-offering sermon in the Pleasant Grove church in exchange with Rev. Montgomery.

DEER HUNTERS

The old rifle is being thoroughly cleaned, hardware store cash registers are merrily ringing as the nimrods buy their ammunition, old hunting clothes are being dragged from the corners they were thrown in last year, and final preparations are being made for the deer season which comes in Dec. 1.

The New Wilmington Hunting and Fishing club, nestling in the hills of Clearfield county, will accommodate probably 15 or 20 of the local sharpshooters 'ere the season ends this year. Other camps maintained by local nimrod organizations are being prepared for the annual trip to the mountains in quest of deer.

Few in the community were fortunate enough last year to bag their buck, but nearly all vouchsafe that they will bring one of the fleet foots home this year. Some, however, will probably forget to take their guns with them, as was the case in one instance last year.

W. C. T. U. SPEAKER HERE

James Killet, president of the young peoples branch of the W. C. T. U., is spending the week visiting the schools of Lawrence County and on Thursday afternoon will be the speaker in the Community House to the students of the local high and grade schools at the regular weekly assembly. On Thursday evening Mr. Killet will present a stereoptican lecture at the Community House at 7:30 p. m., for the public.

NEW WILMINGTON NOTES

AN AMERICAN ACHIEVEMENT

AMERICA leads in telephone service. The rest of the world comes to America for telephone knowledge.

The telephone was invented in America. In its development tremendous obstacles have been overcome. Problems of science, of engineering, of research have been met and solved. Out of initial failures has been wrought success. Seeming impossibilities have been changed into accomplished facts—thenceforth to be taken as a matter of course.

The speed of the service, its clarity, its dependability, its relatively low cost to the user—all these are American achievements.

AMERICA also has the highest telephone development in the world—more than half of the world's telephones are in the United States. There are six times as many telephones in this country as in Europe in relation to population.

The growth of the telephone service results in an increasingly valuable service. It is the objective of the Bell System constantly to extend the scope and usefulness of the service.

Pennsylvania shares fully in this telephone leadership, for which the American spirit of initiative and progress has been responsible. American industry and sociability have put tremendous demands on all elements of the service. The telephone organization invites fullest, broadest use of its universal talk-ways.

Next Congress May Be Split Into Three Political Groups Bringing Plenty Of Friction

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Political partisanship seems likely to be in a state of almost complete fluidity when congress meets in Washington next January.

Some few solidifications into a couple of groups, or into a considerable number of groups, may have to develop before then, but the probabilities are that this tendency will not start to manifest itself until the processes of legislation encourage it.

Meantime analysis of the situation are puzzled by election's results beyond the capacity of the ablest of them to hit on any definite solution of the problem.

* * * *

CLEAVAGE

At first glance the voters' latest verdict may appear to have been so overwhelmingly one-sided as to leave the country with only one political party of enough consequence to be seriously reckoned with.

Koontz, of the Presbyterian church, will give an address at the afternoon session, while Rev. C. P. Durbin, of the Christian church, will preach the convention sermon at the evening services.

I. O. O. F. PAST GRANDS ASSOCIATION MEETS

Lawrence Co. Past Grands Association of I. O. O. F., held their regular meeting with the local I. O. O. F. lodge Tuesday evening. There were a great number of the members present from the various lodges of the county. A special program was given by No. 9 of Ellwood City.

Plan Meeting Of Engineering Group

Plans have been completed for the first meeting of the year of the Youngstown district branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, including those eligible within a radius of 30 miles of Youngstown. This will take place Friday evening, November 23, in the Youngstown Y. M. C. A. as a dinner meeting at 6:30 o'clock. The speaker will be Edward Cattel, of Philadelphia.

In addition to the speaker, E. M. Richards, chairman, states that there will be a musical program and plans for the year will be outlined by the program committee of which Henrik Ovesen is chairman. New members will be welcomed at the meeting.

Next Congress May Be Split Into Three Political Groups Bringing Plenty Of Friction

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Political partisanship seems likely to be in a state of almost complete fluidity when congress meets in Washington next January.

Some few solidifications into a couple of groups, or into a considerable number of groups, may have to develop before then, but the probabilities are that this tendency will not start to manifest itself until the processes of legislation encourage it.

Meantime analysis of the situation are puzzled by election's results beyond the capacity of the ablest of them to hit on any definite solution of the problem.

* * * *

CLEAVAGE

At first glance the voters' latest verdict may appear to have been so overwhelmingly one-sided as to leave the country with only one political party of enough consequence to be seriously reckoned with.

In addition to the fact that the administration has perfectly enormous Democratic majorities in both the senate and house of representatives, more than half the Republican candidates, who squeaked through, won on the strength of declarations that they favor the administration's program—or have no fault to find with it except that they advocate carrying it still farther.

However, no student of congressional history doubts that there is, in reality, a decided cleavage, somewhere, through the ranks of the newly-chosen lawmaking body's personnel, into liberals and conservatives.

* * * *

DIVIDING LINE

That this cleavage will become evident soon after the lawmakers begin law making is the practicnily unanimous judgment of the most experienced chroniclers of events on Capitol Hill.

Since Theodore Roosevelt ran for president as a Bull Moose, at the most recent calculation, it has been a commonplace that the Republican and Democratic parties have been nearly as alike as two peas; that a realignment alone can draw a distinction between voters, to give a meaning to their ballots, against one another.

The elder Roosevelt and subsequently the elder La Follette tried to effect such a realignment by the method of splitting off from the two old groups.

The plan failed to work that way.

But now, by accident, the two old groups have almost, if not quite, coalesced. Yet it isn't a satisfactory coalescence. There is, after all, a dividing line. Is the country on the verge of a natural division along that line?

* * * *

BLOCS

Maybe. Maybe not, also.

That is to say, if there's a split, it may be a split, not into two new parties, but into several.

The truth is that members of the national legislature have been divided into several parties for a long time. They have not been officially so described; they have been called "blocs", but these blocs actually have been separate parties. There have been occasional temporary coalitions among them, and disintegrations of these coalitions, and fresh coalitions along new lines. Their members have stuck to their Democratic and Republican labels, but they haven't been, consistently, either Democrats or Republicans. They have represented conflicting interests and philosophies; at least half a dozen of them.

MIDDLE ROAD

If it were possible to classify President Roosevelt as one thing or the other, left or right, it would be easy to think of the opposite side as abandoning his standard "en masse," in one-party formation.

But he doesn't so classify.

In the recent election his organization supported Senator Hiram W. Johnson, a Republican progressive in California, but frowned on Senator Bronson Cutting, a Republican progressive, in New Mexico. It was mighty cold toward Senator Royal S. Copeland, a Democratic conservative, in New York, but did its utmost for Joseph F. Guffey, decidedly a Democratic conservative, who defeated Senator David A. Reed in Pennsylvania.

In short, conservatism generally unquestionably regards the New Deal askance, as radical. Yet assuredly radicals will be slow to forget that Senator Cutting in New Mexico, Frazier in North Dakota, Shipstead in Minnesota and La Follette in Wisconsin got precious little administration help, running as progressives in their respective states in the late election.

* * * *

FRICTION

Thus it would appear that there will be at least three substantial groups in congress next winter:

1. President Roosevelt's, in the middle of the road.
2. The conservatives, for whom the administration is too advanced.
3. The ultra-progressives, for whom it isn't advanced enough.

Senator Johnson, for example, running for re-election in California, with the administration's blessing, couldn't well afford to be otherwise than pro-administration while the campaign was on, but he and his fellow-progressives may be too radical for the administration next winter, on the senate floor.

Joseph F. Guffey, helped by the administration to beat Senator Reed in Pennsylvania, naturally was pro-administration, too—while the campaign was on. But he may be too conservative for the administration on the senate floor.

Perhaps there'll be a two-way split, meaning a party realignment.

JACK LEBBY ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Jack Lebby of Highland avenue, who was injured when his automobile was forced off the Perry highway, near Zelienople, November 11, has recovered sufficiently to leave the Jameson Memorial hospital.

With his wife, and Mrs. Anna Raffel of the Leslie hotel, he was enroute to New York when the accident occurred.

Wolves Club Has Meeting Tuesday

Following a delicious chicken dinner, President Dr. John Palazzo called on Anthony Marino who responded with an interesting address on "Football." Mr. Marino relates his numerous grid experiences. The speaker paid a tribute to Coach Pop Warner, now at Temple, Dr. Jock Sutherland and Knute Rockne. Frank Sumners, one of the most active members, told of his experiences in New York. Secretary Sam Ross also said a few words.

Members of the organization brought an unusual amount of food stuffs which will be donated to the Margaret Henry Home. At the next regular meeting, scheduled for Tuesday evening, December 4, in The Castleton, officers for 1935 will be elected, it was announced. A large attendance was present at last night's meeting.

St. Vitus Knights Plan Big Banquet

Fete Will Take Place In New Clubhouse On Wednesday, November 28

Preliminary plans for a big banquet and dedication of the newly renovated Knights of St. Vitus hall were formulated at the regular meeting of the Knights of St. Vitus on Monday evening.

The building has been remodeled extensively. The fete will commence at 8 o'clock. The committees named to be in charge of the event follows: Angelo Filigenzi, dance music, Jack DeFonso, entertainment, Angelo Casacchia, arrangements, Francis Augostine, reception, Charles DeCarbo, business manager, Joseph Factor, table committee, Anthony Annicello, food committee, Anthony Villani, decoration and publicity committee.

At the next regular meeting, which will be announced later, officers for 1935 will be nominated.

New Wilmington News

ATTEND MEETING

Officers of the local Epworth League were much in evidence at a meeting of the various young people's societies executives at Volant last night. Plans were made for a drive to influence more younger people to affiliate with the various societies.

LOUISE SCOTT MEETING

Members of the Louise Scott society of the United Presbyterian church met Monday night in the church parlor for their guest meeting. An address by Miss Louise Scott, a missionary for whom the organization was named, addressed the gathering on "The Living Christ for the Life of the Community."

GUEST SPEAKER

Rev. Don P. Montgomery, pastor of the Pleasant Grove U. P. church of Youngstown, addressed the members of the United Presbyterian congregation on Sabbath morning.

Dr. J. Ralph Neale preached the thank-offering sermon in the Pleasant Grove church in exchange with Rev. Montgomery.

DEER HUNTERS

The old rifle is being thoroughly cleaned, hardware store cash registers are merrily ringing as the nimrods buy their ammunition, old hunting clothes are being dragged from the corners they were thrown in last year, and final preparations are being made for the deer season which comes in Dec. 1.

The New Wilmington Hunting and Fishing club, nestling in the hills of Clearfield county, will accommodate probably 15 or 20 of the local sharpshooters 'ere the season ends this year. Other camps maintained by local nimrod organizations are being prepared for the annual trip to the mountains in quest of deer.

Few in the community were fortunate enough last year to bag their buck, but nearly all vouchsafe that they will bring one of the fleet foots home this year. Some, however, will probably forget to take their guns with them, as was the case in one instance last year.

W. C. T. U. SPEAKER HERE

James Killet, president of the young peoples branch of the W. C. T. U., is spending the week visiting the schools of Lawrence County and on Thursday afternoon will be the speaker in the Community House to the students of the local high and grade schools at the regular weekly assembly. On Thursday evening Mr. Killet will present a stereoptican lecture at the Community House at 7:30 p. m., for the public.

NEW WILMINGTON NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Wallace and family have moved from their home here on South Market street to Akron, Ohio, where they will make their future home.

Donnie Whitman, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Walt Whitman has returned to his home after undergoing an operation at the Jameson Memorial hospital in New Castle.

NEW WILMINGTON NOTES

Paul Spear was a guest in Tarentum, Pa., over the week-end.

AN AMERICAN ACHIEVEMENT

AMERICA leads in telephone service. The rest of the world comes to America for telephone knowledge.

The telephone was invented in America. In its development tremendous obstacles have been overcome. Problems of science, of engineering, of research have been met and solved. Out of initial failures has been wrought success. Seeming impossibilities have been changed into accomplished facts—thenceforth to be taken as a matter of course.

The speed of the service, its clarity, its dependability, its relatively low cost to the user—all these are American achievements.

AMERICA also has the highest telephone development in the world—more than half of the world's telephones are in the United States. There are six times as many telephones in this country as in Europe in relation to population.

The growth of the telephone service results in an increasingly valuable service. It is the objective of the Bell System constantly to extend the scope and usefulness of the service.

Pennsylvania shares fully in this telephone leadership, for which the American spirit of initiative and progress has been responsible. American industry and sociability have put tremendous demands on all elements of the service. The telephone organization invites fullest, broadest use of its universal talk-ways.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Associated with the Bell System—participating in and benefiting from the telephone research, telephone development and nation-wide telephone experience which have given America the world leadership in telephone service.

SAYS COMING WINTER WILL BE "AVERAGE"

Weather Man Is Interviewed

Says Forecasts Can Only Be Made For Few Days At Best

CAN'T TELL HOW COLD IT WILL BE

By JAMES C. KINKAID
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Unless you enjoy cold weather you may just as well get ready for a jaunt to Florida or California for the next few months.

Because this is going to be an "average" winter, according to W. S. Brotzman, chief of the local weather bureau. That is what he told International News Service today in an exclusive interview.

What is average? According to the meteorologist, an average winter is a cold one with a few days of sub-zero temperatures thrown in by mother nature to keep the records balanced. He hastened to add, however:

Can't Predict Far Ahead

"There's not a man alive who can tell you whether this winter will be colder than last year. No one can predict what the weather will be more than a few days ahead. It is impossible to predict what the weather will be more than two or three days ahead with absolute accuracy. Even forecasting 24 hours ahead is a difficult task at times."

This is due, he explained, to the irregular paths over which high and low pressure areas move. Some of these high and low pressure zones will move thousands of miles in 24 hours while others will remain stationary for days at a time. And the rapidity with which these areas move and the directions they take all have a direct bearing on what the weather will be in any particular section. The "weather men," however, average about 85 per cent of perfect in their prognostications, he added.

Last Year Subnormal

Last year's subnormal temperatures were due, he said, to storms which swept across Canada, and, when apparently headed toward the St. Lawrence valley, suddenly veered southward into the United States.

"No man could predict a week ahead of time what those disturbances would do," he said.

Another oddity that generally baffles the layman is that the heaviest snowstorms come from the south. He points out:

"Of course, some storms come Canada but they are generally the ones which bring us cold waves. The deepest snows come from disturbances which generally begin in or near the Gulf of Mexico. These sweep northward, heavily laden with moisture, and have little opportunity to discharge it until they reach this region. On the other hand, the Canadian storms cross virtually dry country from the time they begin until they reach this district and have picked up little, if any, moisture."

State "Ice Boxes"

Pennsylvania's valleys create a number of so-called "ice-boxes," the weather man explained, because the cold air is drawn down into them. In some of the valleys in the northern counties, such as McKean, Elk, Potter and Cameron counties, temperatures fall nearly as low as those in North Dakota. The reason for this is that the cold air is drawn down into the valleys and there is no nearby large bodies of water to offset this. Nearer the Great Lakes, although farther north, the large bodies of water begin to neutralize the effects of the cold.

Brotzman believes that high altitude weather observations now being made with the army and navy's co-operation, will result in more accurate forecasts.

He said, on this point:

"We've known for a long time that there is something different going on up above us which surface observations do not show. We were never able to find out definitely what it was until recently. With the 16 stations now taking high altitude observations at 17,000 feet, a little over three miles in the air, we hope to learn new means of forecasting weather conditions. We will probably even be able to make forecasts a week ahead once we learn what is happening up above."

Oh, yes, the next time you go on a picnic or a trip and it rains when the weather forecast said fair, don't blame Brotzman. He doesn't make the forecast. Laughingly, he said:

"We take the blame for them but we don't make them. All weather forecasts for this district are made in Washington and telegraphed to Pittsburgh."

Convention At Bessemer Church

Thursday the Mt. Jackson district Sabbath School association will have a convention in the Bessemer Presbyterian church, Bessemer, with the afternoon session beginning at 2 o'clock, with the county officers taking part in the program.

Dinner will be served for visiting delegates in the church dining room, after which there will be an evening session.

Today

Air, Water, Power.

Here's Romance.

Pursuing Beetles.

A Serious Mikado.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, praising workers in the Tennessee Valley for their efficiency, made one of the most important speeches that he, or any other president or ruler of a country, ever made.

He promises CHEAP POWER. Not all the plans to drive away depression could do one-tenth as much as really cheap power for all.

NATURE GAVE man free air and free water, not much else free. If science and wise government can add to free air and free water POWER UNLIMITED, as nearly free as possible, that will mean another step toward the desired millennium.

Cheap power for farms, factories and homes: cheap power, giving the light necessary for study; power that means conquest of nature and her hardships, will free men from slavery.

THERE ARE at least ten moving pictures in the story, "Couple Found Dead on Lonely Isle in the Pacific."

A man and women, supposedly married, were found dead of starvation and thirst. She had lived longer, covered his dead face with a coat, died a little later. Baby clothes, but no baby, were found.

On a nearby island there dwells a group of nudists, and there is the story of "a German baroness, with flashing eyes" that went to a third island with three gentlemen, of whom she is supposed to have shot one, after proclaiming herself empress of the island. She lived in "shorts." What more would you ask of romance?

THE UNFORTUNATE man and woman found dead realized too late that civilization has its charms and its safety. Nudism with bare feet was the start. Clothing, automobile, airplane, etc., is an improvement.

Rousseau's idea of primitive man and his happiness is bosh. Primitive man was never happy, always frightened, usually diseased, and died young.

ALSO SPEAKING of money, what it means and does not mean, observe that the unfortunate German professor and his wife, found dead on that chalk white island in the Pacific, had a considerable sum of money in French banknotes.

That money did them no good.

With all the banknotes, all the gold on earth piled up on that island, they would still have died of thirst and starvation.

THE FRENCH have a saying: On prend son bonheur ou on le trouve. "Each takes his happiness where he finds it." Some seek money, some praise and glory, some care nothing for the present, yearning to be remembered in centuries to come.

He climbed and crawled all the way up to look for one particular beetle, missing in the Harvard collection, and it was worth climbing for twenty-six days, cutting his way through brush, where native climbers would not follow. He found up there the beetle he wanted, other queer beetles that could not fly, many queer insects.

TO SOME that will seem a dull climb, but something has been added to men's knowledge, and ten thousand years hence, men will read about that solitary beetle climb up a dangerous mountain peak that have never heard of the charge of the Light Brigade, or even of Theodore Roosevelt going up San Juan Hill.

IN FRENCH history you read of a conscientious cook who committed suicide when the fish was bad, or failed to arrive on time. That happended centuries ago.

Today a police official in Japan attempts to commit suicide because he shared responsibility for a blunder that caused the Japanese mikado to make an unnecessary detour in a formal procession. He did not want to live, for his mistake meant disgrace extending to his wife, five children, and all close relations.

Because of this little "detour" incident, which would only bring a good natured smile to the face of a British king or American President, it is suggested Japan's home minister will probably resign.

They take their mikados seriously in Japan, and that is one reason why they fight hard for him and believe nothing impossible with "the virtue of the mikado" back of it.

FROM NICE comes gossip about dissatisfaction in Italy, because of bad business and trade conditions, and a story that Balbo, the Italian flier with the impressive short beard, is 'challenging the power of Mussolini."

If this be true, the wise would rather NOT be Balbo. 'Challenging the power of Mussolini" is a good deal like undertaking to swim Niagara rapids. You always go through, once you start, but you are not easily recognized at the lower end.

IN TEXAS, at Gladewater, a fine oil well is blowing and spouting, in the center of the Roosevelt cemetary, one mile outside the town. Tall pine trees rise near the graves, but the spouting oil rises higher.

If ghosts of the dead could rise, and sit on their tombstones at midnight, as they did in Robert Burns' poem, that well would surprise them.

Still more would they be surprised to learn that oil thus spouting was created tens of millions of years ago, by tiny creatures that once lived in the ocean on or near the spot where the graves now stand

Will Attend State Y.M.C.A. Sessions

New Castle Party Will Go To Harrisburg Over Coming Week End

General Secretary R. L. Meermans of the Young Men's Christian Association, accompanied by John Butler, member of the Y board of directors, and Physical Director Henry MacNicholas, will attend the annual state convention of Pennsylvania's Y. M. C. A. at Harrisburg on November 25 and 26.

Mr. Meermans will participate in the meeting of the state young men's committee, of which he is a member, while Mr. MacNicholas will attend a special conference of Y physical directors. Mr. Butler will represent the board at the general sessions.

Jail Sentence For Stadium Battler

Jack Regna, West Lawrence street, was sent to the county jail for 40 days by Alderman Wallace J. Ewing late Tuesday as a result of his assault upon R. L. Stewart, school district officer, during the New Castle-Butler game at Taggart stadium last Saturday.

Regna pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery and disorderly conduct, placed by Stewart, when he was arraigned for a hearing.

Lehman Party To Speak Here

The McKinney Bible class of the First Presbyterian church will be host to the Junior Lehman evangelistic party Friday evening at 6:30 in the dining room of the church for dinner.

At 8 p. m. there will be a public evangelistic meeting in the church auditorium with the Lehman party in charge.

NABBED FOR FORCING CARS OFF HIGHWAY

Kattowsky refused to pay the $25 fine and costs to Squire W. C. Lardin for reckless driving. They took him to the Butler jail. There he changed his mind and decided to pay, so a constable took him back to Portersville. This ran up mileage costs considerably.

The fine and costs finally came to $34, which officials think is a good deal for a little "innocent" entertainment.

St. Just in Penwith is the name of a small English town of 5,000 population.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Held For Court On Larceny Charge

After a hearing before Alderman H. G. Coates Tuesday night, Wayne Belton, who stated that his home is in North Carolina, was held for the December term of court.

Belton is charged with larceny of an automobile in New Castle on November 4, owned by Ralph Pence, of North Beaver street. He claims, however, that he had nothing to do with the theft. At the hearing he said that at the time the automobile was stolen he was hitch-hiking in the Cleveland vicinity and that he was picked up by a man with whom he was slightly acquainted. They drove to Waynesburg, Pa., and were stopped by state police after they had ordered gasoline without paying for it. Both Belton and his companion made a dash for freedom. Belton was caught and the other got away.

Belton claims that he did not know he was a passenger in a stolen car.

CLASS GATHERING

Later a delicious lunch was served the group by Mrs. W. I. McCartney and daughter, Mrs. Ruth Johnston. One special guest, Miss Alma Smith, was present.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday evening, December 18, at the home of Louis Turk, North Liberty street.

MEET AT SCHOOL

The Mahoningtown Girl Scouts met at Mahoning school after classes on Tuesday. Patrol 3 opened the meeting. Games followed and were enjoyed by the thirty scouts.

A novel fire prevention questionnaire was presented and the scouts successfully answered it, thus passing their fire prevention test.

Two girls were appointed to help the Lawrence County Tuberculosis society in the distribution of Christmas seal posters. They are Jane Bollinger and Marian Unangst.

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday at 4:00 p. m.

BASKETBAL PRACTICE

Basketball is now the chief interest among the Mahoning school athletic-minded students. Regular after-school practices are being conducted by Coach Austin Cowmeadow. The boys are showing up to good advantage and it is believed that the team will be an unusually fine one.

ENGINEERS' WIVES

GOING TO BALL

HUNTERS ACTIVE

Every morning seventh ward men, with red caps, and shotguns under their arms, can be seen leaving the city limits in every direction. Hours later they drift back again, carrying rabbits, squirrels or an occasional pheasant. The small game season will be ended for the most part with the passing of November.

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

C. Price, of the Liberty Hotel, spent Sunday and Monday in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Williams and grandson, Stanley, III, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, were Monday visitors here.

Walter Waid, Jr., of West Clayton street, is leaving today for Jamestown, Pa., where he will spend the remainder of the week.

W. C. Powers, of the Mt. Jackson road, who had been working for the Pennsylvania railroad out of Erie is now working out of New Castle.

Radio Club Leader To Speak Thursday Before City Group

Members of the Western Pennsylvania Mike and Key club will hear the president of the Beaver Valley Radio club, Mr. Walcbak, known to amateur operators at W8DWV", at their regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday, November 22, at 8 p. m.

A special business session will feature.

POWER RATE CUTS AT YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 21.—Electric light and power bills for Youngstown consumers for December will be filed at lower rates, C. S. MacCalla, division manager of the Ohio Edison company, announced today.

The present scale for domestic consumers is 5.5 cents a kilowatt hour for the first 40 kilowatt hours, and 5 cents thereafter. This is to be replaced by a sliding scale, with the first 90 kilowatt hours at 5 cents, the next 30 at 3 cents and all over 120 at 2 cents.

DOG GOES WITH ROBBER

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—A burglar who ransacked a fraternity house on the Colorado Agricultural college campus took along a large police dog that was kept in the house to protect it. The animal returned the next day.

Will Hear Judge At Y. M. Banquet

Association's Clubs Frolic In Gala Fellowship Program Tonight

Inaugurating the first of what may become periodical Club Fellowship Night banquets, the Committee of Twelve of the local Young Men's Christian Association plays host tonight to the membership of almost every Y club at a dinner-program and athletic carnival which will open at 6:30 and continue almost to midnight.

Judge Ralph H. Smith, prominent Pittsburgh jurist, will be the principal speaker during the program immediately following the dinner. His subject is not known.

Elroy Lockley will be the evening's toastmaster with W. O. "Red" Williams as song leader and Jack Huston at the piano. Gerald McElhaney will play a special piano number. President George E. Lyon of the board of directors of the Y will give the invocation before dinner.

Featuring the evening will be the short talks of representatives of five clubs, the Senior Hi-Y, Uparatasa, Key Men, Phalanx and Y's Men, outlining the objectives of those groups.

Promptly at 8:30 or near that Dario Baptiste, chairman of the sports program for the evening, will unfold his bag of gymnasium surprises for each and every fellow to enjoy. Every department will be open for the use of the participants and in ping pong, checkers and the other minor sports the competition will be as keen as in volley ball, wrestling and basketball. Working with Baptiste in arranging the evening's sports program has been his fellow members of the Key Men's club.

Something has been arranged for every minute tonight, from 6:30 through until 11:30.

KIDNEY VICTIM NOW SPEAKS UP

Mrs. Hockley Is Praising The Indo-Vin; Had Awful Back Pains, Weakness

Mrs. Johanna Hockley, of 560 Camp St., Harrisburg, Pa., is still another former victim of kidney trouble who is publicly praising the new, scientific medicine made from Nature's Plants, known as Indo-Vin, which is being introduced to the public daily here in NEW CASTLE at Eckerd's Drug Store. Following is this well-known lady's statement:

Mrs. Hockley

"For years I suffered with kidney trouble," said Mrs. Hockley. "This kept getting worse all the time and I always felt weak and sore across my kidneys; then during the day, if I happened to stoop over, sharp pains would almost stifle me. I never knew what it was to get a decent night of rest because I had to get up to relieve my kidneys 3 or 4 times. I always felt 'fagged out' in the mornings and would drag through the day in constant misery.

"My condition was simply awful, but Indo-Vin went right to the source of my trouble. It had a wonderful action on my kidneys and the sharp pains in my back have now DISAPPEARED, and you don't know what a wonderful relief that is to me. I feel fine in the mornings now, for I NEVER have to get up at nights on account of my kidneys. It has improved my WHOLE SYSTEM and I want to publicly endorse it to all suffering people."

Eckerd's Drug Store here in New Castle is now introducing and explaining this great mixture of Nature's Medicines to the local public. It is also being sold in the nearby towns by every good druggist.

SAYS COMING WINTER WILL BE "AVERAGE"

Weather Man Is Interviewed

Says Forecasts Can Only Be Made For Few Days At Best

CAN'T TELL HOW COLD IT WILL BE

By JAMES C. KINKAID
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Unless you enjoy cold weather you may just as well get ready for a jaunt to Florida or California for the next few months.

Because this is going to be an "average" winter, according to W. S. Brotzman, chief of the local weather bureau. That is what he told International News Service today in an exclusive interview.

What is average? According to the meteorologist, an average winter is a cold one with a few days of sub-zero temperatures thrown in by mother nature to keep the records balanced. He hastened to add, however:

Can't Predict Far Ahead

"There's not a man alive who can tell you whether this winter will be colder than last year. No one can predict what the weather will be more than a few days ahead. It is impossible to predict what the weather will be more than two or three days ahead with absolute accuracy. Even forecasting 24 hours ahead is a difficult task at times."

This is due, he explained, to the irregular paths over which high and low pressure areas move. Some of these high and low pressure zones will move thousands of miles in 24 hours while others will remain stationary for days at a time. And the rapidity with which these areas move and the directions they take all have a direct bearing on what the weather will be in any particular section. The "weather men," however, average about 85 per cent of perfect in their prognostications, he added.

Last Year Subnormal

Last year's subnormal temperatures were due, he said, to storms which swept across Canada, and, when apparently headed toward the St. Lawrence valley, suddenly veered southward into the United States.

"No man could predict a week ahead of time what those disturbances would do," he said.

Another oddity that generally baffles the layman is that the heaviest snowstorms come from the south. He points out:

"Of course, some storms come Canada but they are generally the ones which bring us cold waves. The deepest snows come from disturbances which generally begin in or near the Gulf of Mexico. These sweep northward, heavily laden with moisture, and have little opportunity to discharge it until they reach this region. On the other hand, the Canadian storms cross virtually dry country from the time they begin until they reach this district and have picked up little, if any, moisture."

State "Ice Boxes"

Pennsylvania's valleys create a number of so-called "ice-boxes," the weather man explained, because the cold air is drawn down into them. In some of the valleys in the northern counties, such as McKean, Elk, Potter and Cameron counties, temperatures fall nearly as low as those in North Dakota. The reason for this is that the cold air is drawn down into the valleys and there is no nearby large bodies of water to offset this. Nearer the Great Lakes, although farther north, the large bodies of water begin to neutralize the effects of the cold.

Brotzman believes that high altitude weather observations now being made with the army and navy's co-operation, will result in more accurate forecasts.

He said, on this point:

"We've known for a long time that there is something different going on up above us which surface observations do not show. We were never able to find out definitely what it was until recently. With the 16 stations now taking high altitude observations at 17,000 feet, a little over three miles in the air, we hope to learn new means of forecasting weather conditions. We will probably even be able to make forecasts a week ahead once we learn what is happening up above."

Oh, yes, the next time you go on a picnic or a trip and it rains when the weather forecast said fair, don't blame Brotzman. He doesn't make the forecast. Laughingly, he said:

"We take the blame for them but we don't make them. All weather forecasts for this district are made in Washington and telegraphed to Pittsburgh."

Convention At Bessemer Church

Thursday the Mt. Jackson district Sabbath School association will have a convention in the Bessemer Presbyterian church, Bessemer, with the afternoon session beginning at 2 o'clock, with the county officers taking part in the program.

Dinner will be served for visiting delegates in the church dining room, after which there will be an evening session.

Today

Air, Water, Power.

Here's Romance.

Pursuing Beetles.

A Serious Mikado.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, praising workers in the Tennessee Valley for their efficiency, made one of the most important speeches that he, or any other president or ruler of a country, ever made.

He promises CHEAP POWER. Not all the plans to drive away depression could do one-tenth as much as really cheap power for all.

NATURE GAVE man free air and free water, not much else free. If science and wise government can add to free air and free water POWER UNLIMITED, as nearly free as possible, that will mean another step toward the desired millennium.

Cheap power for farms, factories and homes; cheap power, giving the light necessary for study; power that means conquest of nature and her hardships, will free men from slavery.

THERE ARE at least ten moving pictures in the story, "Couple Found Dead on Lonely Isle in the Pacific."

A man and women, supposedly married, were found dead of starvation and thirst. She had lived longer, covered his dead face with a coat, died a little later. Baby clothes, but no baby, were found.

On a nearby island there dwells a group of nudists, and there is the story of "a German baroness, with flashing eyes" that went to a third island with three gentlemen, of whom she is supposed to have shot one, after proclaiming herself empress of the island. She lived in "shorts." What more would you ask of romance?

THE UNFORTUNATE man and woman found dead realized too late that civilization has its charms and its safety. Nudism with bare feet was the start. Clothing, automobile, airplane, etc., is an improvement.

Rousseau's idea of primitive man and his happiness is bosh. Primitive man was never happy, always frightened, usually diseased, and died young.

ALSO SPEAKING of money, what it means and does not mean, observe that the unfortunate German professor and his wife, found dead on that chalk white island in the Pacific, had a considerable sum of money in French banknotes.

That money did them no good.

With all the banknotes, all the gold on earth piled up on that island, they would still have died of thirst and starvation.

THE FRENCH have a saying: On prend son bonheur ou on le trouve. "Each takes his happiness where he finds it." Some seek money, some praise and glory, some care nothing for the present, yearning to be remembered in centuries to come.

He climbed and crawled all the way up to look for one particular beetle, missing in the Harvard collection, and it was worth climbing for twenty-six days, cutting his way through brush, where native climbers would not follow. He found up there the beetle he wanted, other queer beetles that could not fly, many queer insects.

TO SOME that will seem a dull climb, but something has been added to men's knowledge, and ten thousand years hence, men will read about that solitary beetle climb up a dangerous mountain peak that have never heard of the charge of the Light Brigade, or even of Theodore Roosevelt going up San Juan Hill.

IN FRENCH history you read of a conscientious cook who committed suicide when the fish was bad, or failed to arrive on time. That happended centuries ago.

Today a police official in Japan attempts to commit suicide because he shared responsibility for a blunder that caused the Japanese mikado to make an unnecessary detour in a formal procession. He did not want to live, for his mistake meant disgrace extending to his wife, five children, and all close relations.

Because of this little "detour" incident, which would only bring a good natured smile to the face of a British king or American President, it is suggested Japan's home minister will probably resign.

They take their mikados seriously in Japan, and that is one reason why they fight hard for him and believe nothing impossible with "the virtue of the mikado" back of it.

FROM NICE comes gossip about dissatisfaction in Italy, because of bad business and trade conditions, and a story that Balbo, the Italian flier with the impressive short beard, is 'challenging the power of Mussolini."

If this be true, the wise would rather NOT be Balbo. 'Challenging the power of Mussolini" is a good deal like undertaking to swim Niagara rapids. You always go through, once you start, but you are not easily recognized at the lower end.

IN TEXAS, at Gladewater, a fine oil well is blowing and spouting, in the center of the Roosevelt cemetary, one mile outside the town. Tall pine trees rise near the graves, but the spouting oil rises higher.

If ghosts of the dead could rise, and sit on their tombstones at midnight, as they did in Robert Burns' poem, that well would surprise them.

Still more would they be surprised to learn that oil thus spouting was created tens of millions of years ago, by tiny creatures that once lived in the ocean on or near the spot where the graves now stand

Will Attend State Y.M.C.A. Sessions

New Castle Party Will Go To Harrisburg Over Coming Week End

General Secretary R. L. Meermans of the Young Men's Christian Association, accompanied by John Butler, member of the Y board of directors, and Physical Director Henry MacNicholas, will attend the annual state convention of Pennsylvania's Y. M. C. A. at Harrisburg on November 25 and 26.

Mr. Meermans will participate in the meeting of the state young men's committee, of which he is a member, while Mr. MacNicholas will attend a special conference of Y physical directors. Mr. Butler will represent the board at the general sessions.

Jail Sentence For Stadium Battler

Jack Regna, West Lawrence street, was sent to the county jail for 40 days by Alderman Wallace J. Ewing late Tuesday as a result of his assault upon R. L. Stewart, school district officer, during the New Castle-Butler game at Taggart stadium last Saturday.

Regna pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery and disorderly conduct, placed by Stewart, when he was arraigned for a hearing.

Lehman Party To Speak Here

The McKinney Bible class of the First Presbyterian church will be host to the Junior Lehman evangelistic party Friday evening at 6:30 in the dining room of the church for dinner.

At 8 p. m. there will be a public evangelistic meeting in the church auditorium with the Lehman party in charge.

NABBED FOR FORCING CARS OFF HIGHWAY

Kattowsky refused to pay the $25 fine and costs to Squire W. C. Lardin for reckless driving. They took him to the Butler jail. There he changed his mind and decided to pay, so a constable took him back to Portersville. This ran up mileage costs considerably.

The fine and costs finally came to $34, which officials think is a good deal for a little "innocent" entertainment.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Held For Court On Larceny Charge

After a hearing before Alderman H. G. Coates Tuesday night, Wayne Belton, who stated that his home is in North Carolina, was held for the December term of court.

Belton is charged with larceny of an automobile in New Castle on November 4, owned by Ralph Pence, of North Beaver street. He claims, however, that he had nothing to do with the theft. At the hearing he said that at the time the automobile was stolen he was hitch-hiking in the Cleveland vicinity and that he was picked up by a man with whom he was slightly acquainted. They drove to Waynesburg, Pa., and were stopped by state police after they had ordered gasoline without paying for it. Both Belton and his companion made a dash for freedom. Belton was caught and the other got away.

Belton claims that he did not know he was a passenger in a stolen car.

CLASS GATHERING

Later a delicious lunch was served the group by Mrs. W. I. McCartney and daughter, Mrs. Ruth Johnston. One special guest, Miss Alma Smith, was present.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday evening, December 18, at the home of Louis Turk, North Liberty street.

MEET AT SCHOOL

The Mahoningtown Girl Scouts met at Mahoning school after classes on Tuesday. Patrol 3 opened the meeting. Games followed and were enjoyed by the thirty scouts.

A novel fire prevention questionnaire was presented and the scouts successfully answered it, thus passing their fire prevention test.

Two girls were appointed to help the Lawrence County Tuberculosis society in the distribution of Christmas seal posters. They are Jane Bollinger and Marian Unangst.

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday at 4:00 p. m.

BASKETBAL PRACTICE

Basketball is now the chief interest among the Mahoning school athletic-minded students. Regular after-school practices are being conducted by Coach Austin Cowmeadow. The boys are showing up to good advantage and it is believed that the team will be an unusually fine one.

ENGINEERS' WIVES

GOING TO BALL

HUNTERS ACTIVE

Every morning seventh ward men, with red caps, and shotguns under their arms, can be seen leaving the city limits in every direction. Hours later they drift back again, carrying rabbits, squirrels or an occasional pheasant. The small game season will be ended for the most part with the passing of November.

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

C. Price, of the Liberty Hotel, spent Sunday and Monday in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Williams and grandson, Stanley, III, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, were Monday visitors here.

Walter Waid, Jr., of West Clayton street, is leaving today for Jamestown, Pa., where he will spend the remainder of the week.

W. C. Powers, of the Mt. Jackson road, who had been working for the Pennsylvania railroad out of Erie is now working out of New Castle.

Radio Club Leader To Speak Thursday Before City Group

Members of the Western Pennsylvania Mike and Key club will hear the president of the Beaver Valley Radio club, Mr. Walcbak, known to amateur operators at W8DWV", at their regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday, November 22, at 8 p. m.

A special business session will feature.

Weather Man Is Interviewed

Says Forecasts Can Only Be Made For Few Days At Best

CAN'T TELL HOW COLD IT WILL BE

By JAMES C. KINKAID
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Unless you enjoy cold weather you may just as well get ready for a jaunt to Florida or California for the next few months.

Because this is going to be an "average" winter, according to W. S. Brotzman, chief of the local weather bureau. That is what he told International News Service today in an exclusive interview.

What is average? According to the meteorologist, an average winter is a cold one with a few days of sub-zero temperatures thrown in by mother nature to keep the records balanced. He hastened to add, however:

Can't Predict Far Ahead

"There's not a man alive who can tell you whether this winter will be colder than last year. No one can predict what the weather will be more than a few days ahead. It is impossible to predict what the weather will be more than two or three days ahead with absolute accuracy. Even forecasting 24 hours ahead is a difficult task at times."

This is due, he explained, to the irregular paths over which high and low pressure areas move. Some of these high and low pressure zones will move thousands of miles in 24 hours while others will remain stationary for days at a time. And the rapidity with which these areas move and the directions they take all have a direct bearing on what the weather will be in any particular section. The "weather men," however, average about 85 per cent of perfect in their prognostications, he added.

Last Year Subnormal

Last year's subnormal temperatures were due, he said, to storms which swept across Canada, and, when apparently headed toward the St. Lawrence valley, suddenly veered southward into the United States.

"No man could predict a week ahead of time what those disturbances would do," he said.

Another oddity that generally baffles the layman is that the heaviest snowstorms come from the south. He points out:

"Of course, some storms come Canada but they are generally the ones which bring us cold waves. The deepest snows come from disturbances which generally begin in or near the Gulf of Mexico. These sweep northward, heavily laden with moisture, and have little opportunity to discharge it until they reach this region. On the other hand, the Canadian storms cross virtually dry country from the time they begin until they reach this district and have picked up little, if any, moisture."

State "Ice Boxes"

Pennsylvania's valleys create a number of so-called "ice-boxes," the weather man explained, because the cold air is drawn down into them. In some of the valleys in the northern counties, such as McKean, Elk, Potter and Cameron counties, temperatures fall nearly as low as those in North Dakota. The reason for this is that the cold air is drawn down into the valleys and there is no nearby large bodies of water to offset this. Nearer the Great Lakes, although farther north, the large bodies of water begin to neutralize the effects of the cold.

Brotzman believes that high altitude weather observations now being made with the army and navy's co-operation, will result in more accurate forecasts.

He said, on this point:

"We've known for a long time that there is something different going on up above us which surface observations do not show. We were never able to find out definitely what it was until recently. With the 16 stations now taking high altitude observations at 17,000 feet, a little over three miles in the air, we hope to learn new means of forecasting weather conditions. We will probably even be able to make forecasts a week ahead once we learn what is happening up above."

Oh, yes, the next time you go on a picnic or a trip and it rains when the weather forecast said fair, don't blame Brotzman. He doesn't make the forecast. Laughingly, he said:

"We take the blame for them but we don't make them. All weather forecasts for this district are made in Washington and telegraphed to Pittsburgh."

Air, Water, Power.

Here's Romance.

Pursuing Beetles.

A Serious Mikado.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, praising workers in the Tennessee Valley for their efficiency, made one of the most important speeches that he, or any other president or ruler of a country, ever made.

Re promises CHEAP POWER. Not all the plans to drive away depression could do one-tenth as much as really cheap power for all.

NATURE GAVE man free air and free water, not much else free. If science and wise government can add to free air and free water POWER UNLIMITED, as nearly free as possible, that will mean another step toward the desired millennium.

Cheap power for farms, factories and homes; cheap power, giving the light necessary for study; power that means conquest of nature and her hardships, will free men from slavery.

THERE ARE at least ten moving pictures in the story, "Couple Found Dead on Lonely Isle in the Pacific."

A man and women, supposedly married, were found dead of starvation and thirst. She had lived longer, covered his dead face with a coat, died a little later. Baby clothes, but no baby, were found.

On a nearby island there dwells a group of nudists, and there is the story of "a German baroness, with flashing eyes" that went to a third island with three gentlemen, of whom she is supposed to have shot one, after proclaiming herself empress of the island. She lived in "shorts." What more would you ask of romance?

THE UNFORTUNATE man and women found dead realized too late that civilization has its charms and its safety. Nudism with bare feet was the start. Clothing, automobile, airplane, etc., is an improvement.

Rousseau's idea of primitive man and his happiness is bosh. Primitive man was never happy, always frightened, usually diseased, and died young.

ALSO SPEAKING of money, what it means and does not mean, observe that the unfortunate German professor and his wife, found dead on that chalk white island in the Pacific, had a considerable sum of money in French banknotes.

That money did them no good.

With all the banknotes, all the gold on earth piled up on that island, they would still have died of thirst and starvation.

THE FRENCH have a saying: On prend son bonheur ou on le trouve. "Each takes his happiness where he finds it." Some seek money, some praise and glory, some care nothing for the present, yearning to be remembered in centuries to come.

He climbed and crawled all the way up to look for one particular beetle, missing in the Harvard collection, and it was worth climbing for twenty-six days, cutting his way through brush, where native climbers would not follow. He found up there the beetle he wanted, other queer beetles that could not fly, many queer insects.

TO SOME that will seem a dull climb, but something has been added to men's knowledge, and ten thousand years hence, men will read about that solitary beetle climb up a dangerous mountain peak that have never heard of the charge of the Light Brigade, or even of Theodore Roosevelt going up San Juan Hill.

IN FRENCH history you read of a conscientious cook who committed suicide when the fish was bad, or failed to arrive on time. That happended centuries ago.

Today a police official in Japan attempts to commit suicide because he shared responsibility for a blunder that caused the Japanese mikado to make an unnecessary detour in a formal procession. He did not want to live, for his mistake meant disgrace extending to his wife, five children, and all close relations.

Because of this little "detour" incident, which would only bring a good natured smile to the face of a British king or American President, it is suggested Japan's home minister will probably resign.

They take their mikados seriously in Japan, and that is one reason why they fight hard for him and believe nothing impossible with "the virtue of the mikado" back of it.

FROM NICE comes gossip about dissatisfaction in Italy, because of bad business and trade conditions, and a story that Balbo, the Italian flier with the impressive short beard, is 'challenging the power of Mussolini."

If this be true, the wise would rather NOT be Balbo. "Challenging the power of Mussolini" is a good deal like undertaking to swim Niagara rapids. You always go through, once you start, but you are not easily recognized at the lower end.

IN TEXAS, at Gladewater, a fine oil well is blowing and spouting, in the center of the Roosevelt cemetary, one mile outside the town. Tall pine trees rise near the graves, but the spouting oil rises higher.

If ghosts of the dead could rise, and sit on their tombstones at midnight, as they did in Robert Burns' poem, that well would surprise them.

Still more would they be surprised to learn that oil thus spouting was created tens of millions of years ago, by tiny creatures that once lived in the ocean on or near the spot where the graves now stand

Will Attend State Y.M.C.A. Sessions

New Castle Party Will Go To Harrisburg Over Coming Week End

General Secretary R. L. Meermans of the Young Men's Christian Association, accompanied by John Butler, member of the Y board of directors, and Physical Director Henry MacNicholas, will attend the annual state convention of Pennsylvania's Y. M. C. A. at Harrisburg on November 25 and 26.

Mr. Meermans will participate in the meeting of the state young men's committee, of which he is a member, while Mr. MacNicholas will attend a special conference of Y physical directors. Mr. Butler will represent the board at the general sessions.

John R. Mott, president of the World's Y. M. C. A., an outstanding Y leader for years, will be the principal speaker at the convention.

KIDNEY VICTIM NOW SPEAKS UP

Mrs. Hockley Is Praising The Indo-Vin; Had Awful Back Pains, Weakness

Mrs. Johanna Hockley, of 560 Camp St., Harrisburg, Pa., is still another former victim of kidney trouble who is publicly praising the new, scientific medicine made from Nature's Plants, known as Indo-Vin, which is being introduced to the public daily here in NEW CASTLE at Eckerd's Drug Store. Following is this well-known lady's statement:

Mrs. Hockley

"For years I suffered with kidney trouble," said Mrs. Hockley. "This kept getting worse all the time and I always felt weak and sore across my kidneys; then during the day, if I happened to stoop over, sharp pains would almost stifle me. I never knew what it was to get a decent night of rest because I had to get up to relieve my kidneys 3 or 4 times. I always felt 'fagged out' in the mornings and would drag through the day in constant misery.

"My condition was simply awful, but Indo-Vin went right to the source of my trouble. It had a wonderful action on my kidneys and the sharp pains in my back have now DISAPPEARED, and you don't know what a wonderful relief that is to me. I feel fine in the mornings now, for I NEVER have to get up at nights on account of my kidneys. It has improved my WHOLE SYSTEM and I want to publicly endorse it to all suffering people."

Eckerd's Drug Store here in New Castle is now introducing and explaining this great mixture of Nature's Medicines to the local public. It is also being sold in the nearby towns by every good druggist.

Jail Sentence For Stadium Battler

Jack Regna, West Lawrence street, was sent to the county jail for 40 days by Alderman Wallace J. Ewing late Tuesday as a result of his assault upon R. L. Stewart, school district officer, during the New Castle-Butler game at Taggart stadium last Saturday.

Regna pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery and disorderly conduct, placed by Stewart, when he was arraigned for a hearing.

Lehman Party To Speak Here

The McKinney Bible class of the First Presbyterian church will be host to the Junior Lehman evangelistic party Friday evening at 6:30 in the dining room of the church for dinner.

At 8 p. m. there will be a public evangelistic meeting in the church auditorium with the Lehman party in charge.

NABBED FOR FORCING CARS OFF HIGHWAY

Kattowsky refused to pay the $25 fine and costs to Squire W. C. Lardin for reckless driving. They took him to the Butler jail. There he changed his mind and decided to pay, so a constable took him back to Portersville. This ran up mileage costs considerably.

The fine and costs finally came to $34, which officials think is a good deal for a little "innocent" entertainment.

St. Just in Penwith is the name of a small English town of 5,000 population.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Held For Court On Larceny Charge

After a hearing before Alderman H. G. Coates Tuesday night, Wayne Belton, who stated that his home is in North Carolina, was held for the December term of court.

Belton is charged with larceny of an automobile in New Castle on November 4, owned by Ralph Pence, of North Beaver street. He claims, however, that he had nothing to do with the theft. At the hearing he said that at the time the automobile was stolen he was hitch-hiking in the Cleveland vicinity and that he was picked up by a man with whom he was slightly acquainted. They drove to Waynesburg, Pa., and were stopped by state police after they had ordered gasoline without paying for it. Both Belton and his companion made a dash for freedom. Belton was caught and the other got away.

Belton claims that he did not know he was a passenger in a stolen car.

CLASS GATHERING

Later a delicious lunch was served the group by Mrs. W. I. McCartney and daughter, Mrs. Ruth Johnston. One special guest, Miss Alma Smith, was present.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday evening, December 18, at the home of Louis Turk, North Liberty street.

MEET AT SCHOOL

The Mahoningtown Girl Scouts met at Mahoning school after classes on Tuesday. Patrol 3 opened the meeting. Games followed and were enjoyed by the thirty scouts.

A novel fire prevention questionnaire was presented and the scouts successfully answered it, thus passing their fire prevention test.

Two girls were appointed to help the Lawrence County Tuberculosis society in the distribution of Christmas seal posters. They are Jane Bollinger and Marian Unangst.

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday at 4:00 p. m.

BASKETBAL PRACTICE

Basketball is now the chief interest among the Mahoning school athletic-minded students. Regular after-school practices are being conducted by Coach Austin Cowmeadow. The boys are showing up to good advantage and it is believed that the team will be an unusually fine one.

ENGINEERS' WIVES

GOING TO BALL

HUNTERS ACTIVE

Every morning seventh ward men, with red caps, and shotguns under their arms, can be seen leaving the city limits in every direction. Hours later they drift back again, carrying rabbits, squirrels or an occasional pheasant. The small game season will be ended for the most part with the passing of November.

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

C. Price, of the Liberty Hotel, spent Sunday and Monday in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Williams and grandson, Stanley, III, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, were Monday visitors here.

Walter Wald, Jr., of West Clayton street, is leaving today for Jamestown, Pa., where he will spend the remainder of the week.

W. C. Powers, of the Mt. Jackson road, who had been working for the Pennsylvania railroad out of Erie is now working out of New Castle.

Radio Club Leader To Speak Thursday Before City Group

Members of the Western Pennsylvania Mike and Key club will hear the president of the Beaver Valley Radio club, Mr. Walchak, known to amateur operators at W8DWV", at their regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday, November 22, at 8 p. m.

Women want another equal rights amendment passed, granting economic rights withheld when suffrage was extended. Anita Pollitzer, vice chairman of National Women's Party, is in New York arranging for annual convention in which fight for the amendment will be organized. (Central Press)

POWER RATE CUTS AT YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 21.—Electric light and power bills for Youngstown consumers for December will be filed at lower rates, C. S. MacCalla, division manager of the Ohio Edison company, announced today.

The present scale for domestic consumers is 5.5 cents a kilowatt hour for the first 40 kilowatt hours, and 5 cents thereafter. This is to be replaced by a sliding scale, with the first 90 kilowatt hours at 5 cents, the next 30 at 3 cents and all over 120 at 2 cents.

DOG GOES WITH ROBBER

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—A burglar who ransacked a fraternity house on the Colorado Agricultural college campus took along a large police dog that was kept in the house to protect it. The animal returned the next day.

Will Hear Judge At Y. M. Banquet

Association's Clubs Frolic In Gala Fellowship Program Tonight

Inaugurating the first of what may become periodical Club Fellowship Night banquets, the Committee of Twelve of the local Young Men's Christian Association plays host tonight to the membership of almost every Y club at a dinner-program and athletic carnival which will open at 6:30 and continue almost to midnight.

Judge Ralph H. Smith, prominent Pittsburgh jurist, will be the principal speaker during the program immediately following the dinner. His subject is not known.

Elroy Lockley will be the evening's toastmaster with W. O. "Red" Williams as song leader and Jack Huston at the piano. Gerald McElhaney will play a special piano number. President George E. Lyon of the board of directors of the Y will give the invocation before dinner.

Featuring the evening will be the short talks of representatives of five clubs, the Senior Hi-Y, Uparatasa, Key Men, Phalanx and Y's Men, outlining the objectives of those groups.

Promptly at 8:30 or near that Dario Baptiste, chairman of the sports program for the evening, will unfold his bag of gymnasium surprises for each and every fellow to enjoy. Every department will be open for the use of the participants and in ping pong, checkers and the other minor sports the competition will be as keen as in volley ball, wrestling and basketball. Working with Baptiste in arranging the evening's sports program has been his fellow members of the Key Men's club.

Something has been arranged for every minute tonight, from 6:30 through until 11:30.

Six In Westminster Lineup To Graduate

Others To Leave Are Scarbrough, Franklin, Staples Sweeney and Young

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Six Westminster College football players end their collegiate grid careers here Saturday when the Titans face Geneva in the final contest on the 10-game card.

The six men who will graduate in June are: Ray Sweeney, Youngstown, O.; William Staples, Butler; Irving Franklin, Freeport, N. Y.; Robert Scarbrough, McDonald, O.; Harold Burry, New Castle; and Walter Young, Freeport, N. Y.

Sweeney, a letterman in football basketball, and track, has played four years as a back on Titan grid teams. During this time he has always been a star performer, and has often won all-conference mention because of his play. One of the fastest men on the Titan squad, Sweeney has been a consistent scorer for four seasons.

Staples Is Good

Staples, captain and acting captain for two seasons, has been outstanding at fullback both offensively and defensively. His play this season in the Thiel, Grove City, Edinboro, and Slippery Rock games was especially outstanding, and his absence in the Muskingum game last week was felt very much. Staples will be ready to start against Geneva Saturday.

Franklin played center for three seasons and for part of this season, but was shifted to tackle where he has bolstered the line play of the Titans considerably. He was a member of the court squad last year, and has received all-conference mention for his play at center.

Scarbrough, an outstanding utility player, has been used in every position on the team during his four years. He has been at his best as a lineman, however, and is used at either tackle or center this year. Scarbrough has been a student manager of basketball, and will probably be out for a position as manager of the court team this year.

Burry Star Guard

Burry, a hard-charging guard, came up through the ranks of the cross country team. In his freshman year, Burry, a New Castle high grad, was a member of the harrier team. After demonstrating that he was the outstanding distance runner, he dropped cross country and reported for football. Last year he won his spurs as a guard, and this season has been an outstanding lineman.

Young, a halfback in his first year, did not see much action as a freshman due to injuries received, but when once shifted to a guard post immediately became a star on offense and defense. Young has also been a member of the court squad.

Coveted Victory

All six of these men have played against Geneva three times. In these three games, the Covenanters have scored 57 points to nothing against the Titans. Geneva won 18-0 at Beaver Falls in 1931; 19-0 at Beaver Falls in 1932; and 20-0 at Beaver Falls in 1933. On Saturday the Titans believe they have a chance of winning, and the six seniors will try to end their careers with a victory.

To date, Westminster has won three, tied one, and lost five contests; while Geneva has won one, tied two, and lost five. A victory for either team Saturday will mean a successful season, so keen is the rivalry between the two schools.

Notre Dame And Army Will Play Saturday Battle

Expect Crowd Of 70,000 To Witness Annual Grid Battle In New York City

RESULTS GETTING HARDER TO PICK

By MICHAEL J. FOSTER
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Once again the nation's football fans are girding themselves for their weekly tilt with the bookies whose number has grown so amazingly this fall.

Season's records are being pored over and the daily accounts of practice sessions are being carefully watched for injuries to key men. We even know of one chronic bettor who has a complete U. S. government weather forecast for the week-end; he's taking no chances with rain and its consequent fumbles!

Army-Notre Dame

In most of the big games this week-end either of the teams playing could win without occasioning too much surprise. And yet the pool operators demand that you pick your list all right, guessing even the ties, if you are to collect.

The game heading the lists, and one of the toughest to pick, is the Army-Notre Dame battle, which is expected to attract 70,000 spectators to the Yankee stadium.

Here's an even-Stephen affair if ever there was one, six of one and half a dozen of the other. In some circles the Army is the favorite, because the plainsmen are supposed to have the answer to the Rockne attack.

In others Elmer Layden's Irish are picked, because the Ramblers clicked in the second half of last week's Northwestern game and showed a lot of scoring power. To this department it looks close, so much so that a tie score may well be the ultimate result.

Yale-Harvard, in the New Haven bowl, has a definitely blue tinge, after the Elis' uprising in Princeton, but don't forget Harvard will be just as strongly keyed up for the Bulldog as Yale was for the Tiger. And Eddie Casey's got quite a few likely-looking youngsters on his squad.

Penn State-Bucknell

Penn State-Bucknell, at Lewisburg, looks like a tough one to pick, too. The Nittany Lions are plenty strong; they proved their defensive power at least against Columbia and Pennsylvania. But it took a fumbled pass from center for unbeaten Western Maryland to humble the Bisons.

Temple is unbeaten, but that doesn't mean the Owls are any cinch to whip Villanova. They lost to the Wildcats by a 24-0 score last year, it may be well to remember, and the 39-0 score run up by Harry Stuhldreher's team against Manhattan last Saturday is another straw which may tell which way the wind will blow in the Philadelphia clash.

Heller To Join New York Giants

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Warren Heller, former Pittsburgh University All-American halfback and a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team was in New York today, prepared to complete the professional season with the New York Giants.

Heller will perform for the Giants during their remaining three games, but will revert to the Pittsburgh team for next season.

County League To Banquet Thursday

Attorney George W. Muse Scheduled To Deliver Baseball Talk

W. G. ANDREWS TO BE TOASTMASTER

Lawrence County Baseball league officials, managers and players will hold a banquet at the Elks club at 7 p. m., Thursday and according to President Alec Samuels, everything is set for not only a sumptuous dinner but also plenty of baseball talk.

Arrangements have been made, whereby William G. Andrews, former president and one of the oldest baseball players in the country will act as toastmaster. The principal address will be delivered by Attorney George W. Muse.

It is said that the championship Bessemer team will have all their players and officials at the banquet and the other aggregations in the circuit will also have numerous representatives.

About 75 are expected to attend the fete.

The dinner will start promptly at seven p. m.

New Ruling May Hurt Minnesota

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Ten gray-haired professors and a 15-word rule apparently are going to succeed in doing what tons of football beef and brawn have failed to do this season—stop Minnesota's unchecked rampage through college football ranks.

The elderly gentlemen are the faculty advisers of the Big Ten, the rule is the one which reads:

"No student shall participate in intercollegiate athletics for more than three years in the aggregate."

The effect of the words, which have been part of the Big Ten code for many years, will be to deprive the Gophers next season of two men who have been particularly important in their title drive this year—Stan Kostka, full back, and Bill Bevan, guard. It also may cost them Art Clarkson, halfback, and Vernon Oech, tackle, who likewise are reported to have competed as freshman at Oregon as well as in the varsity, although confirmation is lacking.

JUST BREAKING IT IN

Reggie McNamara, veteran six-day bicycle rider, has suffered a broken collar bone 11 times.

STAR OF THE WEST :-: By Jack Sords

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Minnesota Gophers believe a good offense is a good defense but in addition this season added a battering attack to their push to a possible mythical national championship. In seven games the Gophers have held their opponents to an average of 119 yards each game from scrimmage and of this only an average of 75 yards a game by rushing the ball. While holding the opposition in check, Minnesota slashed away with an average of 380 yards a game from scrimmage, averaging 345 yards by rushing. Their backfield, including 11 ball carriers, averaged 6.2 yards each try from scrimmage, solely on running plays.

Babe Didrickson, track and field star of the last Olympic games, entered a golf tourney for the first time yesterday at Fort Worth and rode away with medalist honors in a card of 77. She went out in 38 and came back in 39. It was the second annual invitation meet of the Fort Worth Women's Golf association.

Babe Ruth came through with another home run yesterday and the American All-Stars beat the Nippon All-Stars 1 to 0, at Shizuoka before 16,000 baseball fans. He hit the homer off Eiji Sawamura, a 17 year old Jap pitcher.

YOUNG FOOTBALL PLAYER INJURED

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 21.—George Yockey, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Yockey, of New Castle street, is suffering from a broken leg as the result of playing football Friday evening. He was playing with several other boys, when he fell, and another boy fell on him, and he was badly injured. He was carried home and a physician called. When an X-ray was taken it was found that the leg was broken, and cracked in two other places. He is ten years old.

New Castle To Resume Practice

Coach Phil Bridenbaugh Starts Drilling Team For Thanksgiving Day Game

New Castle High School "Red Hurricane" football team had a rest Monday afternoon. Today it was back to the grind for the wearers of the red jerseys. Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh wants to win that Turtle Creek game Thanksgiving day, and to that end he is going to have the New Castles letter perfect.

Turtle Creek is going to send a strong team here. Then want to settle a little score with New Castle for that upset at Turtle Creek last year. Coach Ben Haldy has been grooming the Turtles for this encounter.

Three of the New Castle giants are out of the practice sessions for the next few days with injuries. Captain Walter Raskowski is limping with a charley-horse, and Alec Shellogg is nursing a badly bruised hand. Fred Shellogg did not play Saturday due to an injured leg, but may get into the game Thanksgiving.

With the Class AA championship hanging in the balance this game on Turkey Day is going to have lots of appeal.

Post Season Tilt Is Set For Dec. 8

New Castle And New Kensington May Battle Second Time For Championship

New Castle High School football team needs only to defeat Turtle Creek Union at Taggart Stadium Thanksgiving afternoon to earn the right to meet New Kensington High again for the Class AA championship. New Castle and New Kensington High are the only undefeated teams in the major circuit.

New Ken High has ended the Class AA games on their card. They played four games, won three and tied one, defeating Monessen, Charleroi and Clairton.

New Castle has won three and tied one. New Castle has taken the measure Charleroi, Washington, Clairton and tied New Ken High.

The site of the playoff game if necessary has not as yet been determined, there are four possible sites for the title game—New Castle, New Kensington, Beaver Falls, Pittsburgh.

Garden Would Build Outdoor Arena Over In Jersey City Area

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Madison Square Garden, through its matchmaker, James J. Johnston, Tuesday threw down the gauntlet to the New York state boxing commission, and threatened to build an outdoor arena in Jersey City and stage all future title fights there.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service, Johnston revealed that he had several offers from Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, and the political power of the state, to build such an arena.

Johnston made his statement in reply to a story from the coast quoting Ancil Hoffman, manager of Champion Max Baer, as saying that Jack Dempsey had advised him that the Garden's contract with the champion for his next title fight was not valid.

How Contract Works.

"We have an iron clad agreement with Baer to promote his next fight," said Johnston. "It doesn't matter that the boxing commission says our contracts are no good. Our courts of law have always upheld private contracts. I know, for when I was promoting on my own hook, I tried to break one Primo Carnera had with the Garden at the time and failed, although I had a whole battery of the best legal talent in the land.

"The commission requires us to sign one of their contracts but that one—strictly for show purposes—doesn't matter. The one that binds is the one we always have privately with fighters themselves."

Johnston insisted that Baer would fight first for the Garden and nobody else and, if not here, then in Jersey City.

Franklin High Floor Team To Play On Friday

Coach Bill Wallace Has Ben Franklin Junior High Five Tuned Up For Season

Coach Bill Wallace announced today that the 1934-35 edition of the Ben Franklin junior high basketball team would open the season Friday afternoon by taking on the faculty team of Franklin high.

Next Tuesday afternoon the Franklins will play the Princeton team at the Franklin high floor. The Franklinites are out for the championship again this year and will have a classy combination on the court.

Wallace has been working the following boys hard and has picked as his starting lineup: Koszella, and Mancine or Sniezek at the forwards. Strasbaugh at center and Ross and Nocera or Maciercili at the guards. The reserves are Merando, Ostrosky, Ryglinski, Cray, J. Ross, Evanoski, Hawkey, Nativio, Claypool and Monsey.

IN COLD CASH, TOO

Harry Newman Is Severely Injured

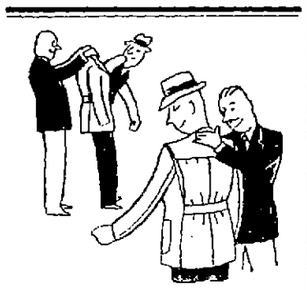

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Harry Newman, star quarterback of the New York Giants, and former All-American luminary at the University of Michigan, is out of National Pro League competition for the remainder of the season, it became known today.

Newman was injured in the Giants' game with the Chicago Bears at the Polo Grounds on Sunday. An examination at St. Elizabeth's hospital disclosed that several vertebrae in his spine had been injured and that it would be necessary for him to wear a brace indefinitely.

Canton Tenpin Bowlers Coming

Saturday night the Union tenpin bowlers will battle the Canton Merchants tenpin team here. The match will start at 8 o'clock. The Canton Merchants have been state champions in Ohio for the past several years and are rated as one of the strongest bowling teams in the country. The locals will use the strongest possible lineup against the Ohioans, according to J. D. Thompson.

Used for Years In Europe

THERE is a way that helps to bring sound, restful sleep at night. A way that many thousands tell us is successful. Not by using drugs—but by drinking a cup of hot Ovaltine at bedtime. We urge you to try it and see what it does for you.

Hundreds of doctors recommend it because it brings results. And because it is a pure food-drink. Thus it avoids the use of drugs. They recommend it too because it brings you other benefits.

For Ovaltine is remarkably easy to digest, and its unusual food values make it a valuable aid to nature in rebuilding nerve, brain and body tissue while you sleep.

In this way you awaken in the morning—not with a "druggy" feeling, but clear-eyed, refreshed—nerves calm and mind clear—just the way you should feel after a perfect night's sleep.

So outstanding are the results accredited to Ovaltine that, during the World War, it was used as a standard ration for invalid soldiers. Thousands of people, men and women, use it regularly to restore vitality when fatigued—and as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged.

"Long Count" Barry Is Held In Swindle

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Dave "Long Count" Barry, 45, referee at the last Dempsey-Tunney fight, submitted to further police questioning today as four others were held in connection with a $54,000 swindle at the Amalgamated Trust & Savings bank.

Held over night in a detective bureau cell, Barry denied all knowledge of the swindle plot confessed by Otto Van Derck, 23, a ledger clerk at the bank. Van Derck implicated Barry among others, explaining that he wished to get married Thanksgiving Day and wanted to clear his conscience.

Passes "Buck".

According to the young clerk's statement the swindle was executed through the Dave Barry Enterprises, Inc., and Dave Barry, Inc. Overdrafts issued on these two firms were covered up by falsifying the bank's books, Van Derck said.

Barry insisted he was merely the nominal head of the two firms, leaving all the details of financial management to Joseph Baiata, 38, one of those under arrest. Baiata, under the name of Joseph B. Marcino, finished a federal penitentiary term at Atlanta in 1927 for embezzling $200,000 from a Warren, Mass., bank, police learned.

The others held were Abraham Karatz, 43, an attorney, and Walter Ehlers, 51, a broker.

Trade Winds In Louisville Are Becoming Heavy

Browns And Cleveland Are "Cooking Up Funny Deal—Cubs-Pirates Dickering

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21.—Within 24 hours or less the St. Louis Browns, through their sterling manager, Rogers Hornsby, will announce a deal that will astound the baseball world, not because of its magnitude, but because of its amazing particulars. The St. Louis Browns are about to accept one infielder, one pitcher and cash, variously estimated up to $10,000, for one player from the Cleveland Indians.

After careful inquiry the latter has been narrowed down to an outfielder—and take your choice. The St. Louis outfielders are Garms, Campbell, West and Pepper, and I have Hornsby's word for it that it isn't West. Regardless of who figures, this makes it an excellent and unfunny deal from a Cleveland standpoint, especially in view of the Cleveland cash.

Start Session

Anyhow, that's the way things stood this morning as the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs prepared to go into executive session, what ever that is. Annually the National Association prepares to go into executive session and sometimes it actually does. Nobody has ever been able to confirm the fact.

Neither was the story that claimed to know that Lew Wentz, the big barrel and bullion man from Ponca City, Okla., had already purchased the St. Louis Cardinals. That was sheer guessing, inasmuch as Branch Rickey of the Cardinals personaly told me that the deal wouldn't be made here, meaning, I suspect, that it wouldn't be announced here.

Meantime, I have to report that both Chicago clubs are doing something. The White Sox, for instance, will sell anything and anybody—at the proper rate of exchange. They would be only too glad to exchange Al Simmons with the Detroit club if the Detroit club could do business. The Detroit club can't.

Cubs-Pirates Dicker

This brings us back to the Chicago Cubs, who have very little and will trade it just as a personal favor because they like the way you shave your neck. Their particular object is the Pittsburgh club and a young man named Freddie Lindstrom.

So far, according to Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh manager, they have offered Bud Tinning, a pitcher, and a couple of guys named Joe. To be frank, Mr. Guy Bush, the man with the half-column whiskers, is the crux of the situation.

Who said there was a situation? Well, personally, I wouldn't like to say. But I certainly would appreciate knowing and, if there doesn't happen to be any, I'll sure go on back to New York.

Plan To Amend Boxing Laws In New York State

Seek To Eliminate "Trick" Decisions Given At End Of Fights

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The New York boxing commission today had discovered what somebody else had long suspected, to wit: That everything and everybody in the fight racket was not on the up and up.

This discovery has so unnerved the three august members of the commission that they are going to ask the state legislature to amend the boxing law so as to permit a majority vote to decide a fight in the event that the two judges and the referee disagree.

Under the present law, if one judge votes for Kid Schmaltz and the other calls it a draw, the referee can award the duke to Kid Glutz. The referee's decision is final and the judges are voting merely for the exercise and their $25 fee.

The commissioners admit they are at sea. But they've been that way so long they could get cards in the seamen's union without trouble. So are their referees and judges and one can hardly blame them. The commissioners admit they don't don't know whether to continue with their involved combination of points and round by rounds system or a total point base system.

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME

If you have a lot of statistics, figures, and other material on the Notre Dame-Army game with which to dope out the winner, just throw them all into the waste basket, and draw a selection out of your last summer's straw hat. It will save you time and much mental agony, and you have just as good a chance of picking the winner.

Statistics, previous records, and such don't mean a thing in the Irish-Cadet battles—they aren't ordinary games. The Notre Dame fourth team could play the Army varsity or the Cadet Plebes could play the Rambler first-stringers but in either case you couldn't pick a winner safely before the game was over.

The old saying, "all men are equal" applies to these grid battles every time. An all-American is just as likely to be bottled up for the entire afternoon by a couple of sophomore ends as not. No matter how superior one team appears over the other before hand or how many sensational stars are in the lineups, as soon as the game starts 22 men begin sixty minutes of football without regard to fame or reputation.

Last season, the fact that N. D. was kicked around by almost everybody from Kansas to the Navy meant nothing as far as the game with the Soldiers was concerned. Spotting Army two touchdowns in the first half Notre Dame played poor football for three-fourths of the game but showed enough spirit in the final quarter to win.

In 1932, the Irish went to New York, the underdogs, and given only an outside chance against one of the best Army teams in years. Notre Dame showed the East one of the best offenses ever seen with blocking and tackling done to perfection in pushing the Cadets all over the Yankee Stadium and winning, 21 to 0.

The Army mule is capable of upsetting the dope, too, as they proved in 1931. The Irish were the favorites this time but they went down to a 12-0 defeat at the hands of Stecker, Summerfelt, Brown, and Co. Schwartz, Melinkovich, Sheeketski, and the rest were stopped by an inspired Army team that played like a pack of demons.

In 1930, Notre Dame had, what is considered by many, the greatest grid machine ever assembled. High scores, perfect plays, each player an individual star, color and glamour went hand in hand with the team. All this was known to the Cadets when they went on Soldiers' Field in Chicago for the game but although it had awed such teams as Penn and Pitt, Notre Dame was just another football squad to the Army. The teams battled three scoreless periods in a sea of mud but in the final quarter the Irish squeezed out a 7-6 victory.

You can follow the rivalry back to 1913 but you'll find the same story each year. Sometimes the Army wins, more often the Irish come through, but whatever the result it never has any connection with the pre-game dope.

Anything may happen in that game in New York, Saturday. Don't feel certain that Buckler will make long runs, that Stillman will smear Irish plays, that Millner will block a punt, or that Shakespeare will break loose. The subs often outshine the stars in this annual grid classic. Each player is only an individual with a number on his back; famous reputations mean little when Notre Dame and Army meets.

WILLIAMS DESIRES GAMES

Williams A. C. football team of the south side would like to play the Ryantown team Sunday, November 25, at the Centennial field. If Ryantown wants to play, write or call Floyd Neyman at Williams place on Long avenue. The Williams lay a claim to the independent championship of Lawrence county and New Castle.

Perry Highway Is Re-Checked

State Highway Engineers Go Over Contemplated Changes In Location Of Road

DANGEROUS SPOTS TO BE ELIMINATED

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 21. — Employes of the State Highway Department of Engineers and Surveys, of Harrisburg, were in this community making a re-check of the Perry Highway that is to be relocated. Although no definite information has been given out, it is likely that the road will go through Zelienople, as the employes from the state department spent considerable time on that location. The road will go across the Connoquenessing creek near the reservoirs, on the Passavant farm, and will require a viaduct across the B. and O. railroad tracks and creek, and connecting with the road more than a mile above Harmony. Instead of making the turn on Grandview avenue as the present road does, it will go straight down Main street, eliminating several bad curves, also the Harmony bridge that has caused so many accidents since the Perry Highway was built a few years ago.

Other possible locations are through Harmony, leaving Zelienople out. One is through the lower part of Harmony and over near the present Harmony bridge, connecting south about two miles. The other is through Zelienople and across the B. and O. tracks at Harmony, straight across the Connoquenessing creek, and again connecting above Harmony about two miles.

A survey was made some time ago and the surveyers and engineers have been back the past week making a final re-check.

Big Turnout Hears Temperance Leader

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Evils of non-prohibition and the present liquor problem were fully discussed before an excellent turnout in the local U. P. church last evening by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary, board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, Washington, D. C., and Col. Frank B. Ebbert, field secretary of the board.

Dr. Wilson told of the reasons for the failure of prohibition in America. He pointed out that alcohol is a drug and extremely harmful to the body. He told of some of its effects and results, and urged that the young people be educated against this danger. This generally demoralizes the human race Dr. Wilson asserted.

Col. Ebbert talked on the economic loss caused by liquor drinking, when this money could be put to use for a more noble purpose. He also told of what alcohol could do to the human body.

Damages Demanded For Ringer Death

Widow Of Former Ellwood City Man Asks $20,000 From Bus Lines

Mrs. Mabelle D. Ringer of Ellwood City, has filed a suit at the county prothonotary's office against the Penn-Ohio Coach Lines company, in which she asks for $20,000 damages as the result of an accident on the New Castle-Youngstown road, near the state line, in which her husband, Harry M. Ringer, was killed.

G. C. Denniston of Ellwood City had invited Harry M. Ringer, A. J. Dambaugh and Jesse Fehl to ride with him to Youngstown, O. They were on the return trip and had crossed the state line, west of New Bedford. The road was wet and slippery.

Denniston was driving and Ringer was sitting beside him in the front seat. The car skidded and was thrown at right angles across the road. A Penn-Ohio coach, with George B. Cochran as driver, was going west and when the Denniston car was thrown across the road, it is claimed that the bus was several hundred feet away, and coming at a high rate of speed.

The bus struck the Denniston car and Ringer was killed. It is contended, in the statement of claim, that the Denniston car was in plain view and that the accident was the result of the high speed at which the bus was being driven, which prevented the driver's stopping in time to avoid the accident.

Farewell Party Held For Girl

Miss Naomi Lutz Is Honored With Surprise Shower On Tuesday Evening

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Miss Naomi Lutz was delightfully surprised last evening when a number of friends assembled at her home on the New Brighton road to bid farewell. The Lutz family is moving to this city.

The evening hours were whiled away with games, contests and dancing. At an appointed hour an appetizing luncheon was served by Mrs. Lutz with the assistance of her daughter. Miss Lutz was completely surprised when she received a handkerchief shower from her friends at this time.

Those present on the occasion were the Misses Betty Sneed, Catherine Wiley, Jean Hunter, Esther Brenemen, Margaret McDonald, Phyllis Wiley, the honor guest and the Messrs James Patterson, Chester Caldwell, George Bentrim, Emory Price, Ray Kaufman, James Ferrante, Gwen Wiley, Jack Steckman and Charles Kregish.

Kenneth McConahys Tendered Surprise

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21. — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McConahy were the victims of a delightful surprise recently when a group of friends and relatives, numbering thirty, gathered at their home in Ellport to spend the evening socially.

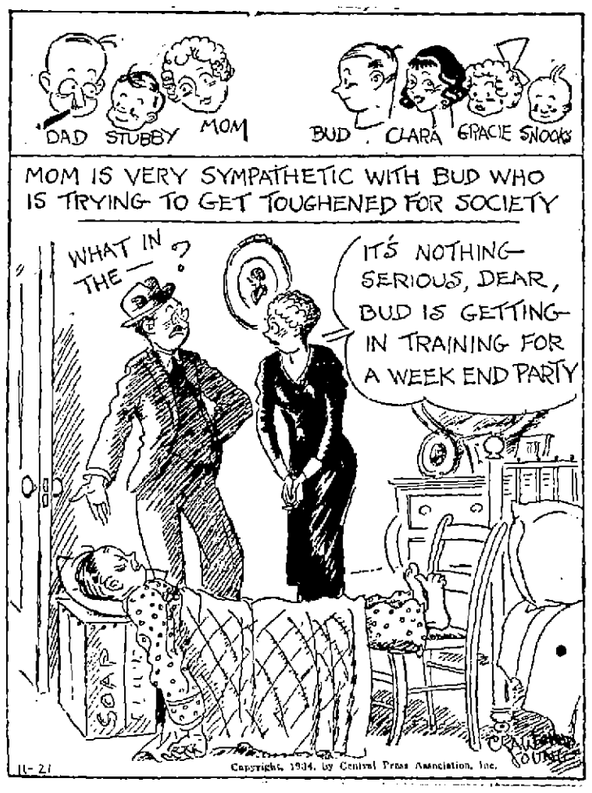

Although taken by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. McConahy proved to be pleasing hosts, entertaining their guests in a hospitable manner. Bingo and cards were the popular diversions of the evening.

During the evening a tempting luncheon was served by Mrs. Clarence McCaslin and Mrs. A. J. McCaslin. The guests of honor were each presented with a number of beautiful and useful gifts.

Ellwood City High Starts Basketball Training Tuesday

Over 100 Candidates Answer First Floor Call Of Coach "Ganzy" Benedict

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—A flood of candidates answered Coach George "Ganzy" Benedict's first call, as Ellwood City high began its training for the 1934-35 basketball season at Lincoln gym Tuesday afternoon.

There were all sizes of floor aspirants. About 50 of the above number were cut at the close of the first day's practice which consisted of passing and shooting. Coach Benedict will cut the above number daily until it is down to about 25. He will have a varsity squad of about 12 and the remainder will be on the Reserves. A junior high team will also be selected. Coach Mike Ferrare is in charge of this.

Coach Benedict has only two regulars left from last year's team around whom he will endeavor to build a worthy quintet. These are Alex Robuck and Tony Scopelite, forwards. There would have been another, "Chink" Lamenza, center, but he quit school. After a look at his remaining material Coach Benedict is hopeful that he will be able to wield a dangerous quintet to represent Ellwood high this year.

Workouts will be held daily now at Lincoln gym, as the season starts early in December. Section 3, this year, in which Ellwood City is in, is in all probability the toughest in the W. P. I. A. L. Ambridge and Aliquippa has been placed in the same section along with New Castle, Butler, New Brighton, Beaver Falls and Ellwood. There will be some mighty fine basketball played in this vicinity for the 1934-35 season and it promises to be a hot race for the section championship.

Miss Sue Cox Is Hostess To Club

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Miss Sue Cox was hostess to the members of the Little club last night at the Hostess House on Glenn avenue. Miss Mary Webber was a special guest.

After a delicious dinner two tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. Berlin Smith was found to be the winner of the high score award. Miss Webber was presented with a guest favor.

Miss Irma Irwin will entertain the club in two weeks at her home on Fourth street.

TRUE BLUE CLASS

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—True Blue Bible class of the Slippery Rock Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. Russel Glasser on the New Castle road last night with 23 present.

The president, Mrs. Warren Wilson presided at the business meeting, which was followed with an enjoyable social time. Prizes as a result were won by Mrs. Clair Friday and Mrs. Norman Guy. A luncheon was served at a later hour by the hostess with the assistnce of Mrs. Alfred Kennedy. The class plans to have a Christmas party on the third Tuesday of December.

Motorist Guilty Of Hit-Run Act

Jury Frees Petroleum Center Man Of Voluntary Manslaughter Charge

(International News Service)

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 21.—Although acquitted on a charge of voluntary manslaughter, Edward L. Behringer, 38, of Petroleum Center, awaited sentence today following his conviction on charges of failing to stop at the scene of an accident and give assistance.

The jury that liberated Behringer on the manslaughter charge in the death of Robert Bradley, 14, of near Pleasantville, found him guilty on the other counts.

NEW INHERITANCE TAX PAYMENT IN MELLON ESTATE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Executors of the estate of the late R. B. Mellon announced today they had made an additional inheritance tax payment of $250,000 to the state.

The announcement followed Judge Thomas P. Trimble's granting the executors until June 1, 1935, to file an inventory of the estate. The latest payment brings the total paid to $600,000.

The hearing before Judge Trimble in orphans' court, which resulted in the granting of time to file th. inventory, was on a demand for an immediate inventory made by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell on orders from Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

STILL ON TRIAL

Booster City Dinner Thursday

Pittsburgh Man To Address Big Joint Meeting Here At Lutheran Church

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—All arrangements are complete for the big Booster City dinner meeting in the Trinity Lutheran church on Thursday evening at 6:15. Participating in this will be the Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, and the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city. The former is acting as host.

A splendid dinner menu will be served; a fine entertainment will be given; and excellent address is assured. The principal speaker on the occasion will be Donald Howard of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. He will be accompanied to this city by Tom Foley, former Ellwood City resident.

BODY TO ARRIVE

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—The body of Harvey Critchlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Critchlow, who died in a military camp at Fort Worth, Texas, will arrive here Friday morning at 9:15 o'clock. Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced later.

"Long Count" Barry Is Held In Swindle

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Dave "Long Count" Barry, 45, referee at the last Dempsey-Tunney fight, submitted to further police questioning today as four others were held in connection with a $54,000 swindle at the Amalgamated Trust & Savings bank.

Held over night in a detective bureau cell, Barry denied all knowledge of the swindle plot confessed by Otto Van Derck, 23, a ledger clerk at the bank. Van Derck implicated Barry among others, explaining that he wished to get married Thanksgiving Day and wanted to clear his conscience.

Passes "Buck".

According to the young clerk's statement the swindle was executed through the Dave Barry Enterprises, Inc., and Dave Barry, Inc. Overdrafts issued on these two firms were covered up by falsifying the bank's books, Van Derck said.

Barry insisted he was merely the nominal head of the two firms, leaving all the details of financial management to Joseph Baiata, 38, one of those under arrest. Baiata, under the name of Joseph B. Marcino, finished a federal penitentiary term at Atlanta in 1927 for embezzling $200,000 from a Warren, Mass., bank, police learned.

The others held were Abraham Karatz, 43, an attorney, and Walter Ehlers, 51, a broker.

Trade Winds In Louisville Are Becoming Heavy

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21.—Within 24 hours or less the St. Louis Browns, through their sterling manager, Rogers Hornsby, will announce a deal that will astound the baseball world, not because of its magnitude, but because of its amazing particulars. The St. Louis Browns are about to accept one infielder, one pitcher and cash, variously estimated up to $10,000, for one player from the Cleveland Indians.

After careful inquiry the latter has been narrowed down to an outfielder—and take your choice. The St. Louis outfielders are Garms, Campbell, West and Pepper, and I have Hornsby's word for it that it isn't West. Regardless of who figures, this makes it an excellent and unfunny deal from a Cleveland standpoint, especially in view of the Cleveland cash.

Start Session

Anyhow, that's the way things stood this morning as the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs prepared to go into executive session, what ever that is. Annually the National Association prepares to go into executive session and sometimes it actually does. Nobody has ever been able to confirm the fact.

Neither was the story that claimed to know that Lew Wentz, the big barrel and bullion man from Ponca City, Okla., had already purchased the St. Louis Cardinals. That was sheer guessing, inasmuch as Branch Rickey of the Cardinals personaly told me that the deal wouldn't be made here, meaning, I suspect, that it wouldn't be announced here.

Meantime, I have to report that both Chicago clubs are doing something. The White Sox, for instance, will sell anything and anybody—at the proper rate of exchange. They would be only too glad to exchange Al Simmons with the Detroit club if the Detroit club could do business. The Detroit club can't.

Cubs-Pirates Dicker

This brings us back to the Chicago Cubs, who have very little and will trade it just as a personal favor because they like the way you shave your neck. Their particular object is the Pittsburgh club and a young man named Freddie Lindstrom.

So far, according to Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh manager, they have offered Bud Tinning, a pitcher, and a couple of guys named Joe. To be frank, Mr. Guy Bush, the man with the half-column whiskers, is the crux of the situation.

Who said there was a situation? Well, personally, I wouldn't like to say. But I certainly would appreciate knowing and, if there doesn't happen to be any, I'll sure go on back to New York.

Plan To Amend Boxing Laws In New York State

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The New York boxing commission today had discovered what somebody else had long suspected, to wit: That everything and everybody in the fight racket was not on the up and up.

This discovery has so unnerved the three august members of the commission that they are going to ask the state legislature to amend the boxing law so as to permit a majority vote to decide a fight in the event that the two judges and the referee disagree.

Under the present law, if one judge votes for Kid Schmaltz and the other calls it a draw, the referee can award the duke to Kid Glutz. The referee's decision is final and the judges are voting merely for the exercise and their $25 fee.

The commissioners admit they are at sea. But they've been that way so long they could get cards in the seamen's union without trouble. So are their referees and judges and one can hardly blame them. The commissioners admit they don't don't know whether to continue with their involved combination of points and round by rounds system or a total point base system.

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME

If you have a lot of statistics, figures, and other material on the Notre Dame-Army game with which to dope out the winner, just throw them all into the waste basket, and draw a selection out of your last summer's straw hat. It will save you time and much mental agony, and you have just as good a chance of picking the winner.

Statistics, previous records, and such don't mean a thing in the Irish-Cadet battles—they aren't ordinary games. The Notre Dame fourth team could play the Army varsity or the Cadet Plebes could play the Rambler first-stringers but in either case you couldn't pick a winner safely before the game was over.

The old saying, "all men are equal" applies to these grid battles every time. An all-American is just as likely to be bottled up for the entire afternoon by a couple of sophomore ends as not. No matter how superior one team appears over the other before hand or how many sensational stars are in the lineups, as soon as the game starts 22 men begin sixty minutes of football without regard to fame or reputation.

Last season, the fact that N. D. was kicked around by almost everybody from Kansas to the Navy meant nothing as far as the game with the Soldiers was concerned. Spotting Army two touchdowns in the first half Notre Dame played poor football for three-fourths of the game but showed enough spirit in the final quarter to win.

In 1932, the Irish went to New York, the underdogs, and given only an outside chance against one of the best Army teams in years. Notre Dame showed the East one of the best offenses ever seen with blocking and tackling done to perfection in pushing the Cadets all over the Yankee Stadium and winning, 21 to 0.

The Army mule is capable of upsetting the dope, too, as they proved in 1931. The Irish were the favorites this time but they went down to a 12-0 defeat at the hands of Stecker, Summerfelt, Brown, and Co. Schwartz, Melinkovich, Sheeketski, and the rest were stopped by an inspired Army team that played like a pack of demons.

In 1930, Notre Dame had, what is considered by many, the greatest grid machine ever assembled. High scores, perfect plays, each player an individual star, color and glamour went hand in hand with the team. All this was known to the Cadets when they went on Soldiers' Field in Chicago for the game but although it had awed such teams as Penn and Pitt, Notre Dame was just another football squad to the Army. The teams battled three scoreless periods in a sea of mud but in the final quarter the Irish squeezed out a 7-6 victory.

You can follow the rivalry back to 1913 but you'll find the same story each year. Sometimes the Army wins, more often the Irish come through, but whatever the result it never has any connection with the pre-game dope.

Anything may happen in that game in New York, Saturday. Don't feel certain that Buckler will make long runs, that Stillman will smear Irish plays, that Millner will block a punt, or that Shakespeare will break loose. The subs often outshine the stars in this annual grid classic. Each player is only an individual with a number on his back; famous reputations mean little when Notre Dame and Army meets.

WILLIAMS DESIRES GAMES

Williams A. C. football team of the south side would like to play the Ryantown team Sunday, November 25, at the Centennial field. If Ryantown wants to play, write or call Floyd Neyman at Williams place on Long avenue. The Williams lay a claim to the independent championship of Lawrence county and New Castle.

Perry Highway Is Re-Checked

DANGEROUS SPOTS TO BE ELIMINATED

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 21. — Employes of the State Highway Department of Engineers and Surveys, of Harrisburg, were in this community making a re-check of the Perry Highway that is to be relocated. Although no definite information has been given out, it is likely that the road will go through Zelienople, as the employes from the state department spent considerable time on that location. The road will go across the Connoquenessing creek near the reservoirs, on the Passavant farm, and will require a viaduct across the B. and O. railroad tracks and creek, and connecting with the road more than a mile above Harmony. Instead of making the turn on Grandview avenue as the present road does, it will go straight down Main street, eliminating several bad curves, also the Harmony bridge that has caused so many accidents since the Perry Highway was built a few years ago.

Other possible locations are through Harmony, leaving Zelienople out. One is through the lower part of Harmony and over near the present Harmony bridge, connecting south about two miles. The other is through Zelienople and across the B. and O. tracks at Harmony, straight across the Connoquenessing creek, and again connecting above Harmony about two miles.

A survey was made some time ago and the surveyers and engineers have been back the past week making a final re-check.

Big Turnout Hears Temperance Leader

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Evils of non-prohibition and the present liquor problem were fully discussed before an excellent turnout in the local U. P. church last evening by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary, board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, Washington, D. C., and Col. Frank B. Ebbert, field secretary of the board.

Dr. Wilson told of the reasons for the failure of prohibition in America. He pointed out that alcohol is a drug and extremely harmful to the body. He told of some of its effects and results, and urged that the young people be educated against this danger. This generally demoralizes the human race Dr. Wilson asserted.

Col. Ebbert talked on the economic loss caused by liquor drinking, when this money could be put to use for a more noble purpose. He also told of what alcohol could do to the human body.

Damages Demanded For Ringer Death

Widow Of Former Ellwood City Man Asks $20,000 From Bus Lines

Mrs. Mabelle D. Ringer of Ellwood City, has filed a suit at the county prothonotary's office against the Penn-Ohio Coach Lines company, in which she asks for $20,000 damages as the result of an accident on the New Castle-Youngstown road, near the state line, in which her husband, Harry M. Ringer, was killed.

G. C. Denniston of Ellwood City had invited Harry M. Ringer, A. J. Dambaugh and Jesse Fehl to ride with him to Youngstown, O. They were on the return trip and had crossed the state line, west of New Bedford. The road was wet and slippery.

Denniston was driving and Ringer was sitting beside him in the front seat. The car skidded and was thrown at right angles across the road. A Penn-Ohio coach, with George B. Cochran as driver, was going west and when the Denniston car was thrown across the road, it is claimed that the bus was several hundred feet away, and coming at a high rate of speed.

The bus struck the Denniston car and Ringer was killed. It is contended, in the statement of claim, that the Denniston car was in plain view and that the accident was the result of the high speed at which the bus was being driven, which prevented the driver's stopping in time to avoid the accident.

Farewell Party Held For Girl

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Miss Naomi Lutz was delightfully surprised last evening when a number of friends assembled at her home on the New Brighton road to bid farewell. The Lutz family is moving to this city.

The evening hours were whiled away with games, contests and dancing. At an appointed hour an appetizing luncheon was served by Mrs. Lutz with the assistance of her daughter. Miss Lutz was completely surprised when she received a handkerchief shower from her friends at this time.

Those present on the occasion were the Misses Betty Sneed, Catherine Wiley, Jean Hunter, Esther Brenemen, Margaret McDonald, Phyllis Wiley, the honor guest and the Messrs James Patterson, Chester Caldwell, George Bentrim, Emory Price, Ray Kaufman, James Ferrante, Gwen Wiley, Jack Steckman and Charles Kregish.

Kenneth McConahys Tendered Surprise

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21. — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McConahy were the victims of a delightful surprise recently when a group of friends and relatives, numbering thirty, gathered at their home in Ellport to spend the evening socially.

Although taken by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. McConahy proved to be pleasing hosts, entertaining their guests in a hospitable manner. Bingo and cards were the popular diversions of the evening.

During the evening a tempting luncheon was served by Mrs. Clarence McCaslin and Mrs. A. J. McCaslin. The guests of honor were each presented with a number of beautiful and useful gifts.

Ellwood City High Starts Basketball Training Tuesday

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—A flood of candidates answered Coach George "Ganzy" Benedict's first call, as Ellwood City high began its training for the 1934-35 basketball season at Lincoln gym Tuesday afternoon.

There were all sizes of floor aspirants. About 50 of the above number were cut at the close of the first day's practice which consisted of passing and shooting. Coach Benedict will cut the above number daily until it is down to about 25. He will have a varsity squad of about 12 and the remainder will be on the Reserves. A junior high team will also be selected. Coach Mike Ferrare is in charge of this.

Coach Benedict has only two regulars left from last year's team around whom he will endeavor to build a worthy quintet. These are Alex Robuck and Tony Scopelite, forwards. There would have been another, "Chink" Lamenza, center, but he quit school. After a look at his remaining material Coach Benedict is hopeful that he will be able to wield a dangerous quintet to represent Ellwood high this year.

Workouts will be held daily now at Lincoln gym, as the season starts early in December. Section 3, this year, in which Ellwood City is in, is in all probability the toughest in the W. P. I. A. L. Ambridge and Aliquippa has been placed in the same section along with New Castle, Butler, New Brighton, Beaver Falls and Ellwood. There will be some mighty fine basketball played in this vicinity for the 1934-35 season and it promises to be a hot race for the section championship.

Miss Sue Cox Is Hostess To Club

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Miss Sue Cox was hostess to the members of the Little club last night at the Hostess House on Glenn avenue. Miss Mary Webber was a special guest.

After a delicious dinner two tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. Berlin Smith was found to be the winner of the high score award. Miss Webber was presented with a guest favor.

Miss Irma Irwin will entertain the club in two weeks at her home on Fourth street.

TRUE BLUE CLASS

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—True Blue Bible class of the Slippery Rock Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. Russel Glasser on the New Castle road last night with 23 present.

The president, Mrs. Warren Wilson presided at the business meeting, which was followed with an enjoyable social time. Prizes as a result were won by Mrs. Clair Friday and Mrs. Norman Guy. A luncheon was served at a later hour by the hostess with the assisatnce of Mrs. Alfred Kennedy. The class plans to have a Christmas party on the third Tuesday of December.

Jury Frees Petroleum Center Man Of Voluntary Manslaughter Charge

(International News Service)

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 21.—Although acquitted on a charge of voluntary manslaughter, Edward L. Behringer, 28, of Petroleum Center, awaited sentence today following his conviction on charges of failing to stop at the scene of an accident and give assistance.

The jury that liberated Behringer on the manslaughter charge in the death of Robert Bradley, 14, of near Pleasantville, found him guilty on the other counts.

NEW INHERITANCE TAX PAYMENT IN MELLON ESTATE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Executors of the estate of the late R. B. Mellon announced today they had made an additional inheritance tax payment of $250,000 to the state.

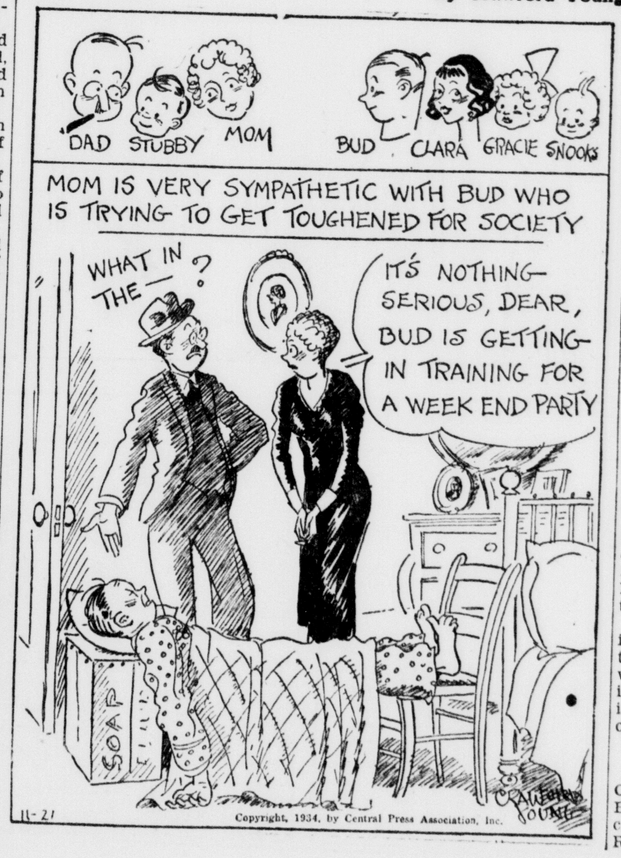

The announcement followed Judge Thomas P. Trimble's granting the executors until June 1, 1935, to file an inventory of the estate. The latest payment brings the total paid to $600,000.

The hearing before Judge Trimble in orphans' court, which resulted in the granting of time to file the inventory, was on a demand for an immediate inventory made by Register of Wills Jospeh N. Mackrell on orders from Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Six In Westminster Lineup To Graduate

Others To Leave Are Scarbrough, Franklin, Staples Sweeney and Young

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Six Westminster College football players end their collegiate grid careers here Saturday when the Titans face Geneva in the final contest on the 10-game card.

The six men who will graduate in June are: Ray Sweeney, Youngstown, O.; William Staples, Butler; Irving Franklin, Freeport, N. Y.; Robert Scarbrough, McDonald, O.; Harold Burry, New Castle; and Walter Young, Freeport, N. Y.

Sweeney, a letterman in football basketball, and track, has played four years as a back on Titan grid teams. During this time he has always been a star performer, and has often won all-conference mention because of his play. One of the fastest men on the Titan squad, Sweeney has been a consistent scorer for four seasons.

Staples Is Good

Staples, captain and acting captain for two seasons, has been outstanding at fullback both offensively and defensively. His play this season in the Thiel, Grove City, Edinboro, and Slippery Rock games was especially outstanding, and his absence in the Muskingum game last week was felt very much. Staples will be ready to start against Geneva Saturday.

Franklin played center for three seasons and for part of this season, but was shifted to tackle where he has bolstered the line play of the Titans considerably. He was a member of the court squad last year, and has received all-conference mention for his play at center.

Scarbrough, an outstanding utility player, has been used in every position on the team during his four years. He has been at his best as a lineman, however, and is used at either tackle or center this year. Scarbrough has been a student manager of basketball, and will probably be out for a position as manager of the court team this year.

Burry Star Guard

Burry, a hard-charging guard, came up through the ranks of the cross country team. In his freshman year, Burry, a New Castle high grad, was a member of the harrier team. After demonstrating that he was the outstanding distance runner, he dropped cross country and reported for football. Last year he won his spurs as a guard, and this season has been an outstanding lineman.

Young, a halfback in his first year, did not see much action as a freshman due to injuries received, but when once shifted to a guard post immediately became a star on offense and defense. Young has also been a member of the court squad.

Coveted Victory

All six of these men have played against Geneva three times. In these three games, the Covenanters have scored 57 points to nothing against the Titans. Geneva won 18-0 at Beaver Falls in 1931; 19-0 at Beaver Falls in 1932; and 20-0 at Beaver Falls in 1933. On Saturday the Titans believe they have a chance of winning, and the six seniors will try to end their careers with a victory.

To date, Westminster has won three, tied one, and lost five contests; while Geneva has won one, tied two, and lost five. A victory for either team Saturday will mean a successful season, so keen is the rivalry between the two schools.

Notre Dame And Army Will Play Saturday Battle

By MICHAEL J. FOSTER
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Once again the nation's football fans are girding themselves for their weekly tilt with the bookies whose number has grown so amazingly this fall.

Season's records are being pored over and the daily accounts of practice sessions are being carefully watched for injuries to key men. We even know of one chronic bettor who has a complete U. S. government weather forecast for the week-end; he's taking no chances with rain and its consequent fumbles!

Army-Notre Dame

In most of the big games this week-end either of the teams playing could win without occasioning too much surprise. And yet the pool operators demand that you pick your list all right, guessing even the ties, if you are to collect.

The game heading the lists, and one of the toughest to pick, is the Army-Notre Dame battle, which is expected to attract 70,000 spectators to the Yankee stadium.

Here's an even-Stephen affair if ever there was one, six of one and half a dozen of the other. In some circles the Army is the favorite, because the plainsmen are supposed to have the answer to the Rockne attack.

In others Elmer Layden's Irish are picked, because the Ramblers clicked in the second half of last week's Northwestern game and showed a lot of scoring power. To this department it looks close, so much so that a tie score may well be the ultimate result.

Yale-Harvard, in the New Haven bowl, has a definitely blue tinge, after the Elis' uprising in Princeton, but don't forget Harvard will be just as strongly keyed up for the Bulldog as Yale was for the Tiger. And Eddie Casey's got quite a few likely-looking youngsters on his squad.

Penn State-Bucknell

Penn State-Bucknell, at Lewisburg, looks like a tough one to pick, too. The Nittany Lions are plenty strong; they proved their defensive power at least against Columbia and Pennsylvania. But it took a fumbled pass from center for unbeaten Western Maryland to humble the Bisons.

Temple is unbeaten, but that doesn't mean the Owls are any cinch to whip Villanova. They lost to the Wildcats by a 24-0 score last year, it may be well to remember, and the 39-0 score run up by Harry Stuhldreher's team against Manhattan last Saturday is another straw which may tell which way the wind will blow in the Philadelphia clash.

Heller To Join New York Giants

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Warren Heller, former Pittsburgh University All-American halfback and a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team was in New York today, prepared to complete the professional season with the New York Giants.

Heller will perform for the Giants during their remaining three games, but will revert to the Pittsburgh team for next season.

County League To Banquet Thursday

W. G. ANDREWS TO BE TOASTMASTER

Lawrence County Baseball league officials, managers and players will hold a banquet at the Elks club at 7 p. m., Thursday and according to President Alec Samuels, everything is set for not only a sumptuous dinner but also plenty of baseball talk.

Arrangements have been made, whereby William G. Andrews, former president and one of the oldest baseball players in the country will act as toastmaster. The principal address will be delivered by Attorney George W. Muse.

It is said that the championship Bessemer team will have all their players and officials at the banquet and the other aggregations in the circuit will also have numerous representatives.

About 75 are expected to attend the fete.

The dinner will start promptly at seven p. m.

New Ruling May Hurt Minnesota

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Ten gray-haired professors and a 15-word rule apparently are going to succeed in doing what tons of football beef and brawn have failed to do this season—stop Minnesota's unchecked rampage through college football ranks.

The elderly gentlemen are the faculty advisers of the Big Ten, the rule is the one which reads:

"No student shall participate in intercollegiate athletics for more than three years in the aggregate."

The effect of the words, which have been part of the Big Ten code for many years, will be to deprive the Gophers next season of two men who have been particularly important in their title drive this year—Stan Kostka, fullback, and Bill Bevan, guard. It also may cost them Art Clarkson, halfback, and Vernon Oech, tackle, who likewise are reported to have competed as freshman at Oregon as well as in the varsity, although confirmation is lacking.

JUST BREAKING IT IN

Reggie McNamara, veteran six-day bicycle rider, has suffered a broken collar bone 11 times.

STAR OF THE WEST :—: By Jack Sords

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Minnesota Gophers believe a good offense is a good defense but in addition this season added a battering attack to their push to a possible mythical national championship. In seven games the Gophers have held their opponents to an average of 119 yards each game from scrimmage and of this only an average of 75 yards a game by rushing the ball. While holding the opposition in check, Minnesota slashed away with an average of 380 yards a game from scrimmage, averaging 345 yards by rushing. Their backfield, including 11 ball carriers, averaged 6.2 yards each try from scrimmage, solely on running plays.

Babe Didrickson, track and field star of the last Olympic games, entered a golf tourney for the first time yesterday at Fort Worth and rode away with medalist honors in a card of 77. She went out in 38 and came back in 39. It was the second annual invitation meet of the Fort Worth Women's Golf association.

Babe Ruth came through with another home run yesterday and the American All-Stars beat the Nippon All-Stars 1 to 0, at Shizuoka before 16,000 baseball fans. He hit the homer off Eiji Sawamura, a 17 year old Jap pitcher.

YOUNG FOOTBALL PLAYER INJURED

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 21.—George Yockey, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Yockey, of New Castle street, is suffering from a broken leg as the result of playing football Friday evening. He was playing with several other boys, when he fell, and another boy fell on him, and he was badly injured. He was carried home and a physician called. When an X-ray was taken it was found that the leg was broken, and cracked in two other places. He is ten years old.

New Castle To Resume Practice

Coach Phil Bridenbaugh Starts Drilling Team For Thanksgiving Day Game

New Castle High School "Red Hurricane" football team had a rest Monday afternoon. Today it was back to the grind for the wearers of the red jerseys. Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh wants to win that Turtle Creek game Thanksgiving day, and to that end he is going to have the New Castles letter perfect.

Turtle Creek is going to send a strong team here. Then want to settle a little score with New Castle for that upset at Turtle Creek last year. Coach Ben Haldy has been grooming the Turtles for this encounter.

Three of the New Castle giants are out of the practice sessions for the next few days with injuries. Captain Walter Raskowski is limping with a charley-horse, and Alec Shellogg is nursing a badly bruised hand. Fred Shellogg did not play Saturday due to an injured leg, but may get into the game Thanksgiving.

With the Class AA championship hanging in the balance this game on Turkey Day is going to have lots of appeal.

Post Season Tilt Is Set For Dec. 8

New Castle And New Kensington May Battle Second Time For Championship

New Castle High School football team needs only to defeat Turtle Creek Union at Taggart Stadium Thanksgiving afternoon to earn the right to meet New Kensington High again for the Class AA championship. New Castle and New Kensington High are the only undefeated teams in the major circuit.

New Ken High has ended the Class AA games on their card. They played four games, won three and tied one, defeating Monessen, Charleroi and Clairton.

New Castle has won three and tied one. New Castle has taken the measure Charleroi, Washington, Clairton and tied New Ken High.

The site of the playoff game if necessary has not as yet been determined, there are four possible sites for the title game—New Castle, New Kensington, Beaver Falls, Pittsburgh.

Garden Would Build Outdoor Arena Over In Jersey City Area

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Madison Square Garden, through its matchmaker, James J. Johnston, Tuesday threw down the gauntlet to the New York state boxing commission, and threatened to build an outdoor arena in Jersey City and stage all future title fights there.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service, Johnston revealed that he had several offers from Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, and the political power of the state, to build such an arena.

Johnston made his statement in reply to a story from the coast quoting Ancil Hoffman, manager of Champion Max Baer, as saying that Jack Dempsey had advised him that the Garden's contract with the champion for his next title fight was not valid.

How Contract Works.

"We have an iron clad agreement with Baer to promote his next fight," said Johnston. "It doesn't matter that the boxing commission says our contracts are no good. Our courts of law have always upheld private contracts. I know, for when I was promoting on my own hook, I tried to break one Primo Carnera had with the Garden at the time and failed, although I had a whole battery of the best legal talent in the land.

"The commission requires us to sign one of their contracts but that one—strictly for show purposes—doesn't matter. The one that binds is the one we always have privately with fighters themselves."

Johnston insisted that Baer would fight first for the Garden and nobody else and, if not here, then in Jersey City.

Franklin High Floor Team To Play On Friday

Coach Bill Wallace Has Ben Franklin Junior High Five Tuned Up For Season

Coach Bill Wallace announced today that the 1934-35 edition of the Ben Franklin junior high basketball team would open the season Friday afternoon by taking on the faculty team of Franklin high.

Next Tuesday afternoon the Franklins will play the Princeton team at the Franklin high floor. The Franklinites are out for the championship again this year and will have a classy combination on the court.

Wallace has been working the following boys hard and has picked as his starting lineup: Koszella and Mancine or Sniezek at the forwards, Strasbaugh at center and Ross and Nocera or Maciorelli at the guards. The reserves are Merando, Ostrosky, Ryglinski, Gray, J. Ross, Evanoski, Hawkey, Nativio, Claypool and Moncey.

IN COLD CASH, TOO

Harry Newman Is Severely Injured

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Harry Newman, star quarterback of the New York Giants, and former All-American luminary at the University of Michigan, is out of National Pro League competition for the remainder of the season, it became known today.

Newman was injured in the Giants' game with the Chicago Bears at the Polo Grounds on Sunday. An examination at St. Elizabeth's hospital disclosed that several vertebrae in his spine had been injured and that it would be necessary for him to wear a brace indefinitely.

Canton Tenpin Bowlers Coming

Saturday night the Union tenpin bowlers will battle the Canton Merchants tenpin team here. The match will start at 8 o'clock. The Canton Merchants have been state champions in Ohio for the past several years and are rated as one of the strongest bowling teams in the country. The locals will use the strongest possible lineup against the Ohioans, according to J. D. Thompson.

"Long Count" Barry Is Held In Swindle

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Dave "Long Count" Barry, 45, referee at the last Dempsey-Tunney fight, submitted to further police questioning today as four others were held in connection with a $54,000 swindle at the Amalgamated Trust & Savings bank.

Held over night in a detective bureau cell, Barry denied all knowledge of the swindle plot confessed by Otto Van Derck, 23, a ledger clerk at the bank. Van Derck implicated Barry among others, explaining that he wished to get married Thanksgiving Day and wanted to clear his conscience.

Passes "Buck".

According to the young clerk's statement the swindle was executed through the Dave Barry Enterprises, Inc., and Dave Barry, Inc. Overdrafts issued on these two firms were covered up by falsifying the bank's books, Van Derck said.

Barry insisted he was merely the nominal head of the two firms, leaving all the details of financial management to Joseph Balata, 38, one of those under arrest. Balata, under the name of Joseph B. Marcino, finished a federal penitentiary term at Atlanta in 1927 for embezzling $200,000 from a Warren, Mass., bank, police learned.

The others held were Abraham Karatz, 43, an attorney, and Walter Ehlers, 51, a broker.

Trade Winds In Louisville Are Becoming Heavy

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21.—Within 24 hours or less the St. Louis Browns, through their sterling manager, Rogers Hornsby, will announce a deal that will astound the baseball world, not because of its magnitude, but because of its amazing particulars. The St. Louis Browns are about to accept one infielder, one pitcher and cash, variously estimated up to $10,000, for one player from the Cleveland Indians.

After careful inquiry the latter has been narrowed down to an outfielder—and take your choice. The St. Louis outfielders are Garms, Campbell, West and Pepper, and I have Hornsby's word for it that it isn't West. Regardless of who figures, this makes it an excellent and unfunny deal from a Cleveland standpoint, especially in view of the Cleveland cash.

Start Session

Anyhow, that's the way things stood this morning as the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs prepared to go into executive session, what ever that is. Annually the National Association prepares to go into executive session and sometimes it actually does. Nobody has ever been able to confirm the fact.

Neither was the story that claimed to know that Lew Wentz, the big barrel and bullion man from Ponca City, Okla., had already purchased the St. Louis Cardinals. That was sheer guessing, inasmuch as Branch Rickey of the Cardinals personaly told me that the deal wouldn't be made here, meaning, I suspect, that it wouldn't be announced here.

Meantime, I have to report that both Chicago clubs are doing something. The White Sox, for instance, will sell anything and anybody—at the proper rate of exchange. They would be only too glad to exchange Al Simmons with the Detroit club if the Detroit club could do business. The Detroit club can't.

Cubs-Pirates Dicker

This brings us back to the Chicago Cubs, who have very little and will trade it just as a personal favor because they like the way you shave your neck. Their particular object is the Pittsburgh club and a young man named Freddie Lindstrom.

So far, according to Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh manager, they have offered Bud Tinning, a pitcher, and a couple of guys named Joe. To be frank, Mr. Guy Bush, the man with the half-column whiskers, is the crux of the situation.

Who said there was a situation? Well, personally, I wouldn't like to say. But I certainly would appreciate knowing and, if there doesn't happen to be any, I'll sure go on back to New York.

Plan To Amend Boxing Laws In New York State

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The New York boxing commission today had discovered what somebody else had long suspected, to wit: That everything and everybody in the fight racket was not on the up and up.

This discovery has so unnerved the three august members of the commission that they are going to ask the state legislature to amend the boxing law so as to permit a majority vote to decide a fight in the event that the two judges and the referee disagree.

Under the present law, if one judge votes for Kid Schmaltz and the other calls it a draw, the referee can award the duke to Kid Glutz. The referee's decision is final and the judges are voting merely for the exercise and their $25 fee.

The commissioners admit they are at sea. But they've been that way so long they could get cards in the seamen's union without trouble. So are their referees and judges and one can hardly blame them. The commissioners admit they don't don't know whether to continue with their involved combination of points and round by rounds system or a total point base system.

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME

If you have a lot of statistics, figures, and other material on the Notre Dame-Army game with which to dope out the winner, just throw them all into the waste basket, and draw a selection out of your last summer's straw hat. It will save you time and much mental agony, and you have just as good a chance of picking the winner.

Statistics, previous records, and such don't mean a thing in the Irish-Cadet battles—they aren't ordinary games. The Notre Dame fourth team could play the Army varsity or the Cadet Plebes could play the Rambler first-stringers but in either case you couldn't pick a winner safely before the game was over.

The old saying, "all men are equal" applies to these grid battles every time. An all-American is just as likely to be bottled up for the entire afternoon by a couple of sophomore ends as not. No matter how superior one team appears over the other before hand or how many sensational stars are in the lineups, as soon as the game starts 22 men begin sixty minutes of football without regard to fame or reputation.

Last season, the fact that N. D. was kicked around by almost everybody from Kansas to the Navy meant nothing as far as the game with the Soldiers was concerned. Spotting Army two touchdowns in the first half Notre Dame played poor football for three-fourths of the game but showed enough spirit in the final quarter to win.

In 1932, the Irish went to New York, the underdogs, and given only an outside chance against one of the best Army teams in years. Notre Dame showed the East one of the best offenses ever seen with blocking and tackling done to perfection in pushing the Cadets all over the Yankee Stadium and winning, 21 to 0.

The Army mule is capable of upsetting the dope, too, as they proved in 1931. The Irish were the favorites this time but they went down to a 12-0 defeat at the hands of Stecker, Summerfelt, Brown, and Co. Schwartz, Melinkovich, Sheeketski, and the rest were stopped by an inspired Army team that played like a pack of demons.

In 1930, Notre Dame had, what is considered by many, the greatest grid machine ever assembled. High scores, perfect plays, each player an individual star, color and glamour went hand in hand with the team. All this was known to the Cadets when they went on Soldiers' Field in Chicago for the game but although it had awed such teams as Penn and Pitt, Notre Dame was just another football squad to the Army. The teams battled three scoreless periods in a sea of mud but in the final quarter the Irish squeezed out a 7-6 victory.

You can follow the rivalry back to 1913 but you'll find the same story each year. Sometimes the Army wins, more often the Irish come through, but whatever the result it never has any connection with the pre-game dope.

Anything may happen in that game in New York, Saturday. Don't feel certain that Buckler will make long runs, that Stillman will smear Irish plays, that Millner will block a punt, or that Shakespeare will break loose. The subs often outshine the stars in this annual grid classic. Each player is only an individual with a number on his back; famous reputations mean little when Notre Dame and Army meets.

WILLIAMS DESIRES GAMES

Williams A. C. football team of the south side would like to play the Ryantown team Sunday, November 25, at the Centennial field. If Ryantown wants to play, write or call Floyd Neyman at Williams place on Long avenue. The Williams lay a claim to the independent championship of Lawrence county and New Castle.

Perry Highway Is Re-Checked

DANGEROUS SPOTS TO BE ELIMINATED

ZELIENOPLE, Nov. 21. — Employes of the State Highway Department of Engineers and Surveys, of Harrisburg, were in this community making a re-check of the Perry Highway that is to be relocated. Although no definite information has been given out, it is likely that the road will go through Zelienople, as the employes from the state department spent considerable time on that location. The road will go across the Connoquenessing creek near the reservoirs, on the Passavant farm, and will require a viaduct across the B. and O. railroad tracks and creek, and connecting with the road more than a mile above Harmony. Instead of making the turn on Grandview avenue as the present road does, it will go straight down Main street, eliminating several bad curves, also the Harmony bridge that has caused so many accidents since the Perry Highway was built a few years ago.

Other possible locations are through Harmony, leaving Zelienople out. One is through the lower part of Harmony and over near the present Harmony bridge, connecting south about two miles. The other is through Zelienople and across the B. and O. tracks at Harmony, straight across the Connoquenessing creek, and again connecting above Harmony about two miles.

A survey was made some time ago and the surveyers and engineers have been back the past week making a final re-check.

Big Turnout Hears Temperance Leader

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Evils of non-prohibition and the present liquor problem were fully discussed before an excellent turnout in the local U. P. church last evening by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary, board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, Washington, D. C., and Col. Frank B. Ebbert, field secretary of the board.

Dr. Wilson told of the reasons for the failure of prohibition in America. He pointed out that alcohol is a drug and extremely harmful to the body. He told of some of its effects and results, and urged that the young people be educated against this danger. This generally demoralizes the human race Dr. Wilson asserted.

Col. Ebbert talked on the economic loss caused by liquor drinking, when this money could be put to use for a more noble purpose. He also told of what alcohol could do to the human body.

Damages Demanded For Ringer Death

Widow Of Former Ellwood City Man Asks $20,000 From Bus Lines

Mrs. Mabelle D. Ringer of Ellwood City, has filed a suit at the county prothonotary's office against the Penn-Ohio Coach Lines company, in which she asks for $20,000 damages as the result of an accident on the New Castle-Youngstown road, near the state line, in which her husband, Harry M. Ringer, was killed.

G. C. Denniston of Ellwood City had invited Harry M. Ringer, A. J. Dambaugh and Jesse Fehl to ride with him to Youngstown, O. They were on the return trip and had crossed the state line, west of New Bedford. The road was wet and slippery.

Denniston was driving and Ringer was sitting beside him in the front seat. The car skidded and was thrown at right angles across the road. A Penn-Ohio coach, with George B. Cochran as driver, was going west and when the Denniston car was thrown across the road, it is claimed that the bus was several hundred feet away, and coming at a high rate of speed.

The bus struck the Denniston car and Ringer was killed. It is contended, in the statement of claim, that the Denniston car was in plain view and that the accident was the result of the high speed at which the bus was being driven, which prevented the driver's stopping in time to avoid the accident.

Ellwood City High Starts Basketball Training Tuesday

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—A flood of candidates answered Coach George "Ganzy" Benedict's first call, as Ellwood City high began its training for the 1934-35 basketball season at Lincoln gym Tuesday afternoon.

There were all sizes of floor aspirants. About 50 of the above number were cut at the close of the first day's practice which consisted of passing and shooting. Coach Benedict will cut the above number daily until it is down to about 25. He will have a varsity squad of about 12 and the remainder will be on the Reserves. A junior high team will also be selected. Coach Mike Ferrare is in charge of this.

Coach Benedict has only two regulars left from last year's team around whom he will endeavor to build a worthy quintet. These are Alex Robuck and Tony Scopelite, forwards. There would have been another, "Chink" Lamenza, center, but he quit school. After a look at his remaining material Coach Benedict is hopeful that he will be able to wield a dangerous quintet to represent Ellwood high this year.

Workouts will be held daily now at Lincoln gym, as the season starts early in December. Section 3, this year, in which Ellwood City is in, is in all probability the toughest in the W. P. I. A. L. Ambridge and Aliquippa has been placed in the same section along with New Castle, Butler, New Brighton, Beaver Falls and Ellwood. There will be some mighty fine basketball played in this vicinity for the 1934-35 season and it promises to be a hot race for the section championship.

Miss Sue Cox Is Hostess To Club

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—Miss Sue Cox was hostess to the members of the Little club last night at the Hostess House on Glenn avenue. Miss Mary Webber was a special guest.

After a delicious dinner two tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. Berlin Smith was found to be the winner of the high score award. Miss Webber was presented with a guest favor.

Miss Irma Irwin will entertain the club in two weeks at her home on Fourth street.

NEW INHERITANCE TAX PAYMENT IN MELLON ESTATE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Executors of the estate of the late R. B. Mellon announced today they had made an additional inheritance tax payment of $250,000 to the state.

The announcement followed Judge Thomas P. Trimble's granting the executors until June 1, 1935, to file an inventory of the estate. The latest payment brings the total paid to $600,000.

The hearing before Judge Trimble in orphans' court, which resulted in the granting of time to file the inventory, was on a demand for an immediate inventory made by Register of Wills Jospeh N. Mackrell on orders from Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

SECTION 3. It shall be unlawful for any person to coast, slide, skate or ride a bicycle, scooter or other unmotivated device on any sidewalk of any street, alley or highway in the City of New Castle.

SECTION 4. It shall be unlawful for any person to attach any sled, sledge, drag or other sliding equipment to any motor vehicle within the City of New Castle and it shall be unlawful for any person on any sled, sledge, roller skates, bicycle or other unmotivated vehicle to trail any motor vehicle or to attach or hold onto any motor vehicle or street car in the streets of the City of New Castle.

SECTION 5. The Mayor is hereby authorized, whenever he shall deem it expedient or necessary, to establish safety zones in those streets, or parts of streets, where coasting, sliding and skating are not prohibited by this ordinance under the authority of Section 1002 of the Vehicle Code and the said streets and parts of streets shall be marked as safety zones by the Police Department for such time as the same are so established by the Mayor.

SECTION 6. Any person who shall use any street or part of street where coasting, sliding and skating are not prohibited for any of those purposes, he shall do so at his or her own risk and it shall be the duty of the Police Department to establish on all such streets sufficient warnings that any use of the said streets, or parts of streets, is dangerous.

SECTION 7. Any person who shall be guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not more than $300.00 and costs of prosecution and, in default of the payment of the fine or the costs, to imprisonment in the County Jail for a period of not more than ten days. Any violation of this ordinance that is covered by the provisions of the Vehicle Code shall be punished as provided by the said Vehicle Code.

SECTION 8. If any minor shall violate any of the provisions of this Ordinance, he or she may be arrested and taken into custody by any officer of the said city, and may then be taken to the Office of the Mayor and detained until he or she has paid the fine imposed for such violation or until the same has been paid by some other person. In all cases of violation of this Ordinance, the instrument with which the same is violated may be confiscated and held by the Police Department for a period not to exceed three months, in the discretion of the Mayor.

Passed by Council, November 19, 1934.

KANE WOLVES SHOT TO DEATH

(International News Service)

KANE, Pa., Nov. 21.—This community's widespread wolf hunt came to an abrupt climax here today when roaring guns in the hand of John W. Oberg, 43, and W. H. Adamson, 50, drove bullets into the heads of the animals.

Having tracked the animals most of the morning, Oberg and Adamson finally overtook the pair of Arctic wolves that escaped from Dr. E. H. McCleery's wolf park last night in a woods three miles from here.

The big bad wolves were dead.

Traders Await American Telephone Dividend Action, Market Marks Time

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—With traders awaiting the American Telephone dividend action at noon today, the market slowed down considerable. Price changes in the main body of stocks were small.

Railroad shares made a feeble attempt to rally following yesterday's moderate decline, but the recovery was checked by selling in New Haven which fell fractionally to a new bear market low. New York Central and other favorites also showed slight declines.

Utility shares again displayed a stubborn resistance to liquidation and in most cases held firm around yesterday's closing levels. American Telephone was steady at 105, unchanged from yesterday.

United States Steel, Bethlehem and American Can as well as other leaders in the group moved in a narrow range to hold around Tuesday's final prices.

Farm Implement and mail order stocks including J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were inclined to softness in sympathy with wheat where quotations were down fractionally. The cotton market also was heavy with losses running to 10 cents a bale.

Rate Reductions Are Announced

Sixteen Utilities In State Announce New Rate Schedules For 1935

STATE COMMISSION REPORTS PROGRESS

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—Rate reductions totalling almost $1,500,000 annually by 16 Pennsylvania utility companies were announced today by the Public Service commission as the first result of its campaign to slash utility profits to six per cent.

Most of the new rate schedules will go into effect on January 1, 1935. Domestic and commercial consumers alike will share in the reductions which will affect rates in all sections of the state.

The reductions will be made by seven electric companies, six gas concerns, two telephone companies and one water concern.

Ten of the 16 companies voluntarily reducing rates are doing so as a direct result of letters sent by the commission last month to 50 companies requesting them to cut rates to a six per cent return or show cause why this could not be done. November 15 was the last day for filing answers.

Three other reductions were made, the commission said, as an indirect result of the campaign which started with the mailing of the 50 letters. These other reductions resulted from informal conferences between utility companies and the commission.

File Reduced Tariffs

The companies which are to file reduced tariffs, according to the commission, and the estimated annual savings to consumers follow:

Luzerne County Gas and Electric company, serving 17 boroughs in Luzerne county near Wilkes-Barre, $162,500;

Erie County Electric company, Erie, $90,000;

Palmerton Telephone company, Palmerton, $5,118;

Van Pike Telephone company, Milford, $1,200;

Anthracite Water company, Gilberton; Fayette County Gas company, Uniontown, Scottdale and Connellsville, and Stoufferstown Electric company, Franklin county, no estimated savings for these three companies announced by the commission.

Erie Lighting company, Erie, $75,000;

Harrisburg Gas company, Harrisburg, $44,931;

Lebanon Valley Gas company, Lebanon, $15,336;

Keystone Public Service company, Oil City, Franklin and Titusville, $54,000.

Voluntary Reductions

The Erie Lighting, Harrisburg Gas and Lebanon Valley Gas companies were the concerns which filed voluntary reductions as an indirect result of the campaign.

Reductions by the Metropolitan Edison, Edison Power and Light and Keystone Public Service resulted from informal conferences with the commission.

Officials of the commission announced that the new schedules of tariffs must be obtained from the utility companies directly and will not be given out here because of the informal nature of the cases.

In announcing the results of the campaign for six per cent profits, the commission said:

"The commission proposes to follow its rate reductions program through until utility rates throughout the state have been reduced to a reasonable minimum.

"To this end letters similar to those sent out last month are now being prepared and will go to additional utilities asking them to make rate reductions."

It was strongly intimated at the commission offices that formal rate cases probably will be started on the commission's own motion against companies which refused to make voluntary cuts as a result of the letters mailed in October.

AIREDALE DOG GETS FUNERAL SERVICE

(International News Service)

SHICKSHINNY, Pa.—A formal funeral service was accorded an airdale dog, the pet of the family of Mrs. John Campbell for 15 years that died of infirmities of old age. The body, encased in a casket, was lowered in a flower-bordered grave in the lawn of Mrs. Campbell's home while an undertaker intoned a brief eulogy.

GIVING THE GAMES TO THE GIRLS

These two scenes of athletic strife suggest the boys are giving the games back to the girls. The fair but rough poloists are playing at the Miami-Biltmore Country club at Coral Gables, Fla. When "Red" Grange Handled Ball Five Times And Scored Five Touchdowns in Single Game

OUTSTANDING AMONG the oddities in the history of football in the United States was the feat of Harold (Red) Grange, University of Illinois star, in the Illinois-Michigan game of 1924. In this game, Grange handled the ball only five times, and each time he scored a touchdown. Four of them were scored in the first quarter and the fifth in the last period. His runs were 95, 67, 56, 45 and 15 yards respectively. Although quite a novelty, Grange's achievement in this game was by no means as a result of freak plays. Rather, this record was due to his remarkable skill in dodging tacklers, which he displayed throughout his career as the "Galloping Ghost" of the gridiron.

Ruling Made On Borrowed Money By State Schools

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—School districts which borrow money by pledging delinquent taxes under provisions of the Mansfield Act of 1933 must pay all pledged tax collections into the emergency sinking fund created for the retirement of the bonds.

This ruling today was written for superintendent of public instruction James N. Rule by Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold in reply to a question asking if collectors of pledged delinquent taxes can be given compensation from such funds. The ruling added that compensation must be made from other funds.

Another ruling by Arnold determined that the liquor control board cannot appoint an assistant secretary except from a civil service list. The board's secretary is appointed but all other employes are selected by competitive examinations.

Gang Of Women Robs Only Men

(International News Service)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16 —A band of fifty "two-gun" Chinese women bandits is terrorizing the Luantung district in Hopei Provience.

The women always rob men.

Then suddenly he is faced with the demand, "Your money or your life"—and he finds himself hemmed in by the revolvers of the "decoy" and her friends.

Look For Gold Reported Stolen In Ellwood City

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Police and detectives today were watching for a $10 and a $2.50 gold piece to be put back in circulation.

The gold was stolen from Mrs. A. E. Neininger, Ellwood City.

Besides the gold, Mrs. Neininger told city detectives, the thief, who broke into her home, took three CWA checks for $66.75, $212 in cash and four rings.

RICE OWLS SIT HIGH ON NATIONAL FOOTBALL PERCH

SECTION 3. It shall be unlawful for any person to coast, slide, skate or ride a bicycle, scooter or other unmotivated device on any sidewalk of any street, alley or highway in the City of New Castle.

SECTION 4. It shall be unlawful for any person to attach any sled, sledge, drag or other sliding equipment to any motor vehicle within the City of New Castle and it shall be unlawful for any person on any sled, sledge, roller skates, bicycle or other unmotivated vehicle to trail any motor vehicle or to attach or hold onto any motor vehicle or street car in the streets of the City of New Castle.

SECTION 5. The Mayor is hereby authorized, whenever he shall deem it expedient or necessary, to establish safety zones in those streets, or parts of streets, where coasting, sliding and skating are not prohibited by this ordinance under the authority of Section 1002 of the Vehicle Code and the said streets and parts of streets shall be marked as safety zones by the Police Department for such time as the same are so established by the Mayor.

SECTION 6. Any person who shall use any street or part of street where coasting, sliding and skating are not prohibited for any of those purposes, he shall do so at his or her own risk and it shall be the duty of the Police Department to establish on all such streets sufficient warnings that any use of the said streets, or parts of streets, is dangerous.

SECTION 7. Any person who shall be guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not more than $300.00 and costs of prosecution and, in default of the payment of the fine or the costs, to imprisonment in the County Jail for a period of not more than ten days. Any violation of this ordinance that is covered by the provisions of the Vehicle Code shall be punished as provided by the said Vehicle Code.

SECTION 8. If any minor shall violate any of the provisions of this Ordinance, he or she may be arrested and taken into custody by any officer of the said city, and may then be taken to the Office of the Mayor and detained until he or she has paid the fine imposed for such violation or until the same has been paid by some other person. In all cases of violation of this Ordinance, the instrument with which the same is violated may be confiscated and held by the Police Department for a period not to exceed three months, in the discretion of the Mayor.

Passed by Council, November 19, 1934.

I, William T. Burns, City Clerk of New Castle, Penna., do hereby certify that the foregoing ordinance, No. 4366, Council Bill No. 26, was duly passed by the Council of the said City on the 19th day of November 1934, signed by the mayor and the seal of the said City affixed and attested by me.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereto set my hand and affixed the seal of the said City, this 20th day of November, 1934.

William T. Burns, City Clerk.

KANE WOLVES SHOT TO DEATH

(International News Service)

KANE, Pa., Nov. 21.—This community's widespread wolf hunt came to an abrupt climax here today when roaring guns in the hand of John W. Oberg, 43, and W. H. Adamson, 50, drove bullets into the heads of the animals.

Having tracked the animals most of the morning, Oberg and Adamson finally overtook the pair of Arctic wolves that escaped from Dr. E. H. McCleery's wolf park last night in a woods three miles from here.

Uttering vicious growls and baring their fangs, the animals, slinking close to the ground, prepared to attack the pair of hunters.

Two guns went to shoulders. A pair of explosions echoed through the woods simultaneously.

The big bad wolves were dead.

Their carcasses were brought to the local state police sub-station.

Traders Await American Telephone Dividend Action, Market Marks Time

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—With traders awaiting the American Telephone dividend action at noon today, the market slowed down considerable. Price changes in the main body of stocks were small.

Railroad shares made a feeble attempt to rally following yesterday's moderate decline, but the recovery was checked by selling in New Haven which fell fractionally to a new bear market low. New York Central and other favorites also showed slight declines.

Utility shares again displayed a stubborn resistance to liquidation and in most cases held firm around yesterday's closing levels. American Telephone was steady at 105, unchanged from yesterday.

Industrial shares continued to give a demonstration of strength.

United States Steel, Bethlehem and American Can as well as other leaders in the group moved in a narrow range to hold around Tuesday's final prices.

Farm Implement and mail order stocks including J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were inclined to softness in sympathy with wheat where quotations were down fractionally. The cotton market also was heavy with losses running to 10 cents a bale.

Rate Reductions Are Announced

Sixteen Utilities In State Announce New Rate Schedules For 1935

STATE COMMISSION REPORTS PROGRESS

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—Rate reductions totalling almost $1,500,000 annually by 16 Pennsylvania utility companies were announced today by the Public Service commission as the first result of its campaign to slash utility profits to six per cent.

Most of the new rate schedules will go into effect on January 1, 1935. Domestic and commercial consumers alike will share in the reductions which will affect rates in all sections of the state.

The reductions will be made by seven electric companies, six gas concerns, two telephone companies and one water concern.

Ten of the 16 companies voluntarily reducing rates are doing so as a direct result of letters sent by the commission last month to 50 companies requesting them to cut rates to a six per cent return or show cause why this could not be done. November 15 was the last day for filing answers.

Three other reductions were made, the commission said, as an indirect result of the campaign which started with the mailing of the 50 letters. These other reductions resulted from informal conferences between utility companies and the commission.

File Reduced Tariffs

The companies which are to file reduced tariffs, according to the commission, and the estimated annual savings to consumers follow:

Luzerne County Gas and Electric company, serving 17 boroughs in Luzerne county near Wilkes-Barre, $162,500;

Erie County Electric company, Erie, $90,000;

Palmerton Telephone company, Palmerton, $5,118;

Van Pike Telephone company, Milford, $1,200;

Anthracite Water company, Gilberton; Fayette County Gas company, Uniontown, Scottdale and Connellsville, and Stoufferstown Electric company, Franklin county, no estimated savings for these three companies announced by the commission.

Erie Lighting company, Erie, $75,000;

Harrisburg Gas company, Harrisburg, $44,931;

Lebanon Valley Gas company, Lebanon, $15,336;

Keystone Public Service company, Oil City, Franklin and Titusville, $54,000.

Voluntary Reductions

The Erie Lighting, Harrisburg Gas and Lebanon Valley Gas companies were the concerns which filed voluntary reductions as an indirect result of the campaign.

Reductions by the Metropolitan Edison, Edison Power and Light and Keystone Public Service resulted from informal conferences with the commission.

Officials of the commission announced that the new schedules of tariffs must be obtained from the utility companies directly and will not be given out here because of the informal nature of the cases.

Some of the new schedules have not been filed in detail with the commission up to the present time.

In announcing the results of the campaign for six per cent profits, the commission said:

"The commission proposes to follow its rate reductions program through until utility rates throughout the state have been reduced to a reasonable minimum.

"To this end letters similar to those sent out last month are now being prepared and will go to additional utilities asking them to make rate reductions."

It was strongly intimated at the commission offices that formal rate cases probably will be started on the commission's own motion against companies which refused to make voluntary cuts as a result of the letters mailed in October.

AIREDALE DOG GETS FUNERAL SERVICE

(International News Service)

SHICKSHINNY, Pa.—A formal funeral service was accorded an airdale dog, the pet of the family of Mrs. John Campbell for 15 years that died of infirmities of old age. The body, encased in a casket, was lowered in a flower-bordered grave in the lawn of Mrs. Campbell's home while an undertaker intoned a brief eulogy.

Poland now has only approximately 300,000 unemployed.

GIVING THE GAMES TO THE GIRLS

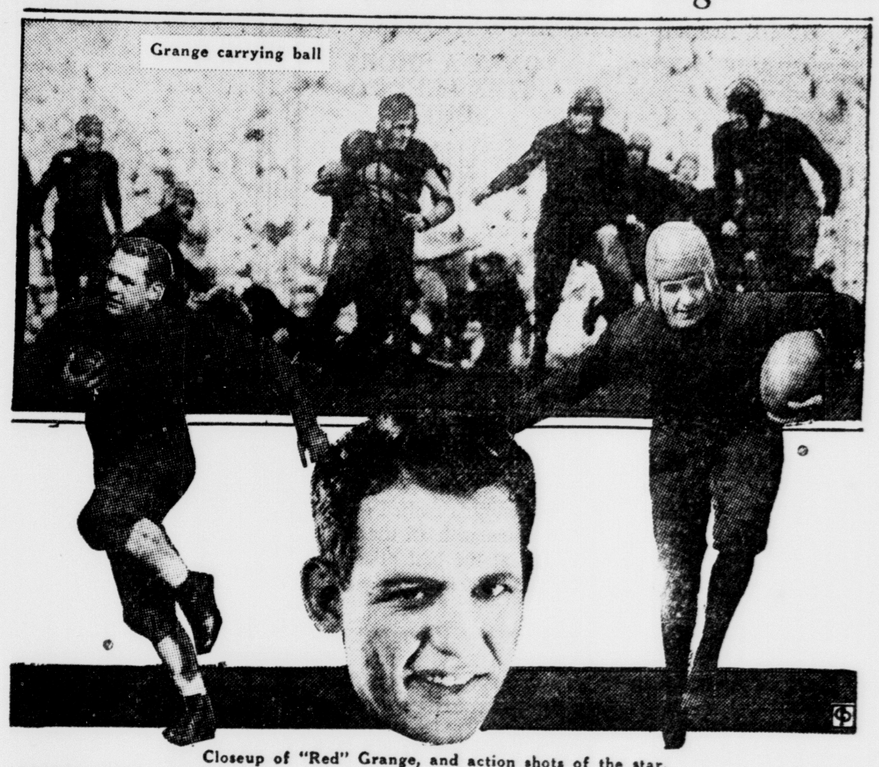

These two scenes of athletic strife suggest the boys are giving the games back to the girls. The fair but rough poloists are playing at the Miami-Biltmore Country club at Coral Gables, Fla. The football (gosh, how terrific) is between high school girls' teams of Tamalpias and San Rafael, Cal., at Mill Valley.

When "Red" Grange Handled Ball Five Times And Scored Five Touchdowns in Single Game

OUTSTANDING AMONG the oddities in the history of football in the United States was the feat of Harold (Red) Grange, University of Illinois star, in the Illinois-Michigan game of 1924. In this game, Grange handled the ball only five times, and each time he scored a touchdown. Four of them were scored in the first quarter and the fifth in the last period. His runs were 95, 67, 56, 45 and 15 yards respectively. Although quite a novelty, Grange's achievement in this game was by no means as a result of freak plays. Rather, this record was due to his remarkable skill in dodging tacklers, which he displayed throughout his career as the "Galloping Ghost" of the gridiron.

Ruling Made On Borrowed Money By State Schools

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—School districts which borrow money by pledging delinquent taxes under provisions of the Mansfield Act of 1933 must pay all pledged tax collections into the emergency sinking fund created for the retirement of the bonds.

This ruling today was written for superintendent of public instruction James N. Rule by Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold in reply to a question asking if collectors of pledged delinquent taxes can be given compensation from such funds. The ruling added that compensation must be made from other funds.

Another ruling by Arnold determined that the liquor control board cannot appoint an assistant secretary except from a civil service list. The board's secretary is appointed but all other employes are selected by competitive examinations.

Gang Of Women Robs Only Men

(International News Service)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16 —A band of fifty "two-gun" Chinese women bandits is terrorizing the Luantung district in Hopei Provience.

The women always rob men.

Then suddenly he is faced with the demand, "Your money or your life"—and he finds himself hemmed in by the revolvers of the "decoy" and her friends.

Look For Gold Reported Stolen In Ellwood City

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Police and detectives today were watching for a $10 and a $2.50 gold piece to be put back in circulation.

The gold was stolen from Mrs. A. E. Neininger, Ellwood City.

Gold, practically speaking, is worthless in trade because of President Roosevelt's nationalization order.

Besides the gold, Mrs. Neininger told city detectives, the thief, who broke into her home, took three CWA checks for $66.75, $212 in cash and four rings.

Greece has a great variety of mineral deposits.

RICE OWLS SIT HIGH ON NATIONAL FOOTBALL PERCH

Narrow Escapes In Train Wreck

TRAFFIC HALTED FOR FOUR HOURS

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—More than a score of passengers aboard a crack New York to St. Louis flyer of the Pennsylvania railroad were telling stories of narrow escapes from serious injury or death today after four Pullman cars were sideswiped by a freight train and derailed at South Fork, near here.

Railroad officials said two cars of a freight train, traveling on an adjacent track, were derailed just as the freight was approaching the flyer. The cars buckled when the automatic braking system took effect and the ends of the freight cars sideswiped the speeding passenger train. Two of the cars turned over on their sides.

Robert Rentschler, Wyomissing, Pa., machine company official, said "the air was so full of flying glass I don't see how any of us escaped being cut to pieces."

Threatens Workhouse Sentence To Three

Three men who gave the names of George Cross, Joe Rogan and "Flick" Tuskee, faced Mayor Mayne in police court today on a charge of having been drunk yesterday and also of having solicited alms from women in automobiles.

They said they had been drinking.

Mayor Mayne said the next time they faced him on such a charge each would draw a vacation in the workhouse.

Most Westminster Freshmen Are Eighteen Years Of Age

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—Freshmen at Westminster College range in age from 16 to 43, a recent survey shows. The greatest number of first-year students are in the 18-year group, although 13 of the freshmen are only 16 years old.

Fifty-six frosh are 17; 97 are 18; 39 are 19; 15 are 20; eight are 21; one is 22; two are 23; one is 26; one is 29; and one each are 32 and 43.

United Presbyterians lead in religious denominations, but there are 13 denominations represented in the class. There are 65 United Presbyterians, 64 Presbyterians, 47 Methodists, 12 Roman Catholics, seven each of Lutherans and Baptists, six Jewish, four Episcopalian, two each of Reformed, Christian Science, and Brethren, and one each of Greek Catholic, Covenanter and Christian.

Merchants lead the list of occupations of fathers of freshmen, 21 being listed in this field. Sixteen fathers are engineers, 13 farmers, 13 miners, 10 clerks. Other occupations include: Salesmen, insurance agents, foremen, attorneys, doctors, newspaper editors, professors, undertakers, bankers, advertising, school superintendent, judge, missionary, architect, interior decorating, pharmacy, and a long list of others.

Dr. Bennett Sees Jobless Insurance Nearing For State

Believes Legislation Coming, He Says Upon Return From Harrisburg

Belief that some form of unemployment insurance legislation will be placed before the Pennsylvania legislature early in 1935 was expressed today by Dr. G. S. Bennett, chairman of the Lawrence County Emergency Relief board, home from the Inter-state Conference on Labor Compacts at Harrisburg.

After pointing out that the interstate conference is one which has as its chief function the drafting of social legislation for various states, Dr. Bennett declared:

"Two unemployment insurance plans—the Wisconsin and Ohio plans—were discussed by Dr. W. N. Leiserson, chairman of the National Railway Mediation board, before the conference, and this address impressed us."

Dr. Bennett said the Ohio plan seemed to meet greater favor with the group than the Wisconsin plan did.

Under the Ohio plan the employer pays two per cent of the employe's salary while the employe himself pays one per cent to a state fund for jobless insurance. Under the Wisconsin plan the employer pays a percentage and the employe pays none.

Under the Ohio plan no additional state taxation is imposed for this insurance; the employer and employes pay. The money will be paid into a fund which will be under the supervision of the federal government and which will likely be turned over to the Federal Reserve for investment.

An employe, Dr. Bennett said, under the Ohio plan receives 50 per cent of his normal salary for a period of 20 weeks when he loses his job. That is based on a three per cent payment. If the payment percentage of the employer and employe is increased the payments would be continued over a longer time.

Louis B. Round, former CWA head, and Raymond Bennett, Dr. Bennett's son, also attended the conference.

POLISH FALCON CLUB

Their next business and social session will be held Friday, Nov. 23, in the Falcon hall. Marie Mazurkiewicz, Helen Noga and Matilda Pigon will be in charge.

Jail Sentences Given By Mayor

Reported Conduct Of One Prisoner While In Hospital Brings Heavy Fine

Ray Hallis and Vernon Hallis, relatives, today drew jail sentences when they answered to a charge of fighting and disorderly conduct in city police court. They were arrested November 17, sent to the Jameson Memorial hospital and appeared in police court today with bandages about their heads.

Vernon sustained a lacerated head when he came in contact with a Grant street window during the fight. Ray claims to have been struck by Vernon with a bottle and his head also was lacerated.

After being admitted to the hospital Ray is said to have employed abusive language to nurses, and the mayor, upon learning this, lectured him severely.

He fined Ray $25.00 with the alternative of 30 days in jail on the charge of having been disorderly at the hospital and also a $5.00 fine with the alternative of spending 10 days in jail on the charge of fighting and disorderly conduct in Grant street. Vernon was fined $5.00 and given the alternative of 10 days in jail on the charge of fighting and disorderly conduct.

White Returns From Hearing

Presents City's Case Before State Commission On Light Rates

City Solicitor Robert White has returned from Harrisburg, where he represented the city in oral arguments concerning the city's application before the public service commission to inquire into the records of the Pennsylvania Power Company.

The city maintains that it wants the records to properly make a survey of electric conditions here, for the purpose of ascertaining if domestic and street lighting rates are high.

The company maintained that a municipality had no legal right to inquire into the company's records, and said the records were on file at Harrisburg.

The commission did not hand down a decision.

SIX FIGHT DEATH; STORK ADDS BABY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—With a family of seven waging a grim fight against the ravages of typhoid fever in the Uniontown hospital, the stork added the ninth member of the family Tuesday. A 6½ pound daughter was born to Mrs. Maggie Smith of near Brucetton Mills, W. Va.

Previously, Albert Smith and his six children were committed to the hospital, suffering from typhoid fever which health experts traced to a spring on the Smith farm.

COMPLAINT ABOUT BOYS

Police were called to 316 Vine street last night, the complaint stating that there were "bad boys" annoying people. Police also ordered boys away from Lincoln avenue in the vicinity of the Cathedral last night.

W. C. A. on Thursday evening, November 22 at 8 o'clock.

Madame Carof comes here through the auspices of the peace group and the international relations department of the local Woman's club.

At Westminster college on Thursday morning she will talk to the students in chapel, coming here in the afternoon to speak to a Girl Reserves group at Ben Franklin high. On Thursday night she speaks to the peace council. On Friday morning the students of Slippery Rock State Teachers' college will hear her and on Friday afternoon at 2:30 she appears as speaker at a tea which the Cause and Cure of War members and the international relations department of the Woman's club will hold in the home of Mrs. George W. Ferver, Lincoln avenue.

Narrow Escapes In Train Wreck

TRAFFIC HALTED FOR FOUR HOURS

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—More than a score of passengers aboard a crack New York to St. Louis flyer of the Pennsylvania railroad were telling stories of narrow escapes from serious injury or death today after four Pullman cars were sideswiped by a freight train and derailed at South Fork, near here.

All four tracks of the road were blocked for several hours.

Railroad officials said two cars of a freight train, traveling on an adjacent track, were derailed just as the freight was approaching the flyer. The cars buckled when the automatic braking system took effect and the ends of the freight cars sideswiped the speeding passenger train. Two of the cars turned over on their sides.

Robert Rentschler, Wyomissing, Pa., machine company official, said "the air was so full of flying glass I don't see how any of us escaped being cut to pieces."

Threatens Workhouse Sentence To Three

Three men who gave the names of George Cross, Joe Rogan and "Flick" Tuskee, faced Mayor Mayne in police court today on a charge of having been drunk yesterday and also of having solicited alms from women in automobiles.

They said they had been drinking.

Mayor Mayne said the next time they faced him on such a charge each would draw a vacation in the workhouse.

SECTION 3. It shall be unlawful for any person to coast, slide, skate or ride a bicycle, scooter or other unmotivated device on any sidewalk of any street, alley or highway in the City of New Castle.

SECTION 4. It shall be unlawful for any person to attach any sled, sledge, drag or other sliding equipment to any motor vehicle within the City of New Castle and it shall be unlawful for any person on any sled, sledge, roller skates, bicycle or other unmotivated vehicle to trail any motor vehicle or to attach or hold onto any motor vehicle or street car in the streets of the City of New Castle.

SECTION 5. The Mayor is hereby authorized, whenever he shall deem it expedient or necessary, to establish safety zones in those streets, or parts of streets, where coasting, sliding and skating are not prohibited by this ordinance, under the authority of Section 1002 of the Vehicle Code and the said streets and parts of streets shall be marked as safety zones by the Police Department for such time as the same are so established by the Mayor.

SECTION 6. Any person who shall use any street or part of street where coasting, sliding and skating are not prohibited for any of those purposes, he shall do so at his or her own risk and it shall be the duty of the Police Department to establish on all such streets sufficient warnings that any use of the said streets, or parts of streets, is dangerous.

SECTION 7. Any person who shall be guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not more than $300.00 and costs of prosecution and, in default of the payment of the fine or the costs, to imprisonment in the County Jail for a period of not more than ten days. Any violation of this ordinance that is covered by the provisions of the Vehicle Code shall be punished as provided by the said Vehicle Code.

SECTION 8. If any minor shall violate any of the provisions of this Ordinance, he or she may be arrested and taken into custody by any officer of the said city, and may then be taken to the office of the Mayor and detained until he or she has paid the fine imposed for such violation or until the same has been paid by some other person. In all cases of violation of this Ordinance, the instrument with which the same is violated may be confiscated and held by the Police Department for a period not to exceed three months, in the discretion of the Mayor.

Passed by Council, November 19, 1934.

I, William T. Burns, City Clerk of New Castle, Penna., do hereby certify that the foregoing ordinance, No. 4366, Council Bill No. 26, was duly passed by the Council of the said City on the 19th day of November 1934, signed by the mayor and the seal of the said City affixed and attested by me.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereto set my hand and affixed the seal of the said City, this 20th day of November, 1934.

William T. Burns, City Clerk.

KANE WOLVES SHOT TO DEATH

(International News Service)

KANE, Pa., Nov. 21.—This community's widespread wolf hunt came to an abrupt climax here today when roaring guns in the hand of John W. Oberg, 43, and W. H. Adamson, 50, drove bullets into the heads of the animals.

Having tracked the animals most of the morning, Oberg and Adamson finally overtook the pair of Arctic wolves that escaped from Dr. E. H. McCleery's wolf park last night in a woods three miles from here.

Uttering vicious growls and baring their fangs, the animals, slinking close to the ground, prepared to attack the pair of hunters.

Two guns went to shoulders. A pair of explosions echoed through the woods simultaneously.

The big bad wolves were dead.

Their carcasses were brought to the local state police sub-station.

Traders Await American Telephone Dividend Action, Market Marks Time

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—With traders awaiting the American Telephone dividend action at noon today, the market slowed down considerable. Price changes in the main body of stocks were small.

Railroad shares made a feeble attempt to rally following yesterday's moderate decline, but the recovery was checked by selling in New Haven which fell fractionally to a new bear market low. New York Central and other favorites also showed slight declines.

Utility shares again displayed a stubborn resistance to liquidation and in most cases held firm around yesterday's closing levels. American Telephone was steady at 105, unchanged from yesterday.

Industrial shares continued to give a demonstration of strength.

United States Steel, Bethlehem and American Can as well as other leaders in the group moved in a narrow range to hold around Tuesday's final prices.

Farm Implement and mail order stocks including J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were inclined to softness in sympathy with wheat where quotations were down fractionally. The cotton market also was heavy with losses running to 10 cents a bale.

Rate Reductions Are Announced

Sixteen Utilities In State Announce New Rate Schedules For 1935

STATE COMMISSION REPORTS PROGRESS

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—Rate reductions totalling almost $1,500,000 annually by 16 Pennsylvania utility companies were announced today by the Public Service commission as the first result of its campaign to slash utility profits to six per cent.

Most of the new rate schedules will go into effect on January 1, 1935. Domestic and commercial consumers alike will share in the reductions which will affect rates in all sections of the state.

The reductions will be made by seven electric companies, six gas concerns, two telephone companies and one water concern.

Ten of the 16 companies voluntarily reducing rates are doing so as a direct result of letters sent by the commission last month to 50 companies requesting them to cut rates to a six per cent return or show cause why this could not be done. November 15 was the last day for filing answers.

Three other reductions were made, the commission said, as an indirect result of the campaign which started with the mailing of the 50 letters. These other reductions resulted from informal conferences between utility companies and the commission.

File Reduced Tariffs

The companies which are to file reduced tariffs, according to the commission, and the estimated annual savings to consumers follow:

Luzerne County Gas and Electric company, serving 17 boroughs in Luzerne county near Wilkes-Barre, $162,500;

Erie County Electric company, Erie, $90,000;

Palmerton Telephone company, Palmerton, $5,118;

Van Pike Telephone company, Milford, $1,200;

Anthracite Water company, Gilberton; Fayette County Gas company, Uniontown, Scottdale and Connellsville, and Stoufferstown Electric company, Franklin county, no estimated savings for these three companies announced by the commission.

Erie Lighting company, Erie, $75,000;

Harrisburg Gas company, Harrisburg, $44,931;

Lebanon Valley Gas company, Lebanon, $15,336;

Keystone Public Service company, Oil City, Franklin and Titusville, $54,000.

Voluntary Reductions

The Erie Lighting, Harrisburg Gas and Lebanon Valley Gas companies were the concerns which filed voluntary reductions as an indirect result of the campaign.

Reductions by the Metropolitan Edison, Edison Power and Light and Keystone Public Service resulted from informal conferences with the commission.

Officials of the commission announced that the new schedules of tariffs must be obtained from the utility companies directly and will not be given out here because of the informal nature of the cases.

Some of the new schedules have not been filed in detail with the commission up to the present time.

In announcing the results of the campaign for six per cent profits, the commission said:

"The commission proposes to follow its rate reductions program through until utility rates throughout the state have been reduced to a reasonable minimum.

"To this end letters similar to those sent out last month are now being prepared and will go to additional utilities asking them to make rate reductions."

It was strongly intimated at the commission offices that formal rate cases probably will be started on the commission's own motion against companies which refused to make voluntary cuts as a result of the letters mailed in October.

AIREDALE DOG GETS FUNERAL SERVICE

(International News Service)

SHICKSHINNY, Pa.—A formal funeral service was accorded an airdale dog, the pet of the family of Mrs. John Campbell for 15 years that died of infirmities of old age. The body, encased in a casket, was lowered in a flower-bordered grave in the lawn of Mrs. Campbell's home while an undertaker intoned a brief eulogy.

Poland now has only approximately 300,000 unemployed.

When "Red" Grange Handled Ball Five Times And Scored Five Touchdowns in Single Game

OUTSTANDING AMONG the oddities in the history of football in the United States was the feat of Harold (Red) Grange, University of Illinois star, in the Illinois-Michigan game of 1924. In this game, Grange handled the ball only five times, and each time he scored a touchdown. Four of them were scored in the first quarter and the fifth in the last period. His runs were 95, 67, 56, 45 and 15 yards respectively. Although quite a novelty, Grange's achievement in this game was by no means as a result of freak plays. Rather, this record was due to his remarkable skill in dodging tacklers, which he displayed throughout his career as the "Galloping Ghost" of the gridiron.

Ruling Made On Borrowed Money By State Schools

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—School districts which borrow money by pledging delinquent taxes under provisions of the Mansfield Act of 1933 must pay all pledged tax collections into the emergency sinking fund created for the retirement of the bonds.

This ruling today was written for superintendent of public instruction James N. Rule by Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold in reply to a question asking if collectors of pledged delinquent taxes can be given compensation from such funds. The ruling added that compensation must be made from other funds.

Another ruling by Arnold determined that the liquor control board cannot appoint an assistant secretary except from a civil service list. The board's secretary is appointed but all other employes are selected by competitive examinations.

Gang Of Women Robs Only Men

(International News Service)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16 —A band of fifty "two-gun" Chinese women bandits is terrorizing the Luantung district in Hopei Provience.

The women always rob men.

Then suddenly he is faced with the demand, "Your money or your life"—and he finds himself hemmed in by the revolvers of the "decoy" and her friends.

Look For Gold Reported Stolen In Ellwood City

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Police and detectives today were watching for a $10 and a $2.50 gold piece to be put back in circulation.

The gold was stolen from Mrs. A. E. Neininger, Ellwood City.

Gold, practically speaking, is worthless in trade because of President Roosevelt's nationalization order.

Besides the gold, Mrs. Neininger told city detectives, the thief, who broke into her home, took three CWA checks for $66.75, $212 in cash and four rings.

RICE OWLS SIT HIGH ON NATIONAL FOOTBALL PERCH

Narrow Escapes In Train Wreck

TRAFFIC HALTED FOR FOUR HOURS

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—More than a score of passengers aboard a crack New York to St. Louis flyer of the Pennsylvania railroad were telling stories of narrow escapes from serious injury or death today after four Pullman cars were sideswiped by a freight train and derailed at South Fork, near here.

All four tracks of the road were blocked for several hours.

Railroad officials said two cars of a freight train, traveling on an adjacent track, were derailed just as the freight was approaching the flyer. The cars buckled when the automatic braking system took effect and the ends of the freight cars sideswiped the speeding passenger train. Two of the cars turned over on their sides.

Robert Rentschler, Wyomissing, Pa., machine company official, said "the air was so full of flying glass I don't see how any of us escaped being cut to pieces."

Threatens Workhouse Sentence To Three

Three men who gave the names of George Cross, Joe Rogan and "Flick" Tuskee, faced Mayor Mayne in police court today on a charge of having been drunk yesterday and also of having solicited alms from women in automobiles.

They said they had been drinking.

Mayor Mayne said the next time they faced him on such a charge each would draw a vacation in the workhouse.

Dr. Bennett Sees Jobless Insurance Nearing For State

Believes Legislation Coming, He Says Upon Return From Harrisburg

Belief that some form of unemployment insurance legislation will be placed before the Pennsylvania legislature early in 1935 was expressed today by Dr. G. S. Bennett, chairman of the Lawrence County Emergency Relief board, home from the Inter-state Conference on Labor Compacts at Harrisburg.

After pointing out that the interstate conference is one which has as its chief function the drafting of social legislation for various states, Dr. Bennett declared:

"Two unemployment insurance plans—the Wisconsin and Ohio plans—were discussed by Dr. W. N. Leiserson, chairman of the National Railway Mediation board, before the conference, and this address impressed us."

Dr. Bennett said the Ohio plan seemed to meet greater favor with the group than the Wisconsin plan did.

Under the Ohio plan the employer pays two per cent of the employe's salary while the employe himself pays one per cent to a state fund for jobless insurance. Under the Wisconsin plan the employer pays a percentage and the employe pays none.

"Governor-elect Earle," Dr. Bennett said, "wired the conference of his interest in the unemployment insurance drive."

Under the Ohio plan no additional state taxation is imposed for this insurance; the employer and employes pay. The money will be paid into a fund which will be under the supervision of the federal government and which will likely be turned over to the Federal Reserve for investment.

An employe, Dr. Bennett said, under the Ohio plan receives 50 per cent of his normal salary for a period of 20 weeks when he loses his job. That is based on a three per cent payment. If the payment percentage of the employer and employe is increased the payments would be continued over a longer time.

Louis B. Round, former CWA head, and Raymond Bennett, Dr. Bennett's son, also attended the conference.

POLISH FALCON CLUB

The Komisya Sokolic of the Polish Falcons Nest 146 met in their regular place and held a rehearsal this week for a play.

Their next business and social session will be held Friday, Nov. 23, in the Falcon hall. Marie Mazurkiewicz, Helen Noga and Matilda Pigon will be in charge.

Jail Sentences Given By Mayor

Reported Conduct Of One Prisoner While In Hospital Brings Heavy Fine

Ray Hallis and Vernon Hallis, relatives, today drew jail sentences when they answered to a charge of fighting and disorderly conduct in city police court. They were arrested November 17, sent to the Jameson Memorial hospital and appeared in police court today with bandages about their heads.

Vernon sustained a lacerated head when he came in contact with a Grant street window during the fight. Ray claims to have been struck by Vernon with a bottle and his head also was lacerated.

After being admitted to the hospital Ray is said to have employed abusive language to nurses, and the mayor, upon learning this, lectured him severely.

He fined Ray $25.00 with the alternative of 30 days in jail on the charge of having been disorderly at the hospital and also a $5.00 fine with the alternative of spending 10 days in jail on the charge of fighting and disorderly conduct in Grant street. Vernon was fined $5.00 and given the alternative of 10 days in jail on the charge of fighting and disorderly conduct.

White Returns From Hearing

City Solicitor Robert White has returned from Harrisburg, where he represented the city in oral arguments concerning the city's application before the public service commission to inquire into the records of the Pennsylvania Power Company.

The city maintains that it wants the records to properly make a survey of electric conditions here, for the purpose of ascertaining if domestic and street lighting rates are high.

The company maintained that a municipality had no legal right to inquire into the company's records, and said the records were on file at Harrisburg.

The commission did not hand down a decision.

SIX FIGHT DEATH; STORK ADDS BABY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—With a family of seven waging a grim fight against the ravages of typhoid fever in the Uniontown hospital, the stork added the ninth member of the family Tuesday. A 6½ pound daughter was born to Mrs. Maggie Smith of near Brucetton Mills, W. Va.

Previously, Albert Smith and his six children were committed to the hospital, suffering from typhoid fever which health experts traced to a spring on the Smith farm.

COMPLAINT ABOUT BOYS

Police were called to 316 Vine street last night, the complaint stating that there were "bad boys" annoying people. Police also ordered boys away from Lincoln avenue in the vicinity of the Cathedral last night.
